View across upland meadow to the World Trade Center Memorial earthwork

Surreal lighting effects in intimate spaces, such as the magnolia bog, remind the vsiitor that this is far from a "natural" place

View aross event area to covered market roof; transparent lighting columns mark the entry from the loop road beyond

Motor-cross may have specially designated paths, and others for horse-riding, biking, walking and jogging.

Winter snows reveal the beauty and scale of what should remain a big and generously open landscape field operations landscape urbanism architecture