

From: Edgar LaMance
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:19:55 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Edgar LaMance
7 Washington Sq N
New York, NY 10003

From: Elkin Botero
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:29:46 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I want to make my own choices. I do not need a government bureaucrat to do it for me.

Sincerely,

Elkin Botero
4029 Forley St
Elmhurst, NY 11373

From: Mike Spano
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 8:59:44 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm against anything Bloomberg tries to
Do he's a disgrace! He does more harm then good! Bloomberg would ban breathing if he could!

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

"let freedom ring"

Sincerely,

Mike Spano
17 Hinton St
Staten Island, NY 10312

From: VIRGINIA KING
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:09:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

VIRGINIA J. KING
347 E 53rd St
New York, NY 10022

From: Leonard Tufaro
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:09:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Leonard . Tufaro
122 Forest Dr
Jericho, NY 11753

From: Phillip Angel Faria, Jr.
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:59:32 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

To Stay Out of Our Personal Business Mayor Bloomberg

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Mr. Phillip Angel Faria Jr. USMC

Sincerely,

Phillip Angel Faria
14 La Bonne Vie Dr Apt H
Patchogue, NY 11772

From: PAT Nostramo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 10:19:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Pat Nostramo
15913 87th St
Howard Beach, NY 11414

From: LISA ORTIZ
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 10:39:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

LISA ORTIZ
1680 Randall Ave Apt 7A
Bronx, NY 10473

From: Richard Carroll
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 2:47:45 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

You stay out of my business and I'll stay out of yours. No more Jitney trips to the Big Rotten Apple and that means Shea Stadium and Yankee Stadium, and I can't forget my Knicks and rangers. That a lot of money your losing for the city Treasury.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Your lose, my gain. I hope you lose a lot of revenue.

Sincerely,

Richard Carroll
126 Buffalo Ave
Medford, NY 11763

From: Dave Thomas
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 2:47:50 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Dave Thomas
9338 209th St
Queens Village, NY 11428

From: Joanna Johnson-Smith
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 5:39:30 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a Citizen's Advocate in NY State and a believer in Freedom , I am alarmed that any government official or agency would presume to control what a free people eat, drink or whether they should be allowed to smoke outdoors or not! By allowing such a despotic maneuver to go unchallenged, we are opening a dangerous door to more government mandates on how we choose to live our lives.

I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I find it completely void of Common Sense, that a Mayor that supports the rights of homosexuals to "choose", would be so hypocritical as to try to mandate what people drink, eat, and where they can smoke a LEGAL cigarette. This is still America yet I see the ghost of Stalin in NY City!

Sincerely,

Joanna Johnson-Smith
44 Shaker Rd
New Lebanon, NY 12125

From: Kevin Jones, Esq.
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 5:39:34 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

The United States was formed on the basis of freedom and personal responsibility. Your proclamation amounts to a tyrannical imposition on our ever shrinking freedom, based upon your feeling that either we are too stupid to do what is good for us, or is a corrupt move by you in concert with the soda companies to increase profits by forcing folks to buy multiple sodas rather than one big on. I don't know which.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

When I buy a jumbo size drink, I do so because I am going to share it with others and it is a lot cheaper to buy one large drink than to buy multiple drinks. Since when had the state granted you imperialist powers to dictate the smallest corners of our limited remaining freedoms?

Sincerely,

Kevin E. Jones
566 Delaware Ave
Albany, NY 12209

From: theodore hayes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:39:59 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

theodore hayes
PO Box 208
Lake Peekskill, NY 10537

From: Ronald Holly, Jr
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 6:59:48 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York State resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Ronald Holly Jr
109 Kingsboro Ave
Gloversville, NY 12078

From: josephine franco
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 7:09:29 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

josephine franco
40 New Turnpike Rd
Troy, NY 12182

From: INEZ ALVAREZ
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 8:29:29 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

ALVAREZ
2500 McDonald Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11223

From: Seena Cushman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 9:39:27 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

With greater education programs, initiatives to get everyone moving and the continued responsible marketing of our beverages... we can make a difference. Taking away freedom of choice and the ability of some retailers to compete is not the answer!!!

Sincerely,

Seena Cushman
4 Orchard Dr
Chappaqua, NY 10514

From: Dinald Russo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 10:09:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Dinald Russo
227 Calyer St
Brooklyn, NY 11222

From: Michael DiMuro
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 12:09:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I am a New York City resident who is asking that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

The proposed ban on drinks over 16 ounces is ludicrous. It is an unwarranted intrusion on personal freedom. Further, it will do nothing whatsoever to combat obesity, which is the supposed reason for the ban. It will instate regulations that would require a nightmarish bureaucracy to properly enforce. It's supposed to apply only to sugared drinks, but what about restaurants that give you your own cup to fill? Will they be watching to make sure that I fill that 22oz cup with only diet soda? Of course not - they will have to eliminate cups over 16 ounces entirely, which means that even diet drinks will be affected by the ban. It is an obviously absurd idea that must be rejected.

Sincerely,

Michael DiMuro
6376 76th St
Middle Village, NY 11379

From: James Emery
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 1:19:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

This measure is a gross overreach by the Mayor and frankly it's none of his business what I put in my body, especially a legal product like soda.

Sincerely,

James Emery
33 Bionia Ave
Staten Island, NY 10305

From: Sam Sande
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 2:19:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Your attention is needed elsewhere.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Stop a man from drinking a 20oz beverage, he limits his sugar for a day. Educate a man to make the right decision for himself, he limits the real toxins that affect his body for a lifetime.

Sincerely,

Sam Sande
4615 CENTER BLVD
LONG ISLAND CITY, NY 11109

From: Nemer Alaouie
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 2:49:29 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

This is unacceptable who does bloomberg think he is.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Thank you

Sincerely,

Nemer Alaouie
148 Trantor Pl
Staten Island, NY 10302

From: Paul Memoli
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 7:21:28 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

If the city is so concerned about health, why have tennis permits quadrupled in price during the Mayor's never-ending tenure? Why are bike lanes only in the most affluent neighborhoods, while obesity is worst in the poorest.

Drinking a 20 ounce Gatorade is fine after a vigorous workout. The way to promote good health is make the exercise part easier, not banning legal substances because you think it's for our own good. I sincerely appreciate your concern, but I find your method a bit scary.

Sincerely,

Paul Memoli
11021 73rd Rd Apt 6G
Forest Hills, NY 11375

From: Brendan Quigley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:40:01 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Brendan Quigley
1840 211th St Apt 6A
Bayside, NY 11360

From: John Saltalamacchia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 9:09:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

John Saltalamacchia
311 W 24TH ST APT 12B
NEW YORK, NY 10011

From: Jeffrey Mandel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, June 30, 2012 9:39:32 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Is the Land of the Free becoming "1984?" This is like in the movie "Demolition Man" where the Stallone character asks for the salt and is told that "It is bad for you, hence it is illegal."

As a former New York City resident and frequent visitor (born in the Bronx, raised in Bayside), I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

While you are at it, tell Czar Bloomberg to stop trying to dictate the rights of Americans.

Sincerely,

J Mandel
523 River Rd
Gaylordsville, CT 06755

From: Fernando Pacifico
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 11:19:29 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Fernando Pacifico
191 Beach 138Th St
Belle Harbor, NY 11694

From: susan sorace
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 12:19:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

susan sorace
328 Hamilton Ave
West Hempstead, NY 11552

From: Desirea Atkins
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 12:29:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Desirea Atkins
6406 62nd Ave
Middle Village, NY 11379

From: Mannor Wong
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 12:49:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Mannor Wong
99 71st St
Brooklyn, NY 11209

From: Pearl Feder
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 1:19:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

What next? the clothes we wear?

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Pearl Feder
13305 Newport Ave
Rockaway Park, NY 11694

From: James Langseth, Jr
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 1:49:38 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

You cannot legislate behavior!

Sincerely,

James Langseth Jr
213 E 25th St Apt 2B
New York, NY 10010

From: nick rosenblum
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 2:49:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Dont make us suffer a loss of freedom because of others who lack discipline.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

You are all so wrong on this

Sincerely,

nick rosenblum
65 W 90th St
New York, NY 10024

From: John Hooghuis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 3:29:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

John Hooghuis
277 Merrymount St
Staten Island, NY 10314

From: Julie Washington
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:49:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I am writing to voice my objections to a ban on sugary drinks because I know that this ban just doesn't make any sense for several reasons.

First, the drinks sold in cups in restaurants and theaters are mostly ice, but the soda in the cup is the same amount. Banning a larger size doesn't get you any less soda, just less ice (which is water which is good for you!).

Second, instead of drinking one 20 ounce bottle of soda, an individual will now drink two 16 ounce bottles of soda. This totals 32 ounces, so the ban will only serve to increase the amount of soda people drink, not reduce it.

Third, not everyone can consume drinks with artificial sweeteners. The artificial sweetener is a known allergen and possibly a cause for certain types of cancer. By taking away my choice you take away my civil rights to eat and drink only the foods that do not make me sick. I know I am allergic to artificial sweeteners and know I must avoid it.

Fourth, people should not be treated like infants or children who are incapable of making decisions for themselves regarding their health or their families health. Teach people how to eat wiser and healthier and they will make healthier choices.

When you treat people like they are stupid and unable to think for themselves you only demean and degrade them. We don't need a nanny-state, we need a city and state who treats us with respect and allows us to function on our own as the adults we are!

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Julie Washington
125 W 227th St
Bronx, NY 10463

From: Susan Racanelli-Cruz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 3:39:50 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Susan Racanelli-Cruz
2436 Pearsall Ave
Bronx, NY 10469

From: james.corbin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 4:29:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Although I no longer live in New York, New York is where I was born and still the City I call my home. A Yankee fans living among Red Sox fans is not my first choice but it is the hand I was dealt given New Yorks sky rocketing cost of living and socialist dictatorship of Mr Bloomberg. Although the current major has done all he possibly can to run people out of the city, I still think there is hope for the Greatest City in the World much like this is still hope for the Greatest Country in the World should things change in November. Please take a small step to restore the freedom my parents and grandparents fought for and restrain yourselves from being the tool of the socialist wave rolling over our country.

As a concerned citizen of the United States of America, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of all American like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

This is so important to the freedom we hold dear, I ask you to keep government out of what they should not be part of. I do not even drink soda but as a poet once said, First they came for the Socialists, and I did not speak out--
Because I was not a Socialist.

Then they came for the Trade Unionists, and I did not speak out--
Because I was not a Trade Unionist.

Then they came for the Jews, and I did not speak out--
Because I was not a Jew.

Then they came for me--and there was no one left to speak for me.

STOP THE ASSAULT ON PERSONAL FREEDOM

Sincerely,

James Corbin
30 King George Dr
Boxford, MA 01921

From: Rachel Lane
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 4:49:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Rachel Lane
609 Myrtle Ave Apt 4A
Brooklyn, NY 11205

From: Michael Ritschel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 5:19:29 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Michael Ritschel
16 Marigold Ln
Somerset, NJ 08873

From: Stewart Weiss
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 5:19:29 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Whether or not restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods, it is simply wrong.

I would categorize myself as a social liberal, but this proposed legislation goes too far. Granted that obesity has become a major problem in this country, but this is not the solution to that problem, and even if it helped to reduce it, it does so on the backs of people who are not obese, people who know how to control their intake of sugary drinks but who would like the choice to indulge themselves in a theater, restaurant, or other venue. The government has no business restricting my access to soft drinks.

The government does not ban the sale of alcoholic beverages, although when they are abused they cause immeasurable problems. Is this any different?

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Stewart Weiss
3530 73rd St Apt Stewart
Jackson Heights, NY 11372

From: Joshua Lane
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 5:29:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Joshua A. Lane
609 Myrtle Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11205

From: Richard Yau
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 5:49:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Growing up poor, I learned a whole lot about saving every last cent you possibly can and that usually meant we as a family would buy a larger drink and share it among the others in the family. As a Middle Class father of three I still take those lessons to heart when we go out to eat at a takeout restaurant. A larger size drink shared among the family members.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I understand a need to curb obesity, but it is not on the backs of poor struggling families forcing them to spend more money to feed their family, and in essence forcing them to buy more from the big businesses. Mayor Bloomberg, I would never understand where you stand as a wealthy billionaire, but we do not have your resources nor the resources of NYC to hurt the poor and to help yourself. We cannot afford to have a city vehicle idling, with a room air conditioner to keep it comfortable for us. We go day to day making smart choices to save money, now you are forcing us to pay more to the businesses who can make more cash because of your big business friendly policies.

Sincerely,

Richard Yau
3373 169th St
Flushing, NY 11358

From: Robert Britt
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 6:59:43 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Let me begin by informing you that I do not drink soda at all but this ban is an encroachment on my civil liberties.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Most importantly, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Robert Britt
530 W 123rd St Apt 1
New York, NY 10027

From: Joseph Pearce
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 7:19:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Actually, I drink ONLY diet soda and diet tea, and use Equal in my coffee, so I am not really personally concerned here. But I often drink 32 oz. containers of these things, and sometimes more than one, so the Mayor's argument that "nobody needs more than a 16 oz. drink with a meal" does not fall on believing ears where I am concerned. But I am also a free American and quite literally bristle when I hear of yet another attempt by what would be an out-of-control government (if we let it be) wanting to dictate every area of its citizenry's activities. I really do think that if the government gets away with this, then, sooner or later, it will be telling us that we must buy broccoli! And I will go to jail before I will buy, or eat, broccoli!!

Sincerely,

Joe Pearce
116 Norman Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11222

From: Lindsey Wheatley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 7:29:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a concerned American, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of Americans and freedom, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Lindsey Wheatley
1056 Newport Gray Rd
Newport, NY 13416

From: Gary Fallon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:49:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a NYS resident I am very upset that this is even being considered! Stop trying to control everything. The majority of people are responsible, but it's not the government or branch thereof to enforce how much soda a person can drink. I can see you saying well that did not work maybe it's chips, or cheese cake or whatever! Realize it's the person and the parent, so the kids thirsty and now the parent gives him two drinks instead of one,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

We need to get the kids outside and not inside stuck to computers!. In the 60's and 70's everyone was out playing (burning calories) school had gym, we even had to get up off the couch to change the channel, is it possible society has changed and we need to get back to the basics and not control what someone's wants to eat or drink?

Sincerely,

Gary Fallon
160 Van Ness St
Newburgh, NY 12550

From: Barry Heckard
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 7:39:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Barry Heckard
2217 19th St Apt 32
Astoria, NY 11105

From: Sean Murray
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 7:49:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Sean Murray
5911 Tyndall Ave
Bronx, NY 10471

From: Shawn Frank
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 7:49:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Shawn Frank
248 McKibben St
Brooklyn, NY 11206

From: Austin McManus
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 10:09:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

You might as well monitor length of couch sitting, t.v. time, usage of microwaves, coffee consumption, the list could go on forever. There will be twice as much waste as well.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Austin McManus
95 Greenpoint Ave Apt 1R
Brooklyn, NY 11222

From: debra himes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 01, 2012 11:19:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Down sizing our soft drinks in New York is ridiculous

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I don't beleave it is a matter of the size they think that down sizing our sugar beverages will make a differance well this is wrong because it's not like people sit and drink a whole 24 oz bottle of soda at once a majority of them don't and why should you take this away from us we want our freedom back that you keep taking from us don't look at this because there is obese people in the world cause this is cruel and wrong of you because alot of our people drink diet pop who are obese and that's a fact so before you decide to choose our size of our soft drink think of how cruel you are being and how you brake our rights of freedom Thank You .

Sincerely,

mrs.debra himes
89 Howard St
Jamestown, NY 14701

From: yisroel ross
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 12:29:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

yisroel ross
75 Locust Ave
Cedarhurst, NY 11516

From: Steven Figueroa
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 6:39:35 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I don't need anyone telling me what I can or can't eat or drink. I make the choice, not you!!!!

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Steven Figueroa
420 W 19th St Apt 22G
New York, NY 10011

From: Mark Avnet
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 7:39:27 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Mark Avnet
360 Smith St
Brooklyn, NY 11231

From: Katie Wall
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 9:09:48 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Katie Wall
6633 Fairhope Ct
Charlotte, NC 28277

From: RONIT PAER
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 9:19:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

RONIT PAER
6610 Avenue T
Brooklyn, NY 11234

From: Ellen Mize
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:59:53 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Ellen Mmize
1610 16th St NW Apt 708
Washington, DC 20009

From: lee brodsky
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 9:59:27 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Lee Brodsky
1735 Alexis Rd
Merrick, NY 11566

From: GERARD NAPOLI
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 10:09:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

PLEASE DIRECT YOUR EFFORTS ON MORE IMPORTANT ISSUES THAN WHAT PEOPLE ARE BUYING TO DRINK. IF THIS IS REALLY A PRIORITY TO YOU THAN YOU NEED TO RESIGN.

Sincerely,

GERARD NAPOLI
302 96th St
Brooklyn, NY 11209

From: Jeanne Scotto
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 10:19:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jeanne Scotto
43 PEACHTREE LN
STATEN ISLAND, NY 10309

From: Karen Slattery, A
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 10:29:52 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Kare Slattery
10200 Shore Front Pkwy
Rockaway Park, NY 11694

From: Julie Henry
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 11:10:00 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Julie Henry
2070 Delano Dr NE
Atlanta, GA 30317

From: Elliot Ganz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 11:29:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Elliot Ganz
366 Madison Ave
New York, NY 10017

From: Wade Galloway
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 11:29:27 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Wade Galloway
1 Landmark Sq Apt 226
Port Chester, NY 10573

From: Phil Trapani
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 11:51:40 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Next thing you will be banning is the size of my meat portions. STOP it NOW.

Sincerely,

Phil T
93 Boxwood Dr
Kings Park, NY 11754

From: Marie Volpetti
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 12:39:52 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Marie Volpetti
75 Bay 17Th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

From: John sloane
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 12:39:53 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,
John Sloane

Sincerely,

John sloane
440 W 163rd St Apt 504
New York, NY 10032

From: Margaret Leonard
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 11:09:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I am not a soda drinker but I don't want anyone telling me what I can and cannot do. Tell Mr. Bloomberg to get a hobby and leave us alone.

Sincerely,

Margaret Leonard
1115 Cross Bay Blvd
Far Rockaway, NY 11693

From: Timothy Lewis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 12:59:47 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a member of the concession industry, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of free thinking people like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Tim Lewis
2401 McKinley Blvd
Rogers, AR 72758

From: Teresa Kehoe
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 1:39:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Teresa Kehoe
513 Lincoln Ave
Staten Island, NY 10306

From: Arlene Baratta
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 1:59:28 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Arlene Baratta
361 Grimsby St
Staten Island, NY 10306

From: Robb DeMange
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 1:59:28 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I am not a subject to some little tyrant with a Napoleon complex. If I want a 20 or 24 oz. soda, I have the capacity to make that decision.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I sincerely wish for the death of Bloomberg and I hope he suffers every minute until that glorious moment.

Sincerely,

Robb DeMange
703 154TH ST
WHITESTONE, NY 11357

From: bee Aye
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 2:40:10 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Bee
100 E 21st St
New York, NY 10010

From: Elaine Hoare
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 3:49:55 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

How can our freedom of choice be taken away from us? It is unconstitutional.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Furthermore I am not over weight or close to it. I love a huge coke during a movie.

Sincerely,

Elaine Hoare
7117 Park Dr E
Flushing, NY 11367

From: Cheryl Blum
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 3:59:37 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

It seems to me that this is unconstitutional.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Blum
315 E 86th St
New York, NY 10028

From: Inge Wolf
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 3:59:41 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I don't appreciate Mayor Bloomberg dictating to us what size beverages we can drink. He can watch his own diet. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Inge Wolf
6120 71st Ave
Glendale, NY 11385

From: Olivia Thomas
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 5:00:08 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

It is a choice if someone wants to drink a 16 ounce beverage.. If you want to curb obesity then conduct free nutrient class or add exercise in the schools.. DO NOT TAKE CHOICE AWAY.. what is next..curbing what we purchase at the supermarket????

Sincerely,

Olivia Thomas
4720 Kings Hwy
Brooklyn, NY 11234

From: Karen Eigo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 5:12:22 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Karen Eigo
570 9th St
Brooklyn, NY 11215

From: Abdul young
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 11:09:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Over the last 10 years soda consumption is down roughly 40% in the U.S. while obesity is up 15% in the same time span. The problem is more complex than a one size fits all ban, on a particular set of products.

Sincerely,

Abdul young
562 Maple St Apt 3
Brooklyn, NY 11203

From: Shannon Rhett
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 6:49:41 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Shannon Rhett
410 Saint Nicholas Ave
New York, NY 10027

From: Joany Lopez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 6:59:27 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our many businesses as well as our pockets when ordering from theaters or fast food places. I can share a super large drink with another person(s).

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas. If people do not wish to do any of the mentioned then that is their problem and choice! Not yours to make!!

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Joany Lopez
360 Williams Ave Apt 3D
Brooklyn, NY 11207

From: Joseph R Florito, Jr
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 6:59:32 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Joseph R Fiorito Jr
103 S Goff Ave
Staten Island, NY 10309

From: Katherine Martinez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 7:09:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Where will it stop!

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Where do you cross the line. Do you next decide on whether I can have ice cream, bacon, meat ...? Health education starts young; after school programs; physical education. Instead of cutting the school budget by taking away gyms and school yards you are telling us what we can and cannot eat and drink and how much! Get our kids away from video games and TV and get them OUTSIDE!

Sincerely,

Katherine Martinez
16 Hub Ln
Levittown, NY 11756

From: Maria Garcia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 7:39:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

As an adult I am responsible for my choices not the government. As a parent I set the rules for my children not the government. The government needs to step back and let people become responsible for themselves. Provide police, fire and other vital services and let me decide what I consume.

Sincerely,

Maria Garcia
365 E 209th St
Bronx, NY 10467

From: IL Young Park
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 8:09:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

IL PARK
2036 Lindgren St
Merrick, NY 11566

From: Nicholas Podias
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 10:09:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

This is yet another example of government overreach and intrusion on our liberty. Unfortunately this is happening at every level of government from the federal, to the state, to the city. This must stop. It is not governments role to do these things. How about fixing some of the potholes and poor road conditions that are damaging our vehicles and causing a real public safety issues as opposed to banning the feared "Big Gulp"!

Sincerely,

Nicholas J. Podias
164 87th St
Brooklyn, NY 11209

From: Robert D'Agostino
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 11:49:33 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Robert D'Agostino
23421 88th Ave
Queens Village, NY 11427

From: Jeffrey Hayward
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 7:10:07 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Hayward
163 Baden Pl
Staten Island, NY 10306

From: Richard Richer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 8:09:31 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

This is what you're spending your time on? The last thing the economy needs is to make doing business in New York more difficult. With all of the legal challenges presented to our law enforcement agencies, it makes no sense to focus on something that will have no effect on those who wish to purchase large soft drinks - they will simply buy more of the smaller packages. And what will that do to our environment? is this just another tax grab to increase the beverage container tax fee intake?

If it weren't so absurd, I'd have thought this proposal was done purely with a sense of humor as an April fools joke. What was the date of the proposal again?

As a New York City worker, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

On so many levels this approach is offensive and truly indicates how much time our public servants have on their hands to waste at the taxpayer's expense. Get real guys - this is not where the focus should be. What's next? Perhaps you need to determine how big a hamburger should be, or perhaps we should all be required to eat just lettuce?

Sincerely,

Richard M. Richer
5765 48th St
Maspeth, NY 11378

From: Vito Rella
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 11:09:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Vito Rella
17810 Wexford Ter Apt Jamaica
Jamaica, NY 11432

From: Elizabeth Vazquez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 8:39:32 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

No goverment should tell the people what to drink and how much.. its bad enough we get taxed for everything, worst when government trys to dictate our lives.... no way Jose! Bring down taxes for single people, they are killing us!!!

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Vazquez
3510 Bainbridge Ave
Bronx, NY 10467

From: Angela Palmieri
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 9:20:03 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Angela Palmieri
125 E 87th St Apt 11H
New York, NY 10128

From: Tom Nulty
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 10:19:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Tom Nulty
31 W 52ND ST
NEW YORK, NY 10019

From: Jeanne Thelwell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 10:40:12 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I appreciate your concern for the health of New York residents. I applauded the ban on trans fats (the use of which purchasers had no ability to change), and the requirement that the calorie counts of food be put on menus. These actions protected my freedom to choose what I eat. Your current initiative to ban the sale of large size beverages, unfortunately, tramples on that freedom to choose.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Please consider that it is more appropriate for you to empower consumers, rather than make their choices for them.

Sincerely,

Jeanne Edna Thelwell
94 Rockaway Pkwy Apt 6A
Brooklyn, NY 11212

From: Nick Giangarra
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 2:40:11 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Nick Giangarra
81 Bleecker St Apt 1R
Brooklyn, NY 11221

From: Jadeen mercado
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 6:59:31 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jadeen mercado
236 Ravencrest Rd
Yorktown Heights, NY 10598

From: Cathryne Johnson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 04, 2012 9:59:32 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Cathryne Johnson
208 Katan Ave
Staten Island, NY 10308

From: Yisroel Steg
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, July 05, 2012 12:19:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Yisroel Steg
1527 52nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11219

From: matt weiner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, July 05, 2012 3:49:40 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, matt weiner

matt weiner
71 W 83rd St
New York, NY 10024

From: MARK CIONCI
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, July 05, 2012 8:09:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Mark Cionci

Mark Cionci
3806 Hollow Crossing Dr
Orlando, FL 32817

From: WILLIAM BOMZER
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 11:09:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I THINK MAYOR BOOMBERG SHOULD TAKE CARE OF BEING THE MAYOR FOR THE TIME HE IS THE MAYOR AND STOP MINDING THE PUPRICS BUSSINESS. BECAUCE HE IS A BILLIONAIRE DOES NOT MEAN YOU HAVE THE RIGHT RUN SOMEONE ELSSES LIFE.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM B.BOMZER
7357 217th St
Oakland Gardens, NY 11364

From: Phillippe Bryant
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, July 05, 2012 11:09:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Phillippe W Bryant

Phillippe W Bryant
14517 Ferndale Ave
Jamaica, NY 11435

From: Claudio Arias
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 08, 2012 12:09:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Claudio Arias
1505 Townsend Ave
Bronx, NY 10452

From: Christopher Arkinson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 08, 2012 5:09:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

sincerely.C.J. Arkinson

Christopher Arkinson
922 Huntington Ave
Bronx, NY 10465

From: Mark Kaiser
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 6:49:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Mark Kaiser

Mark Kaiser
650 W 42nd St Apt 2512
New York, NY 10036

From: Omar Branch
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 10:30:15 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Omar Branch

Omar L. Branch
2065 1st Ave Apt 7D
New York, NY 10029

From: Edna Schoenberg
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 10:39:52 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Edna Schoenberg
18 2nd St
Staten Island, NY 10306

From: Anthony Sofo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 11:10:47 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Anthony D Sofo

Anthony Sofo
45 Barbara St
Staten Island, NY 10306

From: Jessica Morgenstern
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 3:59:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jessica Morgenstern
7519 3rd Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11209

From: Nicole Zipp
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 4:19:52 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Nicole Zipp

Nicole Zipp
25908 147th Rd
Rosedale, NY 11422

From: Nolan Ivers
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 6:59:28 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Nolan Ivers
45 Juliette St Apt 2R
Bayonne, NJ 07002

From: charles weber
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:19:55 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

charles weber
8 Sanford Ave
Chester, NY 10918

From: RICHARD KRA
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 11:19:56 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Who in the hell do you people think that you have a right on telling me how much I can drink you sacks of shit.

Sincerely,

Richard Kra
PO Box 442
Norwalk, CT 06856

From: John O'Hanlon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 10, 2012 4:10:16 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, John O'Hanlon

John O'Hanlon
3 Moody Pl
Staten Island, NY 10310

From: Christian O'Hanlon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 10, 2012 4:10:18 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Christian O'Hanlon
3 Moody Pl
Staten Island, NY 10310

From: George Schwille
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 5:39:35 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

George Schwille
5853 78th St
Middle Village, NY 11379

From: Michael Kelty
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 8:59:34 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Michael Kelty - Little Neck, NY

Michael Kelty-Little Neck, NY
24911 Thornhill Ave
Little Neck, NY 11362

From: Brian Mortenson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 4:19:54 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Brian Mortenson

Brian Mortenson
8267 Austin St Apt 702
Kew Gardens, NY 11415

From: Jill Bonuchi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 4:29:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jill Bonuchi
13200 W 95th Ter
Lenexa, KS 66215

From: James Shadoff
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 5:59:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

James D. Shadoff
16104 Jewel Ave
Flushing, NY 11365

From: Robert Degnen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 7:09:37 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Robert Degnen

Robert Degnen
3948 65th St Apt Ha
Woodside, NY 11377

From: Marjorie-Helene Dejean
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 11:09:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Marjorie-Helene L. Dejean
22114 106th Ave
Jamaica, NY 11429

From: Teresa Guidice
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, July 12, 2012 5:39:57 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Teresa F Guidice
191 Graham Pl Apt 2
Bronx, NY 10462

From: Jennifer Watkins
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 11:29:55 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Watkins
7229 Cooper Ave
Glendale, NY 11385

From: Robert Montgomery
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, July 12, 2012 11:40:37 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Robert Montgomery
4280 Stormy Pointe Ct
Denver, NC 28037

From: James Keenan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, July 12, 2012 2:30:09 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

James Keenan
202 E Catherine St
Milford, PA 18337

From: Michael Louis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, July 12, 2012 6:00:50 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Michael Louis Brooklyn, NY

Michael Louis
225 Avenue T Apt 6D
Brooklyn, NY 11223

From: John Conroy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 16, 2012 5:19:47 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, John Conroy

John Conroy
17 Beech Rd
Suffern, NY 10901

From: Rita Richardson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 16, 2012 6:39:42 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Rita Richardson
350 E 124th St
New York, NY 10035

From: Howard Meyer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:39:47 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Howard Meyer
3210 Avenue K
Brooklyn, NY 11210

From: Mia Castro-Alvarez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:39:32 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

MCA
9 Jackson Ave
Staten Island, NY 10305

From: Andrew Becks
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:49:39 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Andrew Becks
211 W 80th St Apt 2C
New York, NY 10024

From: Diane Connors
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:19:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Diane Connors
145 95th St
Brooklyn, NY 11209

From: Luis Gonzalez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 11:19:42 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Luis Felipe Gonzalez
8447 118th St
Kew Gardens, NY 11415

From: Rosemary Singler
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 11:29:59 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Rosemary Singler
249 Fisher Ave
Staten Island, NY 10307

From: lorraine schneider
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:39:51 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Lorraine Schneider

Lorraine Schneider
2 Winding Rd
Massapequa, NY 11758

From: Les Padzensky
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:30:00 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, Les Padzensky

Les Padzensky
PO Box 782560
Wichita, KS 67278

From: WILLIAM EDWARDS
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 10:49:29 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM EDWARDS
14 Harbor View Ct
Staten Island, NY 10301

From: Diana Valencia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 9:49:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Diana Valencia
7244 68th St
Ridgewood, NY 11385

From: Juan Ruiz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 11:19:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Juan Ruiz
305 W 113th St Apt 3B
New York, NY 10026

From: Rinaldo Nazzaro
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 6:49:29 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Rinaldo Nazzaro
16 W 19th St
New York, NY 10011

From: Sherlonda kendrick
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 8:39:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Sherlonda kendrick
6813 Main St Apt D6
Lithonia, GA 30058

From: Laura Doria
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 8:50:01 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Laura Doria
4672 Hylan Blvd
Staten Island, NY 10312

From: Robert Bates
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 9:49:46 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Robert Bates
816 S 12th St Apt 5
Allentown, PA 18103

From: Bill Hough
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 11:09:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Bill Hough
238 E 30th St
New York, NY 10016

From: Steven Arfa
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 11:39:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Don't allow Mayor Bloomberg to make policy for you.

Sincerely,

Steven Arfa
7534 Bell Blvd Apt 5D
Oakland Gardens, NY 11364

From: melba magarin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 11:10:01 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

melba magarin
29 2nd Ave
Port Washington, NY 11050

From: Mr. & Mrs. Lenora Young
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 11:39:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

lenora young
11410 179th St
Jamaica, NY 11434

From: Jay Vido
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 12:49:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jay Vido
216 Greenwood Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11218

From: Joseph Caraccio
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 1:19:24 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Joseph Caraccio
6 Townsend St
Glen Head, NY 11545

From: Claire Gilligan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 1:30:11 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Claire Gilligan
4263 Layton St
Elmhurst, NY 11373

From: Judith Vangor
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 3:49:24 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Judith Vangor
85 4th Ave Apt 2B
New York, NY 10003

From: Alim Bagley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 4:09:49 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Alim Bagley
316 Grandview Ave
Staten Island, NY 10303

From: bob_bee
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 5:10:00 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

bob_bee
1407 1st Ave
New York, NY 10021

From: George Worotikan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 6:59:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

George Worotikan
3720 81st St Apt 6M
Jackson Heights, NY 11372

From: Enrique Salguero
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 7:39:25 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Enrique Salguero
6333 71ST ST
MIDDLE VILLAGE, NY 11379

From: Cosmo Stallone, Jr.
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 11:51:31 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Cosmo Stallone
482 Welton St
Harpursville, NY 13787

From: Chris North
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 8:19:28 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Chris North
2 Horatio St
New York, NY 10014

From: Dennis Yaschik
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 9:29:24 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Dennis Yaschik
5370 Grenoble Ct
Atlanta, GA 30360

From: Matthew Holloman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 10:20:04 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Matthew Holloman
557 Academy St Apt 23
New York, NY 10034

From: Sherrelyn Novitsky
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 12:00:01 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Sherrelyn Novitsky
2930 W 30th St # 2G2
Brooklyn, NY 11224

From: Beth Ryan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 12:30:01 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

It is a fundamental right to be able to choose what you will drink!

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Beth Ryan
2317 Shenandoah Ave NE
Atlanta, GA 30305

From: Jamie Rivera
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 1:10:03 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jamie Rivera
2138 Lacombe Ave
Bronx, NY 10473

From: Blaze Blyth
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 1:29:58 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,
Blaze A. Blyth

Sincerely,

Blaze A. Blyth
255 W 43rd St
New York, NY 10036

From: naadine sardi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 1:29:59 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

It's unconstitutional. What's next? A double cheeseburger? A 32 oz steak at smith & wolensky? Every meal at the CHEESECAKE Factory?? A Venting coffee at Starbucks? Keep the Government OUT of my personal life!!!

Sincerely,

naadine sardi
246 Castle Ave
Westbury, NY 11590

From: ARTHUR HARRIS
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:29:33 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

ARTHUR W HARRIS
29 Cloverdale Dr
Oakdale, NY 11769

From: Jared Heyde
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 2:28:22 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jared Heyde
47 Upland Ave
White Plains, NY 10604

From: Valenine Peters
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 2:28:22 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Valenine Peters
5727 Arverne Blvd
Arverne, NY 11692

From: JUDITH VAN DYKE, NY
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 2:28:22 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

IT'S TIME FOR YOU TO STOP TRYING TO RUN OUR LIVES, WE ARE NOT CHILDREN AND DO NOT NEED SOMEONE TO TELL US WHAT'S GOOD FOR US. YOU HAVE GONE TOO FAR, MAYBE YOU SHOULD TEACH PEOPLE INSTEAD OF JUST TELLING US WHAT WE MUST DO.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

JUDITH VAN DYKE, NY
116 Conklin St
Farmingdale, NY 11735

From: Sandi Bernard
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 2:28:22 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Sandi Bernard
170 W 133rd St
New York, NY 10030

From: john maiale
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 2:28:23 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

john maiale
71 Kean St
West Babylon, NY 11704

From: theodore parente
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 2:29:55 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

My wife and I go to the movies a few times a year. We share a supersize soda for $5. This is our movie treat. Now thanks to mr Bloomberg we will have to buy two 16oz drinks at $4 each! The public pays more again !!!!! The only ones profitizing is movie theaters and soda companies.....but then on the other hand I can go eat 3 big macs and it's ok. Diet and exercise loses weight

Sincerely,

theodore parente
14558 8th Ave
Whitestone, NY 11357

From: Mr. & Mrs. Richard Pagani
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, June 28, 2012 3:49:57 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

JeanPagani
47 Bernardino Ave
Enfield, CT 06082

From: AL NAZARIO
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, June 28, 2012 5:09:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

NAY 2 BIG NANNY BLOMBERG!!

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

FREEDOM OF CHOICE PERIOD!!

Sincerely, AL NAZARIO

AL NAZARIO
400 W 43rd St
New York, NY 10036

From: Charles Juliano
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, June 28, 2012 5:09:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Charles Juliano
2 Chandler Ave
Batavia, NY 14020

From: kenneth herebrts
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, June 28, 2012 5:09:27 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please accept the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods. yet it will help tax payers who are being billed out the wazoo for all these over weight people with health conditions. what more important the sugar drink fatty food or health and less taxes?

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. But since we are such gazones and gluts and expect the government to pay our medical bills we should be restricted. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, and working a good long day. Restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas could very well help all the fat lazy lima beans.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please do not reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

kenneth herberts
9411 34th Rd
Jackson Heights, NY 11372

From: John Lacey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:29:35 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

John B. Lacey
255 Pascack Ave
Emerson, NJ 07630

From: holly kanfer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, June 28, 2012 5:09:27 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

we live in a democratic country, or so I thought??

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

The only people this will ultimately hurt is those NYers who buy a large drink and "share" it with their family, date, children, etc. Now this will force them to spend twice the amount. Who profits here?!
Tell Bloomberg to take a hike!

Sincerely,

Holly Kanfer
325 W 52nd St
New York, NY 10019

From: Joseph Montanez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, June 28, 2012 5:39:46 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Simple. It is a freedom of choice. This is not an illegal drug. We are talking about a beverage. Hello.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Joseph Montanez
112 Sunnyside Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207

From: James Dombrowski
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, June 28, 2012 5:40:00 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

James Dombrowski
2453 Kensington Ave
Amherst, NY 14226

From: Martin Andreu
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, June 28, 2012 6:39:27 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Mayor Bloomberg you are going to far
We have the Righth to decide what size of drink we want
We are the tax payer here is enough already with your Stupid rules.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

So please just step aside we have the choice and the freedom to make our own health decision

Sincerely,

Martin Andreu
1529 39th St
Brooklyn, NY 11218

From: Barbara Wright
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, June 28, 2012 8:29:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Why would any governmental body want to so intrude on the lives of individual citizens?

As a former New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers and former citizens of the city like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Thanks for considering the meaning of freedom.

Sincerely,

Barbara Wright
113 Hidden Hollow Ct
Phoenixville, PA 19460

From: Graig Janssen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Thursday, June 28, 2012 9:49:27 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I have never purchased a sweet beverage larger than 16 oz and don't plan to anytime soon. However, I believe this proposed ban represents a dangerous encroachment on the individual rights of New Yorkers.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas. Freedom is what made and continues to make New York City great.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Graig Janssen
643 Vanderbilt Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11238

From: Kenneth Russell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 5:39:28 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I am a New Yorker, although not a citizen of the city I live in up-state NY, and find your decision to ban "ANYTHING", Offensive! Who do you think you are "God"? Since when did you join the Communist/Socialist parties?

Please, make your true political agenda, and alliance, public, so we know who, and what we are voting for, the next election.

I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Russell
130 Forest St
Gloversville, NY 12078

From: Dylan Theobald, J
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 6:59:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

This ban is a further infringement in our rights as citizens

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Dylan Theobald
9032 153rd Ave
Howard Beach, NY 11414

From: Steven Odierna
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 7:09:44 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

If you don't want to get gay married, don't. If you don't want to get an abortion, don't. If you don't want to buy a big beverage don't. If you don't trust people to make their own personal choices, you really don't get public service.

Sincerely,

Steven Odierna
290 Drake Ave
New Rochelle, NY 10805

From: Gavin Skeen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 7:09:48 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I usually don't drink sweetened beverages. But I am a bigger sort of guy; 6'4", 210 lbs. After a particularly strenuous work out sometimes I do like to have an energy drink like Gatorade. It costs more to buy multiple little bottles than it does to buy one big bottle. And frankly, 16 ounces sometimes still seems too small. Why should I be held to the same standard as a smaller person? I know my body, and I know that I am the best judge of what I put into it.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

The proposed soft drink ban treads down a slippery slope. If you want to create a society of lawbreakers, create so many laws that people cannot breathe without breaking one. The end result will be citizens losing respect for your authority on things much bigger than beverage consumption. This should be an easy decision. Protect personal freedom. Vote down the beverage ban.

Sincerely,

Gavin Skeen
2626 Kings Hwy
Brooklyn, NY 11229

From: juliet konieczny
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:29:37 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

as a new york resident...i wish to have the freedom to choose what i want to eat, drink and see...

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

please stop taking away our rights as individuals....it is our lives and choice....

Sincerely,

juliet konieczny
362 Guy Park Ave
Amsterdam, NY 12010

From: KEVIN SCANLON, SR
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 8:59:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

MAYOR BLOOMBERG TAKES ONLY A $1.00 A YEAR SALARY AND HE IS STILL OVERPAID.

Sincerely,

KEVIN SCANLON
5917 58th Dr
Maspeth, NY 11378

From: Eve Grossi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:19:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Eve Grossi
60 Van Bomel Blvd
Oakdale, NY 11769

From: Margarita Dunphy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:19:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Thank you

PS:Can We get Voter ID Law passed for the State of NY

Sincerely,

Margarita Dunphy
8636 15th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11228

From: Theresa Girolamo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:29:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Theresa Girolamo
7972 77th Rd
Glendale, NY 11385

From: Michael Doherty
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:29:36 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Michael Doherty
222 Roxbury Ave
Rockaway Point, NY 11697

From: Margaret Milona
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:29:41 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Margaret Milona
45 Sutton Pl S
New York, NY 10022

From: Jerome Girolamo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:30:16 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jerome Girolamo
7972 77th Rd
Glendale, NY 11385

From: CATHY BAILEY
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:39:29 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

AS AN AMERICAN CITIZEN, I AM TIRED OF THE GOVERNMENT TAKING AWAY MY FREEDOMS.....IN THIS CASE, MY FREEDOM TO CHOOSE. NO ONE SHOULD TELL ME WHAT TO EAT, DRINK OR HOW MUCH. IF YOU TRULY BELIEVE THIS IS GOING TO STOP OBESITY YOU ARE FOOLING YOURSELF. PEOPLE WILL CONTINUE TO JUST "DOUBLE-UP" AND BUY EXTRA.
PLEASE FIND SOMETHING MORE IMPORTANT TO DO WITH YOUR TIME!

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

A BIG PART OF BEING AMERICAN IS THAT IT IS NOT "ONE SIZE FITS ALL"
THANK YOU.

Sincerely,

CATHY
6415 60th Pl
Ridgewood, NY 11385

From: GARY ELDRED
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:50:08 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I TAKE SEVERAL MEDICATIONS, MORE THEN 10 OF THEM STATE THAT A SIDEAFFECT IS WEIGHT GAIN.....DO I STOP TAKING MY MEDS??????

Sincerely,

GARY M ELDRED
(EVEN Range 7400 - 7418) MUENCH RD
LIVERPOOL, NY 13088

From: maureen seaquist
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:50:09 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

In fact, when I take my family to a fast food- not often but we do we share a larger drink for the cost savings. You should not take that option away from us!

Sincerely,

Maureen Seaquist
155 Fairfield St
Staten Island, NY 10308

From: Sandra Fink
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:29:38 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Sandra Fink
1306 Dorset Dr
Tarrytown, NY 10591

From: Nancy Lynam
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:59:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

This act is overkill. The best and most that should be done here...is to educate people. It is free will to make choices for ourselves. You are not God. God made rules, yet offers free will to abide by them. This is fairly audacious of you to think you can exert such control. If you are truly concerned about the health of individuals, then try appealing to the manufacturers of sugary products to find a way to produce something more healthy. This attempt to control people is absurd.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I do not live in NYC, but I do live in the state of New York. I oppose such legislation because it will filter into other parts of the state and country if allowed. I strongly feel you are overstepping boundaries in this case.

Sincerely,

Nancy A. Lynam
15 Dove Ct
Lagrangeville, NY 12540

From: Jeffrey Nichols
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 9:59:27 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

ARE YOU CRAZY ...I DONT even let my mother tell me what to drink or what not to drink. Be a parent to your own family, I already have mine. Get a clue will you please.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Nichols
6 Ball St
Hoosick Falls, NY 12090

From: Darci Gerdes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 10:09:54 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Agains't ban.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

This will hurt our economy even more by buseness not being allowed to sell as much soda as they want. People will lose there job if sales of soda fall short.

Sincerely,

Darci L. Gerdes
PO Box 191
Benson, IL 61516

From: Christine Colletta
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 10:09:54 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

C. Colletta
13002 59th Ave
Flushing, NY 11355

From: Joseph Garcia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 10:19:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Joseph Garcia
195 Surf Dr
Bronx, NY 10473

From: HARVEY PASCAL
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 10:19:53 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

DEAR MR MAYOR, YOU OVERSTEP YOUR AUTHORITY BY WANTING TO CONTROL LIVES OF PEOPLE, PEOPLE ARE ACCOUNTABLE FOR THEIR ACTIONS AND CHOICES AND YOU SHOULD RESPECT THAT. LEAVE YOUR EGO AT HOME IN THE MORNING WHEN YOU LEAVE FOR WORK, BETTER YET RESIGN AND RETURN TO BEING A BILLIONAIRE.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

HARVEY PASCAL
7800 Shore Front Pkwy Apt 9P
Rockaway Beach, NY 11693

From: Diane Nieves
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 10:29:53 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Diane Nieves
649 Leonard St
Brooklyn, NY 11222

From: Mr. & Mrs. John Antonuk
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 10:39:53 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely, John & Henrietta Antonuk

John T Antonuk
251 Macarthur Rd
Cold Brook, NY 13324

From: Yan Wolfson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 10:52:02 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Government efforts should be directed at reducing it's costs which are unsustainable, and not needless regulations that are offensive.

Sincerely,

Yan Wolfson
247 Water St
New York, NY 10038

From: Esmail khoshsepehr
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 10:52:06 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Esmail khoshsepehr
357 W 54th St
New York, NY 10019

From: louise Angelino
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:29:39 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Do not tell me what I can drink and how much. The nerve to tell me I can always buy 2 drinks if I want more to drink. The obesity problem stems from the fact people do not anything physical anymore.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Louise Angelino
790 11th Ave Apt 19G
New York, NY 10019

From: Leonilla Hones
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 11:03:53 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Leonilla Hones
149 Varinna Dr
Rochester, NY 14618

From: fred voss
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 11:03:58 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

In closing allow me to say its time a government agency came in on the side of the public instead of closing ranks around a few politicians who never seem to consider public opinion anymore. They always seem to think they know what's good for us. It should be our choice.

Sincerely, Fred

Newshawk
85 Canisteo St
Hornell, NY 14843

From: Michelle Rivera
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 11:10:01 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Michelle Rivera
3304 Rochambeau Ave
Bronx, NY 10467

From: Margaret Leonard
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 11:33:01 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Margaret Leonard
1115 Cross Bay Blvd
Far Rockaway, NY 11693

From: Mary Potter
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 11:39:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Mary E Potter
732 Old Kings Rd
Hannacroix, NY 12087

From: jane minondo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 11:50:19 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Parenting should handle these issues...not the Mayor

Sincerely,

jane minondo
298 17th St
Brooklyn, NY 11215

From: Ileana Stancu
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 11:50:19 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Ileana Stancu
165 81st Ave # 34
Kew Gardens, NY 11415

From: Sharon Barnes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 12:10:03 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

New York, of all places, should be considered a center for individual liberty, not an over active government that is constantly telling us what to do in the most personal areas of our life.

Sincerely,

Sharon Barnes
437 Clinton Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11238

From: young kim
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 12:19:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

young kim
365 Plandome Rd
Manhasset, NY 11030

From: JILLIAN MERCADO
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 12:29:43 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jillian M. Mercado
784 Bryant Ave
New Hyde Park, NY 11040

From: Anna Marie Franzese
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:29:42 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Getting out of hand, how much more control does he want to put on us. Please reject this proposed ban. We should be free to buy whatever size we want. What will be next, telling us what to eat when to shop, when we can go on vacation.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Anna Marie Franzese
8615 24th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11214

From: Patricia Ogden
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 12:39:53 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

What's next? Banning bakeries, candy, fruit juice? All have high sugar content, not to mention many, many more foods. So the food police will be checking up on us? You people have got to get a grip on reality and read the constitution of this once great country.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I can't believe you are seriously considering this.

Sincerely,

Patricia Ogden
892 Hill Ave
Pine Bush, NY 12566

From: Michele Kaminski
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 12:39:54 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

It is none of your business what size drink we get. Worry about yourself and your own health and the millions u make every year over people who have died. It's no wonder u want to close firehouses in every borough. For every funeral in NYS he receives $40 from families before u can walk into a cemetery.. He made over $2 million last year.. That is disgusting and u should be ashamed. Put our money to good use somewhere else not in your pocket

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Michele Kaminski
59 Jerome Ave
Staten Island, NY 10305

From: Mr. & Mrs. Carl Mazzella
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 12:59:45 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm sick and tired of Bloombergs Dictatorship. He is a horrible Mayor. . I'm a grown man I dont need some over the hill mayor telling me what I can and cant drink. This is America LAND OF THE FREE. the nutrition issue should be left in the hands of the individual. If you want to get fat so be it. Bloomberg nor anyone else should be allowed to impose their choices on any other americans. Its a matter of choice also after they shirnk the size of the soda they will just charge more for a lesser amount. I am a taxpayer and moreso an american born and raised. Bloomberg neds to shut that hole in his face.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Tell them to shove there calorie chart where the sun doesnt shine

Sincerely,

C.Mazzella
694 9th Ave
New York, NY 10036

From: Larry Kapuschat
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 12:59:45 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Larry Kapuschat
1090 Hatch Rd
Webster, NY 14580

From: Anthony Rovira
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 1:00:45 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

This is the most invasive, encroaching, disgusting, wasteful, unnecessary and unconstitutional type of polio rival policy. Tell emperor Bloomberg to go buy himself a private island where he can dictate the laws of the land while his girlfriend tickles his arse just the way he likes.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I'll just buy two 16 oz bottles instead of one, thereby wasting more plastic or glass and producing more waste in manufacturing and in terms of refuse.

Sincerely,

Anthony Rovira
357 59th St
Brooklyn, NY 11220

From: Alicia Quintero
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 2:19:57 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

A. Quintero
59 W Center St
Beacon, NY 12508

From: Gladys Byron
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 2:30:16 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Stop telling people what they can drink or eat. What is this world coming to we are not babies.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Gladys Byron
58 Rome Ln
Ontario, NY 14519

From: Jacqueline Buonomo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 4:20:45 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Jacqueline Buonomo
555 Taxter Rd Ste 5
Elmsford, NY 10523

From: MaryFilomena Bernardez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 4:20:45 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I have been a New Yorker all my life,I live in Queens and have enjoyed all there is to offer here.Citi Field,the mall,Rockaway beach etc.I think it is wrong for the mayor to try and control what people may or a not want to drink.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

As this letter states,it should be up to me and my fellow New Yorkers what we would like to drink.Trying to regulate our beverage intake is not going to solve the obesity problem.I do strongly believe as it says exercise and a healthy lifestyle is the answer,and to even think of putting a limit on sports drinks makes no sense to me.Sport drinks fuel you before and after a work out and keep you hydrated through out the day.I am not obese and I do not believe everyone should have restrictions placed on them by the government.It should be up to the people,not the government.

Sincerely,

MaryFilomena Bernardez
5723 162ND ST
FRESH MEADOWS, NY 11365

From: Joseph Sharff
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 4:20:46 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Joseph Sharff
2130 Williamsbridge Rd Apt 3E
Bronx, NY 10461

From: Rise Gluck
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Wednesday, June 27, 2012 10:29:44 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Rise Gluck
5601 Riverdale Ave
Bronx, NY 10471

From: Katie Lynch
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 5:26:59 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I think that by changing the size of the drink is letting people off the hook with taking responsibility for their own choices.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Katie Lynch
8318 10th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11228

From: Janet Bradley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 5:27:00 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

Our state and federal governments are already too involved in our lives and how we choose to conduct them. Mayor Bloomberg may have the best interest of our health in mind, but it is not his decision to make.

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas. Rather than restricting the size, maybe more options (such as in the soft drink dispensers) like a separate tab for flavored seltzer could be added as an option.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Janet Bradley
44 Crescent Bnd
Allendale, NJ 07401

From: KEVIN HILDNER
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 5:27:00 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

KEVIN C. HILDNER
423 41st St
Brooklyn, NY 11232

From: Merri Moken
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 5:27:00 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods. This is an improper attack on big businesses, and even small mom-and-pop stores in our country.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

This wholly inappropriate extension and intrusion of the government into our lives must be stopped. The Mayor's imposition of his will on the citizens of New York and the US is tantamount to socialism. This country is about FREEDOM and CHOICES.

The American public should not be penalized by having to buy at a higher price two smaller bottles of soda, for instance, as opposed to the larger one. This penalty also results in the addition of yet one more plastic bottle into a landfill. The American public is not so stupid as to need the government to tell us what to eat, or drink, or do and when we can do it. The American public can make its own choices and live with the consequences - good or bad.

Stop this overbearing intrusion into our personal lives, impinging on our individual liberties and keep the government out of our kitchens and personal lives.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

MCM
15 Broad St
New York, NY 10005

From: Arnold Fischer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 5:39:45 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

I am very concerned with this ban, regardless how well meaning the city may think it is, we have to take a stand. What could possibly be next, alcohol ban, fast food restaurant ban, how many children you can have, you must realize this is becoming a communist form of government.

Sincerely,

Arnold Fischer
35 Abbey St
Kingston, NY 12401

From: Ralph Verde Rose
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 5:49:28 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

As scary as it may be, adults should be responsible for making their own choices even if it is to buy a 32 ounce beverage or two 16 ounce beverages.

Sincerely,

Ralph Verde Rose
1906 3rd Ave
New York, NY 10029

From: Patsy Fucale, Jr
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 6:19:28 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

A ban such as this is a direct infringement on the rights and freedom of all Americans. This resembles something that I would expect to take place in a Communist country such as Cuba.

Sincerely,

P.J. Fucale
152A N Broadway
White Plains, NY 10603

From: Victoria Kavanagh
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 6:38:37 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

One other thing, if people want more soda, they'll buy the 16 oz and then buy another 16 oz. So, in effect, they have 32 oz. but pay more.

Sincerely,

Victoria Kavanagh
410 E 74th St Apt 7A
New York, NY 10021

From: Barbara Sprague
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 7:09:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Barbara Sprague
8431 60th Ave
Middle Village, NY 11379

From: Michelle Grey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Friday, June 29, 2012 7:09:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York resident, I am writing you today to ask that you reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Michelle Grey
58 First St Apt 3F
Yonkers, NY 10704

From: John Smith
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: Opposition Comment: Size of sugary drinks
Date: Tuesday, June 26, 2012 2:09:51 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

John Smith
100 1st Ave
New York, NY 10009

From: Yaakov Pollack
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 2:40:07 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Yaakov Pollack
1322 Caffrey Ave
Far Rockaway, NY 11691

From: Brian Byrnes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Sunday, July 08, 2012 10:19:30 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Brian Byrnes
9053 Shore Pkwy Apt 2
Howard Beach, NY 11414

From: Veronica Radoman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Sunday, July 08, 2012 8:09:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Veronica Radoman
95 Rose St
Hastings on Hudson, NY 10706

From: Darren lieberman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Sunday, July 08, 2012 10:29:49 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely, D.Lieberman

Darren lieberman
601 Surf Ave Apt A
Brooklyn, NY 11224

From: george.mcgovern
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 8:49:49 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

george mcgovern
260 Main St Apt 213
Little Falls, NJ 07424

From: John Rabsatt
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 10:29:26 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

John Rabsatt
5858 78th Ave
Ridgewood, NY 11385

From: Jacob Grossman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 12:29:53 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Jacob Grossman
172 Thompson St Apt 14
New York, NY 10012

From: Barry Getzow
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 09, 2012 2:51:35 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Barry Getzow
5482 Mount Vernon Way
Dunwoody, GA 30338

From: Barbara Robinson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 10, 2012 12:29:34 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Barbara Robinson
PO Box 3856
New York, NY 10163

From: Will Connolly
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 10, 2012 8:00:29 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Will Connolly - Free American
356 Morsetown Rd
West Milford, NJ 07480

From: Tina Donde
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 10, 2012 10:39:25 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Tina Donde
3667 Hunt Rd
Wantagh, NY 11793

From: Loree Mizzi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 6:09:28 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Loree Mizzi
11310 103rd Ave
South Richmond Hill, NY 11419

From: David Byers
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 10, 2012 2:29:36 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely, David Byers

David Byers
PO Box 1734
Atlanta, GA 30301

From: Miriam Andrusier
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 10, 2012 2:40:03 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Miriam Andrusier
577 Montgomery St
Brooklyn, NY 11225

From: William Carter
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 10, 2012 8:39:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

William Carter
100 Park Ter W Apt 6B
New York, NY 10034

From: JOHN ACEVEDO, JR
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 10, 2012 9:19:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

JOHN M. ACEVEDO JR
1528 Ericson Pl
Bronx, NY 10461

From: Bonny Glavin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 8:09:58 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely, Bonny Glavin

Bonny Glavin
121 Pine St
Oceanside, NY 11572

From: Eric De
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 8:19:43 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Eric De
1 Jefferson Ave
Rockville Centre, NY 11570

From: Taina Alvarez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 3:29:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Taina Alvarez
920 40th St
Brooklyn, NY 11219

From: Steve Smart
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 4:40:03 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely, Steve S

Steve S
5 Rudolph Dr Apt 2U
Carle Place, NY 11514

From: Karen Reimer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 4:59:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Karen L. Reimer
800 3rd Ave Fl 26
New York, NY 10022

From: Richard Hauser
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 5:09:37 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Richard Hauser
11236 69th Rd
Forest Hills, NY 11375

From: Karen Li
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 04, 2012 6:29:26 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Karen Li
555 W 52nd St
New York, NY 10019

From: Edward Flounoy Jr
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 11, 2012 5:19:31 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Edward Flounoy Jr
2287 Mott Ave Apt 3F
Far Rockaway, NY 11691

From: Jeffrey Serzon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Thursday, July 12, 2012 4:09:48 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Serzon
21614 68th Ave
Oakland Gardens, NY 11364

From: Louis Putallaz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Friday, July 13, 2012 8:20:21 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Louis Putallaz
10837 71st Ave Apt 6H
Forest Hills, NY 11375

From: Sandy Lij
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Friday, July 13, 2012 11:53:58 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Sandy Lij
4615 Center Blvd Apt 1211
Long Island City, NY 11109

From: Michelle Rodriguez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Saturday, July 14, 2012 10:09:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Michelle Rodriguez
175 Schenectady Ave Apt 8
Brooklyn, NY 11213

From: Kirill Masychev
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Sunday, July 15, 2012 5:39:30 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Kirill Masychev
2157 Ocean Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11229

From: Harry Palama
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Sunday, July 15, 2012 7:59:27 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Harry Palama
190 Wyckoff Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11237

From: anna.candela
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 16, 2012 3:59:31 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

anna.candela
1418 Newbridge Rd
Bellmore, NY 11710

From: Kristie Contreras
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:09:58 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Kristie Contreras
36 Westcott Blvd
Staten Island, NY 10314

From: jak daragjati
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:49:59 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

jak daragjati
43 brandis
Staten Island, NY 10312

From: Rose Evans
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 04, 2012 9:49:34 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Rose Evans
23608 120th Ave
Cambria Heights, NY 11411

From: Salvatore Giamundo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:59:55 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Salvatore Giamundo
26058 73rd Ave
Glen Oaks, NY 11004

From: Alfonso Soto
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:49:34 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Alfonso Soto
PO Box 564263
College Point, NY 11356

From: Nicholas Scafura
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 8:29:43 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Nicholas P. Scafura
21 Julia Ln
East Northport, NY 11731

From: Sean Donavon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:09:40 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Sean Donavon
2887 Five Mile Rd
Allegany, NY 14706

From: Pat Vitola
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:52:54 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Pat Vitola
270 Earle Ave
Lynbrook, NY 11563

From: David Schoenborn
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 11:29:29 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

David Schoenborn
1375 Rocky Creek Ct
Belleville, IL 62220

From: Howard Hacker
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 8:09:56 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Howard Hacker
398 Main St
Otego, NY 13825

From: Janet Feller
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 12:59:46 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Janet Feller
22304 59th Ave
Oakland Gardens, NY 11364

From: Jessica Perrone
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 4:49:28 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Jessica Perrone
567 82nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11209

From: Richard Hardy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 9:19:54 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Richard Hardy
701 Ridgebury Rd
Slate Hill, NY 10973

From: Alison Abrams
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Thursday, July 05, 2012 6:39:30 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Alison Abrams
1 Stuyvesant Oval Apt 4E
New York, NY 10009

From: Angel Rodriguez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 9:29:34 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Angel Rodriguez
2064 Crotona Ave Bsmt
Bronx, NY 10457

From: Richard Hardy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 9:29:58 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Richard Hardy
701 Ridgebury Rd
Slate Hill, NY 10973

From: Michael Fetta
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 9:30:03 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Michael Fetta
2435 Bedford St Unit 19C
Stamford, CT 06905

From: Robert Griffith
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 10:29:24 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Robert Griffith
10 Raymond Ave
Spring Valley, NY 10977

From: Yuri Estrada
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 10:39:53 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Yuri Estrada
605 3rd Ave
New York, NY 10158

From: miguel peralta
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 10:49:24 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

miguel peralta
145 Audubon Ave Apt 5A
New York, NY 10032

From: Dawn Henry
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 11:29:50 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Dawn Henry
8310 Turnpike Dr
Westminster, CO 80031

From: Heather Neely
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 11:29:52 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Heather Neely
1009 N Crest Dr
Olathe, KS 66061

From: Scott Pascucci
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 1:29:57 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Scott Pascucci
3143 Trinity St
Oceanside, NY 11572

From: Maureen Dempsey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 1:30:12 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Maureen Dempsey
129 Downes Ave
Staten Island, NY 10312

From: Richard Nieto
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Friday, July 06, 2012 2:50:05 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Richard Nieto
3342 156th St
Flushing, NY 11354

From: Roberta O'Hanlon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 4:20:00 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Roberta O'Hanlon
3 Moody Pl
Staten Island, NY 10310

From: JOEL RUBIN
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 7:30:05 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

JOEL RUBIN
1230 Avenue X Apt 2C
Brooklyn, NY 11235

From: emily LOGAN
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 7:39:37 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

emily LOGAN
9013 Holland Ave
Rockaway Beach, NY 11693

From: james.gallagher
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 7:39:38 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

james.gallagher
18 Graham Pl
Breezy Point, NY 11697

From: Nino Getts
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Friday, July 06, 2012 4:39:31 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Nino Getts
7 Lincoln Pl
Ossining, NY 10562

From: marian krigsher
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Saturday, July 07, 2012 9:49:30 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

m krigsher
73 Cedar Dr W
Plainview, NY 11803

From: Amanda Swallow
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Sunday, July 08, 2012 5:40:27 AM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Amanda Swallow
67 Hanson Pl Apt 9E
Brooklyn, NY 11217

From: Jack Lester
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: The government is getting too involved in our lives.
Date: Tuesday, July 03, 2012 2:19:48 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

I'm writing to you because I believe it should be up to me-not the government-to make nutritional choices for my family.

A limit on beverage sizes will not limit consumption; it will only limit personal choice. Please say "No" to Mayor Bloomberg's ban on beverages over 16 ounces.

Sincerely,

Jack Lester
372 Bradley Ave
Staten Island, NY 10314

From: Care2 on behalf of Sibyll Gilbert
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:19 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Sibyll Gilbert
41 Game Farm Rd
Pawling, NY 12564-3427

From: Care2 on behalf of Anna Carhart
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:51 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Anna Carhart
300 Van Duzer St
Staten Island, NY 10304-2722

From: Care2 on behalf of Emma Smith
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:24:36 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Emma Smith
8206 229th St
Queens Village, NY 11427-2154

From: Care2 on behalf of Paolo Diamantini
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:24:40 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paolo Diamantini
210 Clinton Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11205-3438

From: Care2 on behalf of Ben Henderson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:24:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ben Henderson
501 W 52nd St
New York, NY 10019-5083

From: Care2 on behalf of William Johnson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:24:49 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Johnson
jeffords
Rush, NY 14543

From: Care2 on behalf of Danielle Amodeo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:25:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Danielle Amodeo
81 Wolverine St
Staten Island, NY 10306-2045

From: Care2 on behalf of Rubi Martinez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:25:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Rubi Martinez
16 Elliot Pl
Bronx, NY 10452-7152

From: Care2 on behalf of Brielle Gazzola
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:26:13 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Brielle Gazzola
132 Parkway Trailer Ct
Pomona, NY 10970-3131

From: Care2 on behalf of eileen murphy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:48:23 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Dear Mayor Bloomberg. Since when have you been made head of the NYC BoArd of Health? To my knowledge no one can ever finish 32 or 64 ounce drinks anyway. Leave people alone. Yours truly, Eileen Murphy (and I don't drink soda).

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. eileen murphy
2585 36th St
Astoria, NY 11103-4568

From: Care2 on behalf of judith weber
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:48:59 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. judith weber
50 Webster Ave
New Rochelle, NY 10801-6935

From: Care2 on behalf of Ivjn Zatz-Daz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:02 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Ivjn Zatz-Daz
526 W 111th St
New York, NY 10025-1976

From: Care2 on behalf of Thomas Jackamo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Thomas Jackamo
420 Grace Church Street
Rye, NY 10580

From: Care2 on behalf of William Davis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:02 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

The 99% need to JAIL the criminal class of rich people and nationalize ALL of the corrupt and fascist corporations!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. William Davis
129 Wittenberg Rd
Bearsville, NY 12409-5627

From: Care2 on behalf of ron wish
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:11 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. ron wish
112 Highmount Ave
Nyack, NY 10960-1509

From: Care2 on behalf of Tom Petrie
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:16 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

When will folks learn that sugar--whether in the form of sucrose, fructose, high fructose corn syrup or some other form is contributing to our national epidemic of obesity. Enough is enough! I so go Mayor Bloomberg!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Tom Petrie
38 Teneyck St
Stony Point, NY 10980-1537

From: Care2 on behalf of Monica Khan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:16 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Monica Khan
9233 240th St
Bellerose, NY 11426-1125

From: Care2 on behalf of Steven Young
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:17 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Steven Young
8 Peter Ln
Plainview, NY 11803-5632

From: Care2 on behalf of Tracey Lall
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:18 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Tracey Lall
3525 9th St
Astoria, NY 11106-5103

From: Care2 on behalf of Lori Morris
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Lori Morris
909 route 299
Gardiner, NY 12525

From: Care2 on behalf of Katherine Maradiaga
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:25 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Katherine Maradiaga
8917 117th St
Richmond Hill, NY 11418-3112

From: Care2 on behalf of Carl Yakubowski
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:29 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Carl Yakubowski
196 Rhynders Rd
Staatsburg, NY 12580-6249

From: Care2 on behalf of Brian Murphy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:34 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Brian Murphy
90 Broad St
New York, NY 10004-2205

From: Care2 on behalf of Lauren Nicaastro
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:01 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Lauren Nicaastro
160 Centre Ave
New Rochelle, NY 10805-2744

From: Care2 on behalf of anna lopez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:38 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. anna lopez
930 E 4th Walk Apt 2g
New York, NY 10009-7105

From: Care2 on behalf of Lucas Suarez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:43 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Lucas Suarez
411 W End Ave Apt 2a
New York, NY 10024-5780

From: Care2 on behalf of Jeffrey Rosen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49:48 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jeffrey Rosen
212 E 89th St Apt 5e
New York, NY 10128-3472

From: Care2 on behalf of Helene Tekulsky
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:52:42 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Helene Tekulsky
360 E 72nd St
New York, NY 10021-4753

From: Care2 on behalf of anne davis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:52:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. anne davis
484 W 43rd St
New York, NY 10036-6319

From: Care2 on behalf of Lawrence Nelson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:52:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Lawrence Nelson
14727 Charter Rd Apt A
Jamaica, NY 11435-1283

From: Care2 on behalf of Cyrille Phipps
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:52:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Cyrille Phipps
330-251
Brooklyn, NY 11221

From: Care2 on behalf of Richard Rheder
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:52:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Rheder
PO Box 931
Woodstock, NY 12498-0931

From: Care2 on behalf of Steve Bridge
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:52:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Steve Bridge
3227 Randolph Pl
Bronx, NY 10465-1261

From: Care2 on behalf of Christina Garafolo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:52:46 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Christina Garafolo
101 Beaumont Cir
Yonkers, NY 10710-2030

From: Care2 on behalf of Laura Wurzel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:01 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Laura Wurzel
440 Neptune Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11224-4455

From: Care2 on behalf of maryam.petersson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:10 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. maryam.petersson
77 limekiln rd
Eastchester, NY 10707

From: Care2 on behalf of Jennifer Henton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:12 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Jennifer Henton
7666 Austin St
Forest Hills, NY 11375-6901

From: Care2 on behalf of Nadine Heidinger
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:15 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nadine Heidinger
173 W 81st St
New York, NY 10024-7227

From: Care2 on behalf of Lily Jou
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:16 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lily Jou
103 Franklin St
Brooklyn, NY 11222-2059

From: Care2 on behalf of Laila Amatullah
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:17 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laila Amatullah
560 Main St
New York, NY 10044-0007

From: Care2 on behalf of Elizabeth Weitzen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:17 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Elizabeth Weitzen
88 Herkimer St Apt 14
Brooklyn, NY 11216-2722

From: Care2 on behalf of joan DeVagno
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:17 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. joan DeVagno
14125 Northern Blvd
Flushing, NY 11354-4281

From: Care2 on behalf of Clint Bahr
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:19 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Clint Bahr
PO Box 230582
New York, NY 10023-0010

From: Care2 on behalf of Laura Gorman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Laura Gorman
307 E 85th St
New York, NY 10028-4511

From: Care2 on behalf of Richard Terrone
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:24 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Terrone
1085 Frances Dr
Valley Stream, NY 11580-2124

From: Care2 on behalf of tatsiana.papademetriou
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:07 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. tatsiana.papademetriou
18ske gilead rd, carmel, ny
CARMEL, NY 10512

From: Care2 on behalf of Muiris Dore
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:28 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Muiris Dore
230 Ashland Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11217-1137

From: Care2 on behalf of Alaina Johnson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alaina Johnson
2664 E 7th St
Brooklyn, NY 11235-6219

From: Care2 on behalf of Michelle Hill
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Michelle Hill
901 Grand St Apt 3b
Brooklyn, NY 11211-2739

From: Care2 on behalf of f.sarter
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:42 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. f.sarter
234 E 83rd St
New York, NY 10028-2822

From: Care2 on behalf of Maria-Corina Figuera
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:46 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Maria-Corina Figuera
582 King St
Chappaqua, NY 10514-3537

From: Care2 on behalf of joe dimaio
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:53:51 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. joe dimaio
4005 Flatlands Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11234-3013

From: Care2 on behalf of tara.lav
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:54:50 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. tara.lav
1580 unin st
Brooklyn, NY 11213

From: Care2 on behalf of ben.velez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:54:56 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. ben velez
201 Eastern Pkwy
Brooklyn, NY 11238-6141

From: Care2 on behalf of Donna Kernahan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:55:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Donna Kernahan
15601 46th Ave
Flushing, NY 11355-2350

From: Care2 on behalf of Ted Bloom
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:55:05 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Ted Bloom
2517 Ditmars Blvd
Astoria, NY 11105-3120

From: Care2 on behalf of J. Jay Carlton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:11 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. J. Jay Carlton
100 Mamaroneck Ave
White Plains, NY 10601-4263

From: Care2 on behalf of Emmet Ryan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:55:09 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Emmet Ryan
523b W Broadway
E Atlantic Bch, NY 11561-3046

From: Care2 on behalf of Laura Berger
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:20:52 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Laura Berger
770 Westminster Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11230-2402

From: Care2 on behalf of Lynn Abdeldaiem
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:20:59 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Lynn Abdeldaiem
2770 Ocean Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11229-4748

From: Care2 on behalf of Ron Rodrigo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:02 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ron Rodrigo
PO Box 185
Glasco, NY 12432-0185

From: Care2 on behalf of Barbara Milano
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:03 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Milano
2350 Waters Edge Dr
Bayside, NY 11360-2232

From: Care2 on behalf of Jeremy Sussman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:04 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jeremy Sussman
7910 34th Ave
Jackson Heights, NY 11372-2437

From: Care2 on behalf of Omar Sidberry
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:20 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Omar Sidberry
2824 Steinway St
Astoria, NY 11103-3332

From: Care2 on behalf of Jackie Raven
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:20 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jackie Raven
235 E 89th St
New York, NY 10128-4385

From: Care2 on behalf of Kirk Lawrence
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:20 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kirk Lawrence
247 Railroad Ave
Sayville, NY 11782-2736

From: Care2 on behalf of Ron Kerner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:20 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ron Kerner
355 S End Ave Apt 22c
New York, NY 10280-1058

From: Care2 on behalf of Seth Greenleaf
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:12 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Seth Greenleaf
60 Cooper St
New York, NY 10034-3036

From: Care2 on behalf of Jennifer Velchek
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Jennifer Velchek
PO Box 268
Wawarsing, NY 12489-0268

From: Care2 on behalf of Molly Karp
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Molly Karp
212 Long Clove Rd
New City, NY 10956-6938

From: Care2 on behalf of morgan sirlin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. morgan sirlin
184 Lexington Ave
New York, NY 10016-6839

From: Care2 on behalf of Laura Godwin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:24 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laura Godwin
142 W 10th St
New York, NY 10014-3146

From: Care2 on behalf of Nick C
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:28 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Nick C
221 Suydam St
Brooklyn, NY 11237-3144

From: Care2 on behalf of Harriet Berson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Harriet Berson
123 Mannelto Hill Rd
Huntington, NY 11743-6632

From: Care2 on behalf of Samantha Kenny
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Samantha Kenny
6 Maple Ct
Rye Brook, NY 10573-1920

From: Care2 on behalf of William Herbert
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:21:51 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Herbert
513 Plattekill Ardonia Rd
Walkkill, NY 12589-4637

From: Care2 on behalf of Robert Feinstein
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:22:40 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Feinstein
150 E 19th St
Brooklyn, NY 11226-4881

From: Care2 on behalf of Petrina Poletti
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:22:44 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Petrina Poletti
4 Adelaide St
Huntington Station, NY 11746-3402

From: Care2 on behalf of Brigid Ismail
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:17 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Brigid Ismail
2132 80th St
East Elmhurst, NY 11370-1323

From: Care2 on behalf of Patricia Fallon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:22:46 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Patricia Fallon
24 Reed Rd
New Hamburg, NY 12590-5536

From: Care2 on behalf of Nimai Palomar
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:22:46 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Nimai Palomar
25 1st Ave
New York, NY 10003-9418

From: Care2 on behalf of Vanessa Gordon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:22:49 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Vanessa Gordon
PO Box 2395
Sag Harbor, NY 11963-0114

From: Care2 on behalf of Jennifer Savage
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:22:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jennifer Savage
36 E 69th St
New York, NY 10021-5019

From: Care2 on behalf of Florence Palmer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:22:58 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Florence Palmer
200 W 57th St
New York, NY 10019-3211

From: Care2 on behalf of Ken Hittel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:23:02 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ken Hittel
250 W 90th St
New York, NY 10024-1100

From: Care2 on behalf of Elizabeth Harvell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:23:07 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Elizabeth Harvell
56 Sommer Ave Apt 1a
Staten Island, NY 10314-3314

From: Care2 on behalf of Michael Kuzmyak
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:23:11 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Kuzmyak
Washingtonville
Ny, NY 10992

From: Care2 on behalf of gloria marchese
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:23:16 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

I think Mayor Bloomberg is doing a super job to my complete surprise. Expected nothing and got a jewel. Keep it up, u r an example to your fellow Mayors.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. gloria marchese
995 Fort Salonga Rd
Northport, NY 11768-2257

From: Care2 on behalf of Luis-Alfredo Cartagena Zayas
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:23:20 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Luis-Alfredo Cartagena Zayas
1010 Park Ave
New York, NY 10028-0903

From: Care2 on behalf of Patricia Rexer -euvrard
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Patricia Rexer -euvrard
32tulip st
Huntington, NY 11743

From: Care2 on behalf of Danelle Solomon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:23:44 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Danelle Solomon
44 lisp waned street
CANAL STREET, NY 10013

From: Care2 on behalf of Louisa James
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:23:49 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Louisa James
9815 Horace Harding Expy
Corona, NY 11368-4249

From: Care2 on behalf of karen salaun
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:23:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. karen salaun
21 Ridgefield Rd
Centerport, NY 11721-1505

From: Care2 on behalf of Stephen Leo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:23:58 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Stephen Leo
1185 Ashland Place
BROOKLYN, NY 11217

From: Care2 on behalf of Joyce Veishlow
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:24:03 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Joyce Veishlow
2333 Palmer Ave Apt 3f
New Rochelle, NY 10801-4623

From: Care2 on behalf of Adrienne Leifer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:24:07 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Adrienne Leifer
8 Cedar Dr E
Plainview, NY 11803-2010

From: Care2 on behalf of Mercedes E. Trejos
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:24:11 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Mercedes E Trejos
48 3rd Ave Huntington Sta NY
DIX HILLS, NY 11746

From: Care2 on behalf of Jennifer Cott
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:24:20 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jennifer Cott
500 E 83rd St Apt 3d
New York, NY 10028-7243

From: Care2 on behalf of sirena green
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:25:05 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. sirena green
604 Otis St
Kingston, NY 12401-1908

From: Care2 on behalf of Aaron Omlie
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:25:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Aaron Omlie
99 Norman Ave Apt 3r
Brooklyn, NY 11222-6230

From: Care2 on behalf of Mary Levitt
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:26 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Mary Levitt
792 Columbus Ave Apt 9r
New York, NY 10025-5124

From: Care2 on behalf of Lucille Caruso
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:25:41 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Lucille Caruso
107 Centennial Ave
North Baldwin, NY 11510-1915

From: Care2 on behalf of Maureen McMAhon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:25:42 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Maureen McMAhon
29 Arcadia Pl Apt 3a
Staten Island, NY 10310-2269

From: Care2 on behalf of Frank Quin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:25:58 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Frank Quin
195 Albany ave
Ki12401, NY 12501

From: Care2 on behalf of Michelle Benton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:26:01 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Michelle Benton
11 Park St
Gloversville, NY 12078-4322

From: Care2 on behalf of joan.gould
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:51:23 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. joan.gould
197 Saint Johns Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11217-3405

From: Care2 on behalf of laura.p
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:51:23 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. laura p
washington st
Ny, NY 10006

From: Care2 on behalf of LIA MATTHEWS
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:51:49 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. LIA MATTHEWS
8 Oak Dr
New Windsor, NY 12553-5818

From: Care2 on behalf of Thora Moss
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:51:50 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Thora Moss
774 Accabonac Rd
East Hampton, NY 11937-1878

From: Care2 on behalf of Harriet Weissman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:53:38 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Harriet Weissman
DeHAven Drive
Yonkers, NY 10703

From: Care2 on behalf of claudia.vrabie
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:53:55 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. claudia vrabie
371 Merrick Rd
Rockville Centre, NY 11570-5359

From: Care2 on behalf of Erobos Lamashtu
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:19 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Erobos Lamashtu
3 W 29th St Rm 1030
New York, NY 10001-4567

From: Care2 on behalf of lisa monte
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:30 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. lisa monte
20 Paladino Ave
New York, NY 10035-2501

From: Care2 on behalf of Gail Zwerman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:55:11 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Gail Zwerman
7 Cherry Ln
Huntington, NY 11743-2943

From: Care2 on behalf of John Lazarek
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:55:11 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Lazarek
12 Walnut Pl
Lindenhurst, NY 11757-6334

From: Care2 on behalf of Arthur Schurr
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:55:12 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Arthur Schurr
369 Warren St
Brooklyn, NY 11201-6412

From: Care2 on behalf of Scott Williams
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:55:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Scott Williams
99 Gary Pl
Staten Island, NY 10314-3738

From: Care2 on behalf of Kelly Tellez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:55:26 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kelly Tellez
Bay 13th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214

From: Care2 on behalf of eli hegeman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:55:56 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. eli hegeman
100riverside
Ny, NY 10024

From: Care2 on behalf of Elaine Gerhardstein
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:55:57 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Elaine Gerhardstein
2 Sorrento Ct
Miller Place, NY 11764-2651

From: Care2 on behalf of Joanne Sullivan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:55:57 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Someone has to start somewhere!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Joanne Sullivan
19635 53rd Ave
Fresh Meadows, NY 11365-1701

From: Care2 on behalf of Johanna Miklos
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:56:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Johanna Miklos
141 Post Ln
Southampton, NY 11968-4920

From: Care2 on behalf of Edmund Durso
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:56:05 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Edmund Durso
304 Piermont Ave
Piermont, NY 10968-1216

From: Care2 on behalf of jorge serio
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:35 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. jorge serio
50 W 13th St
New York, NY 10011-7902

From: Care2 on behalf of Tim Rotella
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:58:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Tim Rotella
t
ny, NY 11720

From: Care2 on behalf of Jay Scott
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:58:49 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jay Scott
alden rd
Monroe, NY 10950

From: Care2 on behalf of Carol Elias
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:58:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carol Elias
21 Middlebury Ave
Massena, NY 13662-2519

From: Care2 on behalf of Al Koye
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:21:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Al Koye
300 E 39th St Ph E
New York, NY 10016-0337

From: Care2 on behalf of Patricia Cuzzo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:21:02 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Patricia Cuzzo
329 Vanderbilt St
Brooklyn, NY 11218-1015

From: Care2 on behalf of Neil Alexander
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:21:02 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Neil Alexander
4227 164th St
Flushing, NY 11358-2619

From: Care2 on behalf of Charles Jones
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:21:03 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Charles Jones
1296 E 3rd Ave
Bay Shore, NY 11706-5541

From: Care2 on behalf of R. Ryce-Paul
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:21:14 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. R Ryce-Paul
172 Attorney St
New York, NY 10002-1837

From: Care2 on behalf of David Tabakman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:21:52 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. David Tabakman
599 Ralph Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11233-5113

From: Care2 on behalf of Ashley Anderson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:22:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ashley Anderson
39 Woodcrest Dr
Hopewell Junction, NY 12533-6332

From: Care2 on behalf of Peter Maniscalco
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:50:39 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Peter Maniscalco
52 Ava Ct
Manorville, NY 11949-2516

From: Care2 on behalf of Matt Howard
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:22:46 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Matt Howard
12 W 104th St
New York, NY 10025-4355

From: Care2 on behalf of Kalki Collins
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:22:50 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kalki Collins
108 Wooster St
New York, NY 10012-5207

From: Care2 on behalf of soraya seifts
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:22:55 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

The answer is NO!!!! Mayor Bloomberg, this is unacceptable! Children don't need sugar in their diets to be healthy. they need good nutrition instead, a very hard endeavor for parents of limited resources, since food!! and GOOD FOOD!!! at that is so very expensive. The consumption of sugar is only good for those that fill their pockets with the sale of this additive. Enough!!! STOP! lying to us and be the mayor we need you to be by opposing this proposition.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. soraya seifts
5258 Arthur Kill Rd
Staten Island, NY 10307-1153

From: Care2 on behalf of Nancy Sosa
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:22:59 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Nancy Sosa
157 22nd St # 3
Brooklyn, NY 11232-1105

From: Care2 on behalf of Shania Robinson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:24:36 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Shania Robinson
57 Division St
Schenectady, NY 12304-1103

From: Care2 on behalf of ingrid.menendez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:24:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

No portion limit, eliminate poison from our children's diet. They are the future.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. ingrid menendez
730 Fort Washington Ave
New York, NY 10040-3738

From: Care2 on behalf of regina.davydov
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:24:39 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. regina.davydov
2619 E 24th St
Brooklyn, NY 11235-2628

From: Care2 on behalf of Marilyn Raymond
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:25:27 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

I support Mayor Bloomberg's plan for "reasonable sized" sugary drinks wherever they are served. People never like being told what to do even when it for the betterment... Eating and drinkiing wisely is necessary for good health and controlling the amount of sweets is a critical part of it.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Marilyn Raymond
120 Franklin Ave
Yonkers, NY 10705-2808

From: Care2 on behalf of Diane Allid
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:25:27 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Diane Allid
7822 45th Ave
Elmhurst, NY 11373-2952

From: Care2 on behalf of Alyson FitzPatrick
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:28:03 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Alyson FitzPatrick
3 Shoredale Dr
Manhasset, NY 11030-2221

From: Care2 on behalf of Mariana Salerno
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:53:15 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Mariana Salerno
201 E 19th St Apt 9j
New York, NY 10003-2626

From: Care2 on behalf of Rita Battaglia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:28:03 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rita Battaglia
179 Bay 25th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214-4815

From: Care2 on behalf of ElleN Dellis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:28:03 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. ElleN Dellis
215-02 23rd.road ny
BAY TERRACE, NY 11360

From: Care2 on behalf of Kasia Yechimowicz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:51:05 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Sugar is toxic. This has been known since the 1950s. Sugar should be strictly limited in ALL foods at the point of processing. No one should be consuming more than 20 pounds of sugar across all foods in a single year.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Kasia Yechimowicz
38th street
New York, NY 10011

From: Care2 on behalf of healYOU.naturally
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:51:15 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. healYOU naturally
1234 Private ST
Long Island, NY 11735

From: Care2 on behalf of Ellen Hill
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:51:20 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ellen Hill
43 Belden Ave
Dobbs Ferry, NY 10522-1101

From: Care2 on behalf of D. KURTZ
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:51:26 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. D. KURTZ
45 Sprucewood Blvd
Central Islip, NY 11722-4658

From: Care2 on behalf of Femi Johnson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:51:30 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Femi Johnson
2230 New Haven Ave
Far Rockaway, NY 11691-2539

From: Care2 on behalf of Gavin Sewell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:51:31 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gavin Sewell
119 Ingraham St
409
Brooklyn, NY 11237-1984

From: Care2 on behalf of irvey saltz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:51:36 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. irvey saltz
1 Broad Pkwy
White Plains, NY 10601-3733

From: Care2 on behalf of Rita Jongen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:53:04 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Rita Jongen
247 Rujtgers Street
Rochester, NY 14607

From: Care2 on behalf of Alex Brown
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:53:15 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Alex Brown
2604 Bainbridge Ave
Bronx, NY 10458-4613

From: Care2 on behalf of Peter Valdes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:53:27 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Peter Valdes
310 W 120th St Apt 2b
New York, NY 10027-6193

From: Care2 on behalf of Trish Alkaiis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:53:28 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Trish Alkaiis
269 W 132nd St
New York, NY 10027-7831

From: Care2 on behalf of Tahnya Mckinney
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:53:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Tahnya Mckinney
9 Red Creek Cir
Hampton Bays, NY 11946-1125

From: Care2 on behalf of cemil.guzelgurgeni
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:53:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. cemil guzelgurgeni
PO Box 182
Ronkonkoma, NY 11779-0182

From: Care2 on behalf of Oscar Yelin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:55:32 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Oscar Yelin
200 Riverside Blvd Apt 27a
New York, NY 10069-0905

From: Care2 on behalf of Arthur Sirois
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:55:36 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

In the land of the Brave and the Free. How about NYC helping India change the Practise of Manual Scavenging. Sign the Petition Please.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Arthur Sirois
117 Valley View Rd
Pleasant Valley, NY 12569-7226

From: Care2 on behalf of Lynne Simeone
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:55:41 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lynne Simeone
3849 Amboy Rd
Staten Island, NY 10308-2433

From: Care2 on behalf of Edward McKenna
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:55:42 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Edward McKenna
527 Meacham Ave
Elmont, NY 11003-3806

From: Care2 on behalf of Robert Harms
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:55:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Harms
sisson hwy
eden, NY 14057

From: Care2 on behalf of amy bratt
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:56:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. amy bratt
753 James St
Syracuse, NY 13203-2108

From: Care2 on behalf of Cor. Stokman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:53:15 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Cor Stokman
301 E 47th St
New York, NY 10017-2302

From: Care2 on behalf of adriana.tandler
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:56:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. adriana.tandler
2118 45th Ave
Long Island City, NY 11101-4704

From: Care2 on behalf of Barbara Levy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:56:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Levy
PO Box 514
Bellport, NY 11713-0514

From: Care2 on behalf of Corina Duperray
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:56:57 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Corina Duperray
8810 34th Ave
Jackson Heights, NY 11372-3440

From: Care2 on behalf of stacy babcock
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:21:10 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. stacy babcock
27 Barnes Dr
Garnerville, NY 10923-1728

From: Care2 on behalf of donna.buddenhagen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:21:14 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. donna.buddenhagen
16 Whitman Ave
Port Jefferson Station, NY 11776-2932

From: Care2 on behalf of Vanessa Gribbins
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:21:24 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Vanessa Gribbins
4151 63rd St
Woodside, NY 11377-5042

From: Care2 on behalf of Barbara Bobowicz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:23:43 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Bobowicz
717 Pat Farley Rd
S New Berlin, NY 13843-2153

From: Care2 on behalf of Rebecca Jalinis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:23:43 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rebecca Jalinis
101 Forest Ave Apt 3
Locust Valley, NY 11560-1738

From: Care2 on behalf of Tiffany Burke
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:23:44 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

NYC Board of Health needs to approve the mayor's proposal!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Tiffany Burke
13028 Francis Lewis Blvd
Laurelton, NY 11413-1841

From: Care2 on behalf of Paula Poons
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:23:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Paula Poons
831 Broadway
New York, NY 10003-4729

From: Care2 on behalf of Lauriane Suprien
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:53:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Lauriane Suprien
535 Parkside Ave Apt 1o
Brooklyn, NY 11226-1549

From: Care2 on behalf of Judith Matoff
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:24:39 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Judith Matoff
3297 Route 9g
Rhinebeck, NY 12572-3519

From: Care2 on behalf of Valerie Holmes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:24:48 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Valerie Holmes
28 Horan Rd
Slate Hill, NY 10973-4013

From: Care2 on behalf of stella fotinos
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:24:52 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. stella fotinos
2328 Swenson Pl
Bellmore, NY 11710-3013

From: Care2 on behalf of Doreen Arellano
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:24:57 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Doreen Arellano
926 Bronx Park S Apt 5b
Bronx, NY 10460-1646

From: Care2 on behalf of harry.riley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:25:01 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. harry.riley
780 Concourse VIg W Apt 6k
Bronx, NY 10451-3813

From: Care2 on behalf of Rachel Di Re
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:25:04 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Rachel Di Re
76 Maybrook Rd
Campbell Hall, NY 10916-2713

From: Care2 on behalf of Tim Harrison
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:25:06 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Tim Harrison
135 Massachusetts Ave
Congers, NY 10920-2832

From: Care2 on behalf of rose bresnahan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:25:10 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. rose bresnahan
1322 Darby Rd E
Wantagh, NY 11793-2415

From: Care2 on behalf of LOIS WHITE
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:25:15 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. LOIS WHITE
475 Beach 44th St
Far Rockaway, NY 11691-1223

From: Care2 on behalf of Gae Zimmermann
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:09 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Gae Zimmermann
133 Avenue D
New York, NY 10009-5307

From: Care2 on behalf of Janet Ostrowski
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:53:26 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Janet Ostrowski
6 Floral Dr E
Plainview, NY 11803-2006

From: Care2 on behalf of Valerie Miller
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:09 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Valerie Miller
15011 Arlington Ter
Addisleigh Park, NY 11433-2746

From: Care2 on behalf of Tania Marchand
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:15 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Tania Marchand
3742 Boul. Le carrefour
Laval, NY 12345

From: Care2 on behalf of David Randall
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:17 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. David Randall
5 Longacre Ct
Port Jefferson, NY 11777-1320

From: Care2 on behalf of laura Logan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:22 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. laura Logan
2036 E 74th St
Brooklyn, NY 11234-6233

From: Care2 on behalf of Donna Crockett
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:26 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Please take the time to sign in memory of little Aidan Jack Seeger so we can find the cure and prevent another child from suffering like Aidan, his family, and posse have. Although small in years Aidans memory can work miracles and move mountains with our help. Rest in Peace Aidan.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Donna Crockett
15843 83rd St
Howard Beach, NY 11414-2932

From: Care2 on behalf of Sharada Gregorio
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:35 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Sharada Gregorio
315 Route 308
Rhinebeck, NY 12572-2313

From: Care2 on behalf of Rich Capozzi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:40 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Rich Capozzi
618 Dean St
Brooklyn, NY 11238-3001

From: Care2 on behalf of Glen Aponte
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:40 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Glen Aponte
742B Metcalf Avenue
Bronx, NY 10473

From: Care2 on behalf of john macwhinnie
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:40 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. John MacWhinnie
261 Deerfield Rd
Water Mill, NY 11976-2112

From: Care2 on behalf of vanessa jones
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:56 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. vanessa jones
97 Boynton Ave
Plattsburgh, NY 12901-1232

From: Care2 on behalf of Tim Bell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:54:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Tim Bell
14 Verona Pl Apt 5
Brooklyn, NY 11216-2193

From: Care2 on behalf of brendan mc connell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:51:59 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. brendan mc connell
14 Ocean View Pkwy
Southampton, NY 11968-1816

From: Care2 on behalf of anstice.carroll
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:52:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. anstice carroll
622 Greenwich St
New York, NY 10014-3305

From: Care2 on behalf of carol_herd-rodriquez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:52:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. carol herd-rodriquez
445 broadway
Hastings, NY 10706

From: Care2 on behalf of Mary Ellen Szwejkowski
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:52:01 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Mary Ellen Szwejkowski
1945 Lincoln Ave
East Meadow, NY 11554-2521

From: Care2 on behalf of Robert Resnick
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:52:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Resnick
65 W 95th St
New York, NY 10025-6759

From: Care2 on behalf of Laurie Becker
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:53:12 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laurie Becker
28 Phillips Walk
West Babylon, NY 11704-7311

From: Care2 on behalf of erma daley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:53:17 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. erma daley
4161dereimer ave
Bronx, NY 10466

From: Care2 on behalf of Barry Brown
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:53:51 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Barry Brown
303 E 8th St
New York, NY 10009-5248

From: Care2 on behalf of JAMES KESSLER
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:53:55 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. JAMES KESSLER
489 15th St
Babylon, NY 11704-2611

From: Care2 on behalf of Jennifer Shields
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:53:57 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jennifer Shields
304 Clinton St
Lockport, NY 14094-2410

From: Care2 on behalf of thomas.bone
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:54:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. thomas bone
11706 202nd St
Saint Albans, NY 11412-3533

From: Care2 on behalf of ellen kole
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:54:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. ellen kole
3 Hanover Sq Apt 6f
New York, NY 10004-2620

From: Care2 on behalf of Danielle Wells
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:54:09 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Danielle Wells
875 Boynton Ave
Bronx, NY 10473-4750

From: Care2 on behalf of carol.messina
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:21:19 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. carol messina
2834 Albany Post Rd
Montgomery, NY 12549-2135

From: Care2 on behalf of Victoria Lepore
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:21:19 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Victoria Lepore
1346 Nepperhan Ave
Yonkers, NY 10703-1012

From: Care2 on behalf of Tatiana Brunetti
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:21:28 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Tatiana Brunetti
41 E 20th St
New York, NY 10003-1324

From: Care2 on behalf of Khadejar Dimson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:21:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Khadejar Dimson
870 Lenox Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11203-2519

From: Care2 on behalf of Charlotte Grillot
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:21:46 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Charlotte Grillot
406 W 56th St Apt 5e
New York, NY 10019-3652

From: Care2 on behalf of hilary basing
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:22:12 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. hilary basing
PO Box 310552
Brooklyn, NY 11231-0552

From: Care2 on behalf of sara colton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:22:12 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. sara colton
59 W 10th St
New York, NY 10011-8764

From: Care2 on behalf of Richard Neurohr-Paul
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:22:26 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Neurohr-Paul
736 Riverside Dr
New York, NY 10031-2410

From: Care2 on behalf of Christina Rodriguez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Christina Rodriguez
Varick Street
Manhattan, NY 10013

From: Care2 on behalf of JAMISON SARTESCHI
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:54:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. JAMISON SARTESCHI
XXX
New York, NY 10014

From: Care2 on behalf of laura kish
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:22:31 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. laura kish
1422 Exeter St
North Baldwin, NY 11510-1309

From: Care2 on behalf of Amy Darby
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:22:35 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Amy Darby
228 E 84th St
New York, NY 10028-5013

From: Care2 on behalf of Ciara Kosior
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:22:38 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Ciara Kosior
24 Catherine St
Apt 3
Brooklyn, NY 11211-2793

From: Care2 on behalf of Leigh Savoye
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:22:40 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Leigh Savoye
20 Ondaora Pkwy
Highland Falls, NY 10928-4011

From: Care2 on behalf of CINDY SUE EICHACKER
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:23:19 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. CINDY SUE EICHACKER
32 Hill St
Patchogue, NY 11772-3206

From: Care2 on behalf of Daniel Tudor
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:23:59 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Daniel Tudor
1244 President St
Brooklyn, NY 11225-1606

From: Care2 on behalf of Mary Ann Segal
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:25:58 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Mary Ann Segal
1306 Fteley Ave
Bronx, NY 10472-1743

From: Care2 on behalf of Suma Gopal
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:26:07 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Suma Gopal
8 Irvington St
Dobbs Ferry, NY 10522-2610

From: Care2 on behalf of MARY ANN TORRES
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:26:12 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. MARY ANN TORRES
161 Avenue P
Brooklyn, NY 11204-6458

From: Care2 on behalf of Arold Chery
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:27:15 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Arold Chery
642 Rockaway Pkwy
Brooklyn, NY 11236-1318

From: Care2 on behalf of Robert Chisolm
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:54:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Chisolm
630 Gramatan Ave Apt 2z
Mount Vernon, NY 10552-1833

From: Care2 on behalf of Eric Johnson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:27:15 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Eric Johnson
534 New Jersey Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207-5311

From: Care2 on behalf of Vanessa Rodriguez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:27:16 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Vanessa Rodriguez
20 Avenue D Apt 7a
New York, NY 10009-7016

From: Care2 on behalf of Odette Wilkens
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:29:17 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Odette Wilkens
6730 Dartmouth St
Forest Hills, NY 11375-4057

From: Care2 on behalf of Marlene FLEMENS
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:51:56 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Marlene FLEMENS
87 E 93rd St
Brooklyn, NY 11212-2365

From: Care2 on behalf of Kathy Fisher
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:52:06 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Kathy Fisher
1321 E 64th St
Brooklyn, NY 11234-5624

From: Care2 on behalf of luisa hermida
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:52:11 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. luisa hermida
36-42
Flushing, NY 11358

From: Care2 on behalf of Asha Murray
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:53:18 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Asha Murray
196 street
JAMAICA, NY 11412

From: Care2 on behalf of Rafael Rivera
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:53:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Rafael Rivera
201 W 93rd St Apt 15I
New York, NY 10025-7856

From: Care2 on behalf of Anita Clinton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:54:55 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Anita Clinton
75 Henry St
Brooklyn, NY 11201-1752

From: Care2 on behalf of Thomas Bain
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:55:51 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Thomas Bain
145 Park Ln
Rochester, NY 14625-2072

From: Care2 on behalf of Linda Matychak
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:54:51 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Linda Matychak
31 Briarcliff Pl
Huntington, NY 11743-1826

From: Care2 on behalf of chantina daniels
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:57:04 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. chantina daniels
130-13sutter ave
South Ozone,queens, NY 11420

From: Care2 on behalf of joe_wetherell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:57:08 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. joe wetherell
5 Yeoman Rd
Rocky Point, NY 11778-8634

From: Care2 on behalf of Karina Usach
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:57:13 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Karina Usach
501 Surf Ave Apt 14I
Brooklyn, NY 11224-3539

From: Care2 on behalf of Valeriy Marchukov
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:57:14 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Valeriy Marchukov
17 Cedarfield Ln
Westhampton, NY 11977-1234

From: Care2 on behalf of Christopher Bowles
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:57:14 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Christopher Bowles
1618E15thSt. Apt.3D Brooklyn NY
BROOKLYN, NY 11229

From: Care2 on behalf of Dan Arby
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:57:31 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Dan Arby
95 radburn drive
Smithtown, NY 11787

From: Care2 on behalf of Molly Nye
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:22:24 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Molly Nye
263 little mains rd Southampton ny
N SEA, NY 11968

From: Care2 on behalf of James McCarthy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:22:24 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. James McCarthy
1205 Bell Blvd
Beechhurst, NY 11357

From: Care2 on behalf of Marcus Costa
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:22:25 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Marcus Costa
208 Columbus Ave
New York, NY 10023-4002

From: Care2 on behalf of Maeve Klersfeld
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:22:26 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Maeve Klersfeld
W 150th St
New York, NY 10031

From: Care2 on behalf of michael genet
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:54:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. michael genet
9th Ave
New York, NY 10036

From: Care2 on behalf of Vera Strobel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:24:14 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Vera Strobel
New York
Nyc, NY 10021

From: Care2 on behalf of Narayana Angulo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:25:19 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Narayana Angulo
154 Broome St
New York, NY 10002-4057

From: Care2 on behalf of Joel Finley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:25:26 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Joel Finley
630 Kendrick St
Ogdensburg, NY 13669-3719

From: Care2 on behalf of Mara Brin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:25:27 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Mara Brin
129 Periwinkle Rd
Levittown, NY 11756-2320

From: Care2 on behalf of Rosalia Danta
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:25:36 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Rosalia Danta
14447 77th Rd
Flushing, NY 11367-3426

From: Care2 on behalf of dan efram
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:25:40 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. dan efram
342 E 15th St
New York, NY 10003-4028

From: Care2 on behalf of jone.gagnon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:25:41 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. jone.gagnon
449 W 44th St
New York, NY 10036-4413

From: Care2 on behalf of Lisa Maly
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:26:29 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Lisa Maly
35 Vascello Rd
New Windsor, NY 12553-5949

From: Care2 on behalf of mady.marantz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:26:34 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. mady marantz
198 sixth avenue
New York, NY 10013

From: Care2 on behalf of Tami c.
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:26:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Since the sugar content is the problem, why not fix it? How about guidelines for the sugar content of sugary drinks?

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Tami c.
177 Loring Rd
Levittown, NY 11756-1003

From: Care2 on behalf of Kallyn Krash
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:54:55 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kallyn Krash
72 Park Ter W Apt E38
New York, NY 10034-1362

From: Care2 on behalf of Milagros Alvarez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:26:39 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Milagros Alvarez
kenmore ave 765 # 8
Buffalo, NY 14223

From: Care2 on behalf of Cary Eng
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:26:50 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Cary Eng
110 Green St
Brooklyn, NY 11222-1591

From: Care2 on behalf of katrina.maloney
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:26:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. katrina maloney
25 Chittenden Ave
New York, NY 10033-1142

From: Care2 on behalf of Tony Vazquez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:26:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Tony Vazquez
240 8th St Apt 5n
Brooklyn, NY 11215-7203

From: Care2 on behalf of torenthly_perkins
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:27:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. torenthly perkins
16 E 8th St
Patchogue, NY 11772-2336

From: Care2 on behalf of Andrea Garvey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:27:04 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Andrea Garvey
PO Box 386
Northport, NY 11768-0386

From: Care2 on behalf of kat kline
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:27:09 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. kat kline
croton hts. rd.
Yorktown Heights, NY 10598

From: Care2 on behalf of ann.lundquist
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:52:27 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. ann.lundquist
28 W 38th St
New York, NY 10018-8042

From: Care2 on behalf of Pamela Wilkinson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:52:31 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Pamela Wilkinson
570 Isham St
New York, NY 10034-2026

From: Care2 on behalf of Robert Pappas
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:52:32 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Pappas
3330 58th St
Woodside, NY 11377-2217

From: Care2 on behalf of william healey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:55:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. william healey
76th Street
Nyc, NY 10023

From: Care2 on behalf of Faith Huggins
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:52:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Faith Huggins
1112 Mile Square Rd
Yonkers, NY 10704-1622

From: Care2 on behalf of judy visconti
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:52:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. judy visconti
9 Edgewood Ave
Port Jefferson, NY 11777-2140

From: Care2 on behalf of Heriberto Rodriguez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:52:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Heriberto Rodriguez
533 County Highway 18
Mount Upton, NY 13809-4206

From: Care2 on behalf of Christina Couret-Wulff
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:53:01 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Christina Couret-Wulff
201 Avenue T
Brooklyn, NY 11223-3763

From: Care2 on behalf of Laura Nowack
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:53:01 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laura Nowack
405 Sheffield Ct
Brewster, NY 10509-6515

From: Care2 on behalf of Maureen Ryan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:53:01 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Maureen Ryan
11832 179th St
Jamaica, NY 11434-1940

From: Care2 on behalf of abby chack
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:53:02 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. abby chack
24 Cammerer Ave
East Rockaway, NY 11518-1928

From: Care2 on behalf of Tarek Sabra
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:53:55 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Tarek Sabra
143 Dahill Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11218-2205

From: Care2 on behalf of Renee Bindler
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:54:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Renee Bindler
41 Indiana Ave
Long Beach, NY 11561-1207

From: Care2 on behalf of Joseph Kelley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:54:02 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Joseph Kelley
227 Hawthorne Ave
Yonkers, NY 10705-1068

From: Care2 on behalf of Alex Betser
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:55:04 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Alex Betser
3411 Guider Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11235-5295

From: Care2 on behalf of Alice Bosveld
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:54:02 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alice Bosveld
297 E 10th St
New York, NY 10009-5006

From: Care2 on behalf of Audrina berger
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:54:46 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Audrina berger
555 Canal Rd
Mount Sinai, NY 11766-3304

From: Care2 on behalf of Emily Budd
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:54:46 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Emily Budd
20 Holbrooke St
Rochester, NY 14621-5114

From: Care2 on behalf of sharon kaufman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:54:52 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. sharon kaufman
3060 29th St
Astoria, NY 11102-2546

From: Care2 on behalf of Carolyn Ricci
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:55:31 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carolyn Ricci
585 Ashford Ave
Ardsley, NY 10502-2409

From: Care2 on behalf of Andrew Greenwald
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:55:35 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Andrew Greenwald
210 E 75th St
New York, NY 10021-2922

From: Care2 on behalf of Christina Taliercio
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:55:40 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Christina Taliercio
201 Currie Ave
Staten Island, NY 10306-3903

From: Care2 on behalf of Darryl Mc.Pherson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:55:44 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Darryl Mc.Pherson
120 Elgar Pl Apt 24h
Bronx, NY 10475-5116

From: Care2 on behalf of Ann Crumb
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:55:49 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ann Crumb
99 Clinton St Apt 9
Brooklyn, NY 11201-4252

From: Care2 on behalf of lorraine.kennedy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:55:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. lorraine.kennedy
155
Ny, NY 10009

From: Care2 on behalf of Susan Ellis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:55:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Susan Ellis
174 Benner Rd
Red Hook, NY 12571-2706

From: Care2 on behalf of Nathan Rulli
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Nathan Rulli
138 29th St
Brooklyn, NY 11232-1734

From: Care2 on behalf of Kristin DiMento
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:02 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Kristin DiMento
255 W 88th St
New York, NY 10024-1716

From: Care2 on behalf of Yves Jean-Baptiste
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:03 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Yves Jean-Baptiste
352 6th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11215-3425

From: Care2 on behalf of Joan O'Brien
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:04 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Joan O'Brien
3001 Henry Hudson Pkwy
Bronx, NY 10463-4717

From: Care2 on behalf of Susan Cantillon-Cuda
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:09 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Susan Cantillon-Cuda
14 Oxford Dr
Saratoga Springs, NY 12866-5450

From: Care2 on behalf of Gary DiTucci
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:13 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Gary DiTucci
41 Rhoda Ave
Smithtown, NY 11787-5138

From: Care2 on behalf of Janet M. Aptaker
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:18 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Janet M. Aptaker
101 w117th st #2a
New York, NY 10026

From: Care2 on behalf of Pauline Goldsmith-Johnson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:22 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Pauline Goldsmith-Johnson
Bergen St.
Brooklyn, NY 11217

From: Care2 on behalf of Anita Wong
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:27 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Anita Wong
16421 71st Ave
Fresh Meadows, NY 11365-4208

From: Care2 on behalf of Emily Martensen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:31 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Emily Martensen
Sterling ave
Armonk, NY 10504

From: Care2 on behalf of Alyssa Solazzo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:55:53 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alyssa Solazzo
84 Elliott Pl
Freeport, NY 11520-4813

From: Care2 on behalf of Julie Nygren
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:32 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Julie Nygren
15 Edgewood Rd
Staten Island, NY 10308-2735

From: Care2 on behalf of susana salinas
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:36 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Very very upset!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. susana salinas
69 street apt 3k
Woodside, NY 11377

From: Care2 on behalf of Jennifer Fouche
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:40 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jennifer Fouche
160 Wadsworth Ave
New York, NY 10033-3821

From: Care2 on behalf of Paige Harrison! RN, BSN
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:41 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Paige Harrison! RN, BSN
215 W 90th St Apt 3a
New York, NY 10024-1223

From: Care2 on behalf of D.hultgren
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:45 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. D hultgren
round hill rd
Monroe, NY 10950

From: Care2 on behalf of Janet Duran
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:56:59 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Janet Duran
13 w 4th st
New York, NY 10012

From: Care2 on behalf of KEN RUBINO
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:57:08 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. KEN RUBINO
4 Anchor Path
Baiting Hollow, NY 11933-1251

From: Care2 on behalf of John Carollo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:23:10 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. John Carollo
530f Grand St
Knickerbocker, NY 10002-4258

From: Care2 on behalf of Jesse mcgowan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:23:10 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jesse mcgowan
51 Hester St
Knickerbocker, NY 10002-4728

From: Care2 on behalf of Lila Lakalima
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:24:09 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lila Lakalima
423 E 64th St
New York, NY 10065-7541

From: Care2 on behalf of daniel piwowarczyk
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:55:56 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. daniel piwowarczyk
333 E 14th St
New York, NY 10003-4208

From: Care2 on behalf of Yan Wen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:25:22 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Yan Wen
136-06 58 Ave
Flushing, NY 11355

From: Care2 on behalf of Linda Miller-Roseman RN
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:25:58 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Linda Miller-Roseman RN
10 Tiger Ln
Center Moriches, NY 11934-3215

From: Care2 on behalf of william kruhmin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:26:02 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. william kruhmin
2699 Terrell Ave
Oceanside, NY 11572-1135

From: Care2 on behalf of Bert Bevens
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:26:39 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Bert Bevens
300e56st
New York, NY 10019

From: Care2 on behalf of zoraida.castillo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:26:50 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. zoraida castillo
760 Broadway
Brooklyn, NY 11206-5317

From: Care2 on behalf of olga_belova
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:26:59 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. olga belova
500 W 140th St
New York, NY 10031-6131

From: Care2 on behalf of gerald Vanderheite
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:27:32 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. gerald Vanderheite
2386 Hess Rd
Appleton, NY 14008-9639

From: Care2 on behalf of Nicole Paige
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:27:32 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nicole Paige
448 Beach 144th St
Neponsit, NY 11694-1119

From: Care2 on behalf of Anne Dooling
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:27:33 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Anne Dooling
57 George St
East Patchogue, NY 11772-6204

From: Care2 on behalf of Ryder Thornton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:27:36 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ryder Thornton
400 W 58th St Apt 2h
New York, NY 10019-1112

From: Care2 on behalf of Laura Fleischer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laura Fleischer
15611 Aguilar Ave
Flushing, NY 11367-2732

From: Care2 on behalf of Jaime Escobar
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:55:56 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jaime Escobar
805 Sheldon Ave
Staten Island, NY 10309-2437

From: Care2 on behalf of gwen cope
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:27:41 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. gwen cope
162 Pudding St
Putnam Valley, NY 10579-1333

From: Care2 on behalf of Julia Cassell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:27:47 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Julia Cassell
50 Plaza St E
Brooklyn, NY 11238-5041

From: Care2 on behalf of Rozi Days
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:28:19 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Rozi Days
244th ST Ontario Road
Bellerose Terrace, NY 11001

From: Care2 on behalf of katharine maxwell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:28:28 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. katharine maxwell
250 W 90th St Apt 15a
New York, NY 10024-1143

From: Care2 on behalf of Elena Bennett
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:28:33 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Elena Bennett
120 Round Hill Rd
Washingtonville, NY 10992-1920

From: Care2 on behalf of Gail Evans
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:53:23 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Gail Evans
14 Spring St
Tarrytown, NY 10591-5025

From: Care2 on behalf of Lani Mysak
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:53:40 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lani Mysak
3421 77th St
Jackson Hts, NY 11372-2338

From: Care2 on behalf of Sherry Cohen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:53:41 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sherry Cohen
2080 West St
Brooklyn, NY 11223-3939

From: Care2 on behalf of Michele Smith
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:54:09 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Michele Smith
25m Plaza St.
Brooklyn, NY 11217

From: Care2 on behalf of Gerald Hasset
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:54:09 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gerald Hasset
4115 44th St
Sunnyside, NY 11104-2263

From: Care2 on behalf of Jordan Rieff
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:55:56 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jordan Rieff
45 Elderberry Rd
Syosset, NY 11791-6206

From: Care2 on behalf of Julie Sheridan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:54:09 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Julie Sheridan
135 23rd St Apt 2
Brooklyn, NY 11232-1112

From: Care2 on behalf of Candace Storch
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:55:26 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Candace Storch
Schenck Ave
Great Neck, NY 11021

From: Care2 on behalf of Wendy Monaghan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:55:46 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Wendy Monaghan
20 Skyline Dr
Huntington, NY 11743-7114

From: Care2 on behalf of irene Nickolai
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:55:54 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. irene Nickolai
305 Broadway Ste 210
New York, NY 10007-3635

From: Care2 on behalf of Susan Connors
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:56:24 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Susan Connors
905 Winthrop Dr
East Meadow, NY 11554-4628

From: Care2 on behalf of Jean Boyle
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:56:28 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jean Boyle
164 Cortlandt St
Staten Island, NY 10302-2004

From: Care2 on behalf of Stephen J Mazurek
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:56:33 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Stephen J Mazurek
100 Smith Street #307
Lewiston, NY 14092

From: Care2 on behalf of Jaleel EL-Shabazz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:23:21 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jaleel EL-Shabazz
17224 133rd Ave
Jamaica, NY 11434-3955

From: Care2 on behalf of angela lauffer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:23:45 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. angela lauffer
7626 Townline Rd
North Tonawanda, NY 14120-1321

From: Care2 on behalf of Inocencia Nieves
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:23:46 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Inocencia Nieves
Bronx
New York, NY 10455

From: Care2 on behalf of Anna Rainey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:55:57 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Anna Rainey
4712 4th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11220-1154

From: Care2 on behalf of tommy whalen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:23:47 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. tommy whalen
36 Lafayette Dr
Shirley, NY 11967-4111

From: Care2 on behalf of Angela Rodriguez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:23:47 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Angela Rodriguez
8721 87th St
Woodhaven, NY 11421-2049

From: Care2 on behalf of Jay Nitti
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:23:50 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jay Nitti
63 Tiffany Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11231-2964

From: Care2 on behalf of Mary Schultz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:23:52 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Mary Schultz
13 Benton St
Tonawanda, NY 14150-2301

From: Care2 on behalf of Dorothea Nelson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:23:54 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Dorothea Nelson
205 pine Ve
SOUTHOLD, NY 11971

From: Care2 on behalf of Alice Parra
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:23:56 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Contrary to a popular myth, this proposal will not limit anyone's freedom - it only limits container sizes. If people want to drink more than 16 ounces they can buy 2, 3 or 4 containers. But maybe this will make them think about all the sugar they're consuming. After all, one way or another, we are all paying for high health care costs caused by bad choices.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alice Parra
214 W 104th St Apt 2a
New York, NY 10025-9605

From: Care2 on behalf of carol.albert
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:23:59 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. carol albert
122 W 71st St
New York, NY 10023-4036

From: Care2 on behalf of Martin Koser
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:01 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Martin Koser
2936 Nostrand Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11229-1820

From: Care2 on behalf of Susan Rocovich
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:03 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Susan Rocovich
9 Hill Dr
Bohemia, NY 11716-1311

From: Care2 on behalf of Naomi Kaminsky
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:05 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Naomi Kaminsky
1601 Avenue H
Brooklyn, NY 11230-2425

From: Care2 on behalf of Cameron Brown
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:56:07 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Cameron Brown
39 Rosman Rd
Thiells, NY 10984-1301

From: Care2 on behalf of Floss Shahbegian
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:08 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Floss Shahbegian
15415 24th Rd
Whitestone, NY 11357-3730

From: Care2 on behalf of Jessica Lawrence
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:10 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jessica Lawrence
25201 44th Ave Apt 2f
Douglaston, NY 11363-1923

From: Care2 on behalf of Patrice Gleasner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:12 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Patrice Gleasner
16 Settlers Landing Ln
East Hampton, NY 11937-3319

From: Care2 on behalf of Maura Phillips
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:14 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Maura Phillips
480 N Glen Dr Apt A
Rochester, NY 14626-1415

From: Care2 on behalf of Annmarie Rizzi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:17 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Annmarie Rizzi
526 Leonard St
Brooklyn, NY 11222-3206

From: Care2 on behalf of Nathan Robinson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:19 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Nathan Robinson
9825 Horace Harding Expy
Corona, NY 11368-4627

From: Care2 on behalf of Eileen Pfluger
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:21 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Eileen Pfluger
55 Scheffelin Ave
Staten Island, NY 10306-1270

From: Care2 on behalf of d irons
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:21 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. d irons
82 Sutton St
Brooklyn, NY 11222-4404

From: Care2 on behalf of Jerome Schneewind
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:22 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Jerome Schneewind
130 8th Ave Apt 8a
Brooklyn, NY 11215-1755

From: Care2 on behalf of Julie Gross
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:22 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Julie Gross
166 W 22nd St Apt 4f
New York, NY 10011-2458

From: Care2 on behalf of M.D
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:56:07 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. M D
M
New York, NY 10010

From: Care2 on behalf of Michael Fitzgerald
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:22 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Fitzgerald
113 Beadel St
Brooklyn, NY 11222-5328

From: Care2 on behalf of Jessica Bernstein
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:22 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jessica Bernstein
111 W 94th St
New York, NY 10025-7020

From: Care2 on behalf of Paul W. Moore
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:23 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul W. Moore
15 Cherry St Apt 107
Frewsburg, NY 14738-9566

From: Care2 on behalf of Lynn Rosen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:23 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lynn Rosen
563 E 86th St
Brooklyn, NY 11236-3226

From: Care2 on behalf of Sue Scott
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:23 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sue Scott
14 Lafayette Sq
Buffalo, NY 14203-1929

From: Care2 on behalf of Peter Benway
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:28 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Peter Benway
4005 Danbury Rd
Brewster, NY 10509-5419

From: Care2 on behalf of Jim Costanzo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:32 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jim Costanzo
PO Box 22
Wading River, NY 11792-0022

From: Care2 on behalf of Bobbie Flowers
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:37 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Bobbie Flowers
418 W 17th St Apt 22a
New York, NY 10011-5826

From: Care2 on behalf of Allan George
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:41 AM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Allan George
1464 Ocean Ave
Aptc2
Brooklyn, NY 11230-3863

From: Care2 on behalf of Gabrielle Buck
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:46 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Gabrielle Buck
459 Ice Pond Rd
Patterson, NY 12563-2943

From: Care2 on behalf of Barbara barski
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:58:28 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Barbara barski
EMSSTR22b
GREECE, NY 14612

From: Care2 on behalf of Pillar Kim
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:51 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Pillar Kim
5811a 192nd St
Fresh Meadows, NY 11365-2237

From: Care2 on behalf of susan_erny
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:24:55 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. susan erny
2475 Rt. 209
Wurtsboro, NY 12790

From: Care2 on behalf of daniel duffy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:25:00 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Do not Re-Elect Obama.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. daniel duffy
58 Hamilton Ave
North Babylon, NY 11703-5006

From: Care2 on behalf of Juan Vilchenez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:25:02 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Juan Vilchenez
143 33 Sanford Ave Apt F12
Flushing, NY 11355

From: Care2 on behalf of Eva Welch
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:25:15 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Eva Welch
3543 32nd St
Long Island City, NY 11106-2755

From: Care2 on behalf of Carolyn Blackburn
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:25:19 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

To quote my son, a 16yr old NYC student: 'I drink as much as I'm given; if the dispenser is smaller, I don't (mindlessly) consume'. I'm with him and hope you are, too.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carolyn Blackburn
120 Cabrini Blvd
New York, NY 10033-3438

From: Care2 on behalf of Laura Neiman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:25:24 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laura Neiman
60 Seaman Ave Apt 5g
New York, NY 10034-2821

From: Care2 on behalf of elizabeth hulsen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:25:24 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. elizabeth hulsen
6528 169th St
Fresh Meadows, NY 11365-1946

From: Care2 on behalf of marilyn.gaddis.ross
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:26:00 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. marilyn gaddis ross
5 Riverside Dr Apt 508
Binghamton, NY 13905-4618

From: Care2 on behalf of Rubi Martinez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:26:01 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Rubi Martinez
16 Elliot Pl Apt 5h
Bronx, NY 10452-7160

From: Care2 on behalf of pj.theise
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:58:28 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. pj theise
forestburgh
New York, NY 12777

From: Care2 on behalf of J. Christian Rutledge
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:26:02 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Look to Monsanto! Shut those guys down and see what happens? Holy cow! You'll have a war on your hands. People have been brainwashed over time. convinced to eat in certain ways. To consume, consume, consume. Man, don't get me stated. By the time people figure out that there's something wrong with how they're living their lives, the program is so embedded in their head that to make any changes will be very difficult, if not impossible. Do you know what I mean? C'mon now. People think that the choices they are making are their own(?) Huh? Guess again. People are being controlled. Manipulated. Guided into making decisions/choices that suit the needs of those in control. Sounds a lot like some conspiracy, right? You got it. Eventually, this is all going to blow up. This country, which is an incorporated entity, is going to crash. I don't know when. But think about it. When I was young, an ice cream cone cost a dime. To put this into perspective, let me tell you how old I was---I was about ten. I'm 59 years old. An ice cream cone is $3. bucks! Fifty years from now? Gas was about .35 cents a gallon. If you don't get it, you don't understand the system---which is not sustainable. Actually, I know you get it. I don't know how all of this is gonna play out, but I do know that it can't go on like this indefinitely. The people will eventually wake up! Then what. Britain can kiss our A*#. The government will have to come up with a new scam to keep us under control. uh-uh. This is all gonna crash. Sadly. I didn't mean to go off on you like this, but as you can see, I'm not buying into this system as such. But right now, I'm locked into it. Good luck with your efforts.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. J. Christian Rutledge
13 Harrison Commons
Yaphank, NY 11980-2013

From: Care2 on behalf of Ms Mazyck
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:53:21 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Ms Mazyck
New York
BAYSIDE, NY 11361

From: Care2 on behalf of milton.gordon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:53:21 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. milton.gordon
238 E 95th St
New York, NY 10128-3848

From: Care2 on behalf of Amanda Nocella
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:53:21 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Amanda Nocella
443 Clement Ave
Alden Manor, NY 11003-3321

From: Care2 on behalf of Edwin Dominguez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:53:37 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Edwin Dominguez
2459 Frisby Ave
Bronx, NY 10461-3205

From: Care2 on behalf of Ligia Herrera
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:53:39 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ligia Herrera
860 Columbus Ave
New York, NY 10025-4532

From: Care2 on behalf of eszka.stypulkowska
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:54:51 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. eszka.stypulkowska
106 Avenue S Apt 9
Brooklyn, NY 11223-2572

From: Care2 on behalf of maria batista
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:54:55 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. maria batista
1020 Walton Ave
Bronx, NY 10452-9348

From: Care2 on behalf of PATRICIA FRITTS
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:55:08 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. PATRICIA FRITTS
30 Briar Hill Dr
Yonkers, NY 10710-2204

From: Care2 on behalf of Ann DellaMonica
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:55:08 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Ann DellaMonica
1565 Hannington Ave
Wantagh, NY 11793-2807

From: Care2 on behalf of marie vieux
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:58:28 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. marie vieux
199 Jay St
Brooklyn, NY 11201-1907

From: Care2 on behalf of Susan Davidson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:55:29 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan Davidson
311 W 24th St Apt 6c
New York, NY 10011-1562

From: Care2 on behalf of alexandra guidarelli
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:55:29 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. alexandra guidarelli
77 Wild Birch Farms
Cortlandt Manor, NY 10567-1449

From: Care2 on behalf of Frank DeGregorie
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:55:29 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Frank DeGregorie
80 Wooster St Apt 2f
New York, NY 10012-4392

From: Care2 on behalf of Theodore Kane
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:55:37 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Theodore Kane
2732 Latting St
Bronx, NY 10461-5845

From: Care2 on behalf of Jesse Bracken
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:56:35 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jesse Bracken
32 Colonial Dr Apt C
New Paltz, NY 12561-1833

From: Care2 on behalf of Joel Russell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:56:35 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Joel Russell
501 W 156th St
New York, NY 10032-7702

From: Care2 on behalf of Louisiana Rodriguez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:56:35 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Louisiana Rodriguez
3505 Broadway
New York, NY 10031-5623

From: Care2 on behalf of S.Smith
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:57:36 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. S Smith
PO Box 253
Sound Beach, NY 11789-0253

From: Care2 on behalf of Barbara Tetro
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:57:41 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Tetro
1955 1st Ave Apt 404
New York, NY 10029-6453

From: Care2 on behalf of LAUREN BOAZ
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:57:45 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. LAUREN BOAZ
6 Buckingham Rd
Nanuet, NY 10954-1311

From: Care2 on behalf of Jodi Schuldenfrei
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:58:29 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jodi Schuldenfrei
12360 83rd Ave Apt 9o
Kew Gardens, NY 11415-3413

From: Care2 on behalf of Arthur Burns
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:58:04 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Arthur Burns
798 Belmont Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11208-2332

From: Care2 on behalf of melissa collins
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:58:10 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. melissa collins
easy 70th street
New York, NY 10010

From: Care2 on behalf of michael Farmer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 1:58:15 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Does someone really need to walk around with a 1/2 a gallon of soda ??? I'm against government in your face but some ppl really need to be helped!! 20 oz would be a big drink !!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. michael Farmer
50 Fort Putnam St
Highland Falls, NY 10928-2025

From: Care2 on behalf of Paige Nicole
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:23:20 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Paige Nicole
xoadamlambert
Ny, NY 11758

From: Care2 on behalf of Norma Schwartzberg
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:23:20 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Norma Schwartzberg
150 W 47th St
New York, NY 10036-1516

From: Care2 on behalf of Denise Nason
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:23:21 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Denise Nason
185 East Hatfield St.
Massena, NY 13662

From: Care2 on behalf of Frank Nardozzi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:23:25 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Frank Nardozzi
4202 Jacobs Hill Road
Cortlandt Manor, NY 10567

From: Care2 on behalf of KELLY Oneill
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:23:42 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. KELLY Oneill
209 August Rd
Babylon, NY 11703-1940

From: Care2 on behalf of Chris Davies
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:23:46 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Chris Davies
26 Teatown Rd
Croton ON Hudson, NY 10520-3523

From: Care2 on behalf of Naomi fils
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:23:51 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Naomi fils
380 E 48th St
Brooklyn, NY 11203-3306

From: Care2 on behalf of THERESA GROARK
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:58:30 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. THERESA GROARK
9740 62nd Dr
Apt 7n
Rego Park, NY 11374-1324

From: Care2 on behalf of Phyllis Mallah
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:23:55 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Protect our children.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Phyllis Mallah
104 Pembroke Dr
East Hampton, NY 11937-3026

From: Care2 on behalf of Diana Rodriguez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:00 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Diana Rodriguez
13971 86th Rd
Briarwood, NY 11435-3003

From: Care2 on behalf of Anastasia Darlington
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:13 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Anastasia Darlington
97 S State Rd
Briarcliff Manor, NY 10510-2211

From: Care2 on behalf of Kelly Shakespeare
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:18 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Kelly Shakespeare
1 Eisenhower Ct
Hopewell Jct, NY 12533-5635

From: Care2 on behalf of donald_coble
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:19 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. donald coble
218 Gates Ave Apt 4q
Brooklyn, NY 11238-2078

From: Care2 on behalf of Tara Angell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:19 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Tara Angell
242 President St
Brooklyn, NY 11231-4341

From: Care2 on behalf of Shari Markovich
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:19 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Shari Markovich
Bellerose ny
BELLEROSE, NY 11426

From: Care2 on behalf of Randy Frankel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:23 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

I agree with Mayor Bloomberg and thank him for proposing this bold step.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Randy Frankel
125 Ashland Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11201-3974

From: Care2 on behalf of James Fleming
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:24 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. James Fleming
30323 Harveys Pl
Pleasant Valley, NY 12569-7953

From: Care2 on behalf of raymond hernandez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:29 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. raymond hernandez
229 W 26th St Apt 6a
New York, NY 10001-6706

From: Care2 on behalf of Robert Donohue
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:36 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Donohue
303 W 105th St
New York, NY 10025-3407

From: Care2 on behalf of Rachel Willis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:58:33 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rachel Willis
68 Clinton St Apt 1b
New York, NY 10002-2490

From: Care2 on behalf of Janine Rossi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:32 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Janine Rossi
241 Oak Summit Rd
Millbrook, NY 12545-6130

From: Care2 on behalf of Jesse Ralat
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:32 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jesse Ralat
37 Tarryhill Rd
North Tarrytown, NY 10591-6513

From: Care2 on behalf of George Y. Bramwell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:33 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. George Y. Bramwell
45 Park Ln
Staten Island, NY 10301-4417

From: Care2 on behalf of craig_miller
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:33 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. craig miller
67 E 11th St Apt 419
New York, NY 10003-4615

From: Care2 on behalf of Karin Kernochan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:38 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Karin Kernochan
235 Adams St
Brooklyn, NY 11201-2858

From: Care2 on behalf of William Riley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:39 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Riley
9111 Church ave
Brooklyn NY, NY 11213

From: Care2 on behalf of Elizabeth Campbell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:40 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Elizabeth Campbell
49 Gray Ave
Medford, NY 11763-1037

From: Care2 on behalf of Stephanie Parzych
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:44 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Stephanie Parzych
329 Hillsdale Ave
Syracuse, NY 13206-2955

From: Care2 on behalf of David Pinson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:24:48 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. David Pinson
115 Wellworth Pl
Cheektowaga, NY 14225-3318

From: Care2 on behalf of Phillip Washburn
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:25:26 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Phillip Washburn
43 Shotgun Ln
Levittown, NY 11756-1156

From: Care2 on behalf of Monica Moscoso
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:58:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Monica Moscoso
8522 91st Ave
Woodhaven, NY 11421-2523

From: Care2 on behalf of c. fiorillo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:25:26 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Healthy organic food for all !!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. c. fiorillo
323 E 88th St
New York, NY 10128-4940

From: Care2 on behalf of tammy reed
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:25:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. tammy reed
365 Washington Ave
Kingston, NY 12401-3740

From: Care2 on behalf of Virginia Johnson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:25:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Virginia Johnson
4355 Kissena Blvd
Flushing, NY 11355-3185

From: Care2 on behalf of Jaclyn Casteleneto
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:25:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jaclyn Casteleneto
Peachtree Dr
E NORWICH, NY 11732

From: Care2 on behalf of genadi kaller
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:25:32 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. genadi kaller
8700 25th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11214-5438

From: Care2 on behalf of Tony Christie
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:25 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Tony Christie
Arion pl
Brooklyn, NY 11206

From: Care2 on behalf of Jonathan Nedd
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jonathan Nedd
11618 Farmers Blvd
Saint Albans, NY 11412-3005

From: Care2 on behalf of chaviva Skolnik
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. chaviva Skolnik
1921 Avenue K Apt B9
Brooklyn, NY 11230-4934

From: Care2 on behalf of Lisa Garrett
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lisa Garrett
596 Driggs Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11211-3231

From: Care2 on behalf of Lynn Vaag
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:28 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lynn Vaag
71 Sullivan St Apt 2b
New York, NY 10012-4334

From: Care2 on behalf of debi durkin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:58:42 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. debi durkin
182 Foxwood Rd
West Nyack, NY 10994-2515

From: Care2 on behalf of Sonia Naidu
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:28 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sonia Naidu
102 W 29th St Apt 5
New York, NY 10001-5314

From: Care2 on behalf of Athena St.Juste
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:28 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Athena St.Juste
140 N 26th St
Wheatley Heights, NY 11798-2005

From: Care2 on behalf of George Nicholson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:28 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. George Nicholson
405 Clinton St
Brooklyn, NY 11231-3601

From: Care2 on behalf of Rebecca B. Wilk
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:28 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rebecca B. Wilk
PO Box 1395
Woodstock, NY 12498-8395

From: Care2 on behalf of brian singer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:28 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. brian singer
231 e10th st
New York, NY 10003

From: Care2 on behalf of Amanda Guinzburg
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:29 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Amanda Guinzburg
372
East Hampton, NY 11937

From: Care2 on behalf of Martin Brod
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:29 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Martin Brod
35 W 90th St Apt 11h
New York, NY 10024-1507

From: Care2 on behalf of Kristin Carothers
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:33 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Kristin Carothers
308 W 140th St
New York, NY 10030-1426

From: Care2 on behalf of Robert Lucy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:33 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Lucy
36 E 29th St Apt 1
New York, NY 10016-7905

From: Care2 on behalf of Andrew Esterman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:33 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Andrew Esterman
478 17th St
Brooklyn, NY 11215-6203

From: Care2 on behalf of Bonnie Tesler
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:58:46 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Bonnie Tesler
1040 Sheldon Ave
Staten Island, NY 10309-2115

From: Care2 on behalf of angela.petrie
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:34 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. angela.petrie
35 McDonald Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11218-1082

From: Care2 on behalf of linda pluto
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:34 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

I agree that making it alittle more inconvenient to drink a big soda by having to go again to the counter to buy another might help.... if only alittle it is better than nothing. and who knows maybe it will give someone more time to think about always eating the wrong thing if we start with soft drinks.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. linda pluto
6934a 215th St
Bayside, NY 11364-2528

From: Care2 on behalf of sherrie pasarell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:35 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Unbelievable that sick bastard is free at all.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. sherrie pasarell
3995 Hillman Ave
Bronx, NY 10463-3031

From: Care2 on behalf of Susan Jones-Favuzzi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:35 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan Jones-Favuzzi
480 Lynn St
Staten Island, NY 10306-5312

From: Care2 on behalf of Beverly Segers
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:35 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

This is not his business!!!!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Beverly Segers
358 Hancock St
Apt 1
Brooklyn, NY 11216-2423

From: Care2 on behalf of Carol Moon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:35 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carol Moon
36 Sickles St
New York, NY 10040-1827

From: Care2 on behalf of amanda.politano
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:36 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. amanda politano
17 Blair Rd
Kerhonkson, NY 12446-2661

From: Care2 on behalf of Ilona hoffstaedter
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:36 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ilona hoffstaedter
2371 37th St Apt 1r
Astoria, NY 11105-1920

From: Care2 on behalf of sylvia Dushain
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:37 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. sylvia Dushain
1890 Schieffelin Pl
Bronx, NY 10466-5721

From: Care2 on behalf of Patricia Belfanti
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:37 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Patricia Belfanti
5 White St Apt 3a
New York, NY 10013-2498

From: Care2 on behalf of michael bocian
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:17:01 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. michael bocian
2165 19th St
Astoria, NY 11105-3934

From: Care2 on behalf of John Lefever
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:38 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

The Mayor's heart is in the right place. The proposal smacks of an official saving the people from themselves. Still, this seems to be "where we're at." Americans can resist anything but temptation.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Lefever
5 Lakeview Rd
Rhinebeck, NY 12572-2925

From: Care2 on behalf of jeremy chalchinsky
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:38 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jeremy chalchinsky
15 Franklin Rd
Scarsdale, NY 10583-7509

From: Care2 on behalf of Zar Sukkoi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:38 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Zar Sukkoi
90 Thompson St
New York, NY 10012-3744

From: Care2 on behalf of Shana Govia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:39 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Shana Govia
3220 Olinville Ave
Bronx, NY 10467-6318

From: Care2 on behalf of Alva Buxenbaum
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:39 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alva Buxenbaum
183 Crown St
Brooklyn, NY 11225-2105

From: Care2 on behalf of Sylvia Moore
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:39 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

I agree with Mayor Bloomberg, who cares about public health!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sylvia Moore
2102 Bronx Park E
Bronx, NY 10462-2266

From: Care2 on behalf of janet Nelson-Arazi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:40 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Janet Nelson-Arazi
5110 30th Ave Apt 40
Woodside, NY 11377-7947

From: Care2 on behalf of Joan DeVagno
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:40 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Joan DeVagno
14125 Northern Blvd
Flushing, NY 11354-4281

From: Care2 on behalf of Robert Farrington
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:41 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Robert Farrington

BALDWIN, NY 11510

From: Care2 on behalf of Eugene Williams
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:41 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Eugene Williams
110 Brooklyn Ave Apt 4h
Freeport, NY 11520-2993

From: Care2 on behalf of Vivian Sellas-Virga
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:17:01 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Please approve this proposal!!! This something we really need implemented.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Vivian Sellas-Virga
214 Floyd Rd
Shirley, NY 11967-2940

From: Care2 on behalf of Cyndi Rae
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:41 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Cyndi Rae
72 Radburn Dr
Farmingville, NY 11738-1049

From: Care2 on behalf of Janelle Rogers
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:41 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Janelle Rogers
1101 Olympia Blvd
Staten Island, NY 10306-5925

From: Care2 on behalf of Allison Weinger
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:42 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Allison Weinger
200 W 70th St
New York, NY 10023-4323

From: Care2 on behalf of Mary Williams
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:42 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Mary Williams
57Garden city ave
Wyandanch, NY 11798

From: Care2 on behalf of g.a
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:42 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. g a
145 W Walnut St
Long Beach, NY 11561-3315

From: Care2 on behalf of Yangbo Du
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:43 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Yangbo Du
32 Kosciuszko St
Brooklyn, NY 11205-4905

From: Care2 on behalf of mark harada
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:43 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. mark harada
190 E 2nd St Apt 12
New York, NY 10009-7751

From: Care2 on behalf of Barnett Weiss
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:43 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Barnett Weiss
700 Washington St
New York, NY 10014-2509

From: Care2 on behalf of Hubertus Raben
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:44 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Hubertus Raben
38 Columbia Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11201-4550

From: Care2 on behalf of Deb GEHR
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:44 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Deb GEHR
404 Sheep Pasture Rd
Port Jefferson, NY 11777-2059

From: Care2 on behalf of greg.spektor
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:17:11 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. greg spektor
oceana dr
Brooklyn, NY 11235

From: Care2 on behalf of Judy Armstrong
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:44 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Judy Armstrong
26 mill st
Kerhonkson, NY 12446

From: Care2 on behalf of Carlos Molina
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:45 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Carlos Molina
8 Spruce St
New York, NY 10038-1556

From: Care2 on behalf of Shana Jansen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:51 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Shana Jansen
123 North Avenue
Great Neck, NY 11021

From: Care2 on behalf of Kwang Kim
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:53:56 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kwang Kim
1527 Library Ave
Bronx, NY 10465-1109

From: Care2 on behalf of suzi o'connor
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:26 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. suzi o'connor
PO Box 1540
Amagansett, NY 11930-1540

From: Care2 on behalf of mark walker
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:26 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. mark walker
713 Classon Ave
Apt 307
Brooklyn, NY 11238-7414

From: Care2 on behalf of Ryan Mintz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ryan Mintz
rothkamp st
N Valley Stream, NY 11580

From: Care2 on behalf of Helen Mendoza
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Helen Mendoza
7230 State Route 20
Waterville, NY 13480-2118

From: Care2 on behalf of Yahaira Calix
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:32 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Yahaira Calix
130 Wadsworth Ave
New York, NY 10033-4814

From: Care2 on behalf of Margaret Brophy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:32 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Margaret Brophy
200 Beacon Hill Dr
Dobbs Ferry, NY 10522-2404

From: Care2 on behalf of Brian Melsky
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:17:16 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Brian Melsky
20 E 16th St
Huntington Station, NY 11746-2911

From: Care2 on behalf of Alison Orford
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:32 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Alison Orford
New York, NY
MANHATTAN, NY 10025

From: Care2 on behalf of Carol Dollan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:36 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carol Dollan
7 McElroy Pl
Monroe, NY 10950-2605

From: Care2 on behalf of new_york_gmen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:42 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. new york gmen
4070 broadway
CORONA-ELMHURST, NY 11373

From: Care2 on behalf of Will Shepard
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:46 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Will Shepard
877 St Nicholas Ave
New York, NY 10032-5101

From: Care2 on behalf of narie tabor
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:51 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. narie tabor
2949 Far Rockaway Blvd # 1
Far Rockaway, NY 11691-1914

From: Care2 on behalf of joanna.crosson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:54 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. joanna crosson
18 W 70th St Apt 9c
New York, NY 10023-4601

From: Care2 on behalf of deborah.sneed
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:54 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. deborah.sneed
7600 shorefront pkwy
Arverne, NY 11692

From: Care2 on behalf of Celina Lara
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:55 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Celina Lara
214 Sterling Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11238-4959

From: Care2 on behalf of diane.greggo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:55 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. diane greggo
14 Arpad St
Hicksville, NY 11801-2203

From: Care2 on behalf of Bozena Grossman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:23:55 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Bozena Grossman
211 E 7th St
Brooklyn, NY 11218-2610

From: Care2 on behalf of ture d
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:17:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. ture d
148 8th Ave
New York, NY 10011-5154

From: Care2 on behalf of Evelyn Garvey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:00 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Evelyn Garvey
443 Court St
Brooklyn, NY 11231-4045

From: Care2 on behalf of Ean Murphy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:04 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ean Murphy
442d Lorimer St # 109
Brooklyn, NY 11206-1036

From: Care2 on behalf of Dawn Kessler
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:09 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Dawn Kessler
Maple ave
CROTON FALLS, NY 10519

From: Care2 on behalf of EDITH ORTIZ
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:13 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. EDITH ORTIZ
300 Louis Ave
South Floral Park, NY 11001-3525

From: Care2 on behalf of Ligia Solorzano
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:18 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Ligia Solorzano
Sunnyside
ASTORIA, NY 11104

From: Care2 on behalf of Linda Unglert
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:22 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

We can do this.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Linda Unglert
7126 73rd Pl
Glendale, NY 11385-8248

From: Care2 on behalf of Patricia Gursky
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Patricia Gursky
213 W 35th St
New York, NY 10001-1903

From: Care2 on behalf of L F
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. L F
400 Broome St
New York, NY 10013-3238

From: Care2 on behalf of Elizabeth Lazo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:27 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Let people decide how much sugar they want!!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Elizabeth Lazo
4001 Little Neck Pkwy Apt 32a
Little Neck, NY 11363-1750

From: Care2 on behalf of jennifer tarlow
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:31 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jennifer tarlow
173 W 78th St
New York, NY 10024-6703

From: Care2 on behalf of Mark Kaplan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:17:21 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Mark Kaplan
219 E 83rd St
New York, NY 10028-2813

From: Care2 on behalf of Thomas Nash
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:36 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Thomas Nash
65 Richard Ln
Staten Island, NY 10314-1621

From: Care2 on behalf of CAROLINE GRECO
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:24:40 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. CAROLINE GRECO
245 Dover St
Brooklyn, NY 11235-3721

From: Care2 on behalf of desiree.baumann
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:23:35 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. desiree baumann
1823 Haring St
Brooklyn, NY 11229-3209

From: Care2 on behalf of Marlene Chomsky
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 5:54:09 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Marlene Chomsky
Manhattan
New York, NY 10021

From: Care2 on behalf of Rachel Wagner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:26:07 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Rachel Wagner
26 Parma Rd
Island Park, NY 11558-1516

From: Care2 on behalf of John Bartlett
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:26:10 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. John Bartlett
54 Greenwich Ave
New York, NY 10011-8737

From: Care2 on behalf of Lloyd Shand
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:26:11 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Lloyd Shand
323 E31st
Brooklyn, NY 11226

From: Care2 on behalf of francine.digiaino-scherma
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:26:11 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. francine digiaino-scherma
11 Nina Ave
Staten Island, NY 10314-7907

From: Care2 on behalf of dawnmarie kirchner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:26:12 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. dawnmarie kirchner
PO Box 358
Circleville, NY 10919-0358

From: Care2 on behalf of Jeff Cheng
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:30:11 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jeff Cheng
720 Greenwich St
New York, NY 10014-2545

From: Care2 on behalf of mavis harris
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. mavis harris
12 Beehive Rd
Accord, NY 12404-6001

From: Care2 on behalf of stephanie foxx
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:17:25 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. stephanie foxx
873 Broadway Ste 8w
New York, NY 10003-1236

From: Care2 on behalf of Lela King
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:30:30 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Lela King
5 Hickory Dr
Stony Point, NY 10980-2120

From: Care2 on behalf of Anne Hastings
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 10:27:34 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Anne Hastings
13 Ludlow Ln
Hampton Bays, NY 11946-3414

From: Care2 on behalf of sylvia.winner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 10:28:05 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. sylvia.winner
110 Riverside Dr
New York, NY 10024-3715

From: Care2 on behalf of Hilda Dunn
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 10:28:28 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Hilda Dunn
520,2nd Ave
New York, NY 10016

From: Care2 on behalf of jaclyn sandora
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 10:30:45 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. jaclyn sandora
1596 5th St
Babylon, NY 11704-4542

From: Care2 on behalf of Daniel Hakansson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 10:30:45 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Daniel Hakansson
105 Engert Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11222-4933

From: Care2 on behalf of Debbra McAllister
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 10:30:46 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Debbra McAllister
PO Box 731
New York, NY 10008-0731

From: Care2 on behalf of Arcadio De Jesus
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 10:57:23 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Arcadio De Jesus
66 Fountain Pl
Poughkeepsie, NY 12603-2727

From: Care2 on behalf of Fiona Cardwell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 10:58:15 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Our Children do not know any better, it is up to us to help them understand a healthier lifestyle. Who wants their child to grow up obese with type 2 diabetes? Take action now!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Fiona Cardwell
415 E 9th St
New York, NY 10009-4911

From: Care2 on behalf of Veronica Green
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 11:00:17 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Veronica Green
260 Gates Ave Apt 2c
Brooklyn, NY 11238-2091

From: Care2 on behalf of Lisa Ben-Moshe
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:17:39 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Lisa Ben-Moshe
631 Beach 9th St Apt 3j
Far Rockaway, NY 11691-5239

From: Care2 on behalf of Ana Silverlinck
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 11:00:37 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Ana Silverlinck
12 Benedict Rd
Cold Spring, NY 10516-2915

From: Care2 on behalf of Annette Arvelo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 11:27:14 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Annette Arvelo
1615 Summerfield St
Ridgewood, NY 11385-5747

From: Care2 on behalf of Lori Faeth
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 11:58:01 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lori Faeth
50 E Hartsdale Ave
Hartsdale, NY 10530-2725

From: Care2 on behalf of angelo.cinton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 11:59:55 AM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. angelo cinton
57 New Main St
Haverstraw, NY 10927-1811

From: Care2 on behalf of amanda_dossey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:00:18 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. amanda dossey
68 Mount Vernon Ave
Patchogue, NY 11772-1300

From: Care2 on behalf of KEITH LOOMIS
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:29:59 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. KEITH LOOMIS
5022 W Bluff Dr
Keuka Park, NY 14478-9546

From: Care2 on behalf of Howard Riez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 12:34:24 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

How sweet!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Howard Riez
19 Whitmore Ln
Coram, NY 11727-1029

From: Care2 on behalf of Rhoda Levine
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:14:38 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rhoda Levine
20 E 8th St Apt 2a
New York, NY 10003-5918

From: Care2 on behalf of john.carbone
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:14:47 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Carbone
360 Hunnewell Ave
Elmont, NY 11003-3400

From: Care2 on behalf of helen levin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:17:41 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. helen levin
20 Bay St. Lndg 3K
SI, NY 10301

From: Care2 on behalf of JG Tentler
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:17:43 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. JG Tentler
178 Lefferts Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11238-2938

From: Care2 on behalf of marian.proietti
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:19:42 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. marian proietti
181 Terrace St
Bronx, NY 10464-1131

From: Care2 on behalf of Engeñar Ojo del Culo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:41:36 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Engeñar Ojo del Culo
200 Madison Ave
New York, NY 10016-3903

From: Care2 on behalf of Kathleen McCauley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:43:32 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kathleen McCauley
8412 35th Ave
Jackson Hts, NY 11372-5453

From: Care2 on behalf of Barbara Gold
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:43:37 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Gold
250 E 87th St Apt 23a
New York, NY 10128-3101

From: Care2 on behalf of Sandra Levin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 2:49:11 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sandra Levin
407 E 85th St
New York, NY 10028-6368

From: Care2 on behalf of June Mccarthy
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:14:36 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. June Mccarthy
43 Pitchpine Pl
Medford, NY 11763-4208

From: Care2 on behalf of Scott and Pamela Irwin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:17:17 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Scott and Pamela Irwin
7 Tower St
Huntington Station, NY 11746-1232

From: Care2 on behalf of Timi Brown
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:17:58 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Timi Brown
7 W 126th St
New York, NY 10027-3810

From: Care2 on behalf of Elysee Price
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:17:59 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Elysee Price
35 Peacock Rd
Rhinebeck, NY 12572-1226

From: Care2 on behalf of Ronald E. Hudson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:17:59 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ronald E Hudson
1104 Prospect Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11213-2139

From: Care2 on behalf of Carmen Cordero
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:18:08 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carmen Cordero
520 2nd Ave Apt 14b
New York, NY 10016-8621

From: Care2 on behalf of Patricia Valentin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:17:59 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Patricia Valentin
101 Saint Marks Pl
New York, NY 10009-5146

From: Care2 on behalf of terry katzenberger
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:40:22 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. terry katzenberger
510 Maloney Rd Apt H19
Poughkeepsie, NY 12603-5916

From: Care2 on behalf of Ann Naschia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:44:09 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Ann Naschia
150 W.
New York, NY 10019

From: Care2 on behalf of Rochelle Allen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:44:24 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rochelle Allen
103 Old Quogue Rd
Riverhead, NY 11901-3913

From: Care2 on behalf of marilyn.Rock
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 3:48:13 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. marilyn Rock
6 Church St
Carmel, NY 10512-2145

From: Care2 on behalf of Margarita Dritsas
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:11:40 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Margarita Dritsas
84 Main St
Delhi, NY 13753-1121

From: Care2 on behalf of Avery Wells
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:11:45 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Avery Wells
148 Madison St Apt 7c
New York, NY 10002-7067

From: Care2 on behalf of John Duran
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:11:45 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. John Duran
30 Bluebell lane
ASTORIA, NY 11105

From: Care2 on behalf of Francine Reines
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:12:26 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Francine Reines
103 School St
Nyack, NY 10960-1510

From: Care2 on behalf of Maureen Cauthen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:16:32 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Maureen Cauthen
2815 Ocean Pkwy Apt 6i
Brooklyn, NY 11235-7850

From: Care2 on behalf of Diana Lopardo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:18:09 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Diana Lopardo
00-00 Main Street
New York, NY 11427

From: Care2 on behalf of Jennifer Schnick
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:20:00 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jennifer Schnick
148 Laird Ave
Buffalo, NY 14207-1558

From: Care2 on behalf of Stella M. Aleman de Gallardo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:20:45 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Stella M. Aleman de Gallardo
7301 41st Ave Apt 5e
Woodside, NY 11377-3023

From: Care2 on behalf of Liza Womack
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:47:53 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Liza Womack
34 E Walnut St
Long Beach, NY 11561-3516

From: Care2 on behalf of DENISE DELUCA
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 4:53:32 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. DENISE DELUCA
505 Naughton Ave
Staten Island, NY 10305-3322

From: Care2 on behalf of Helen Willeboordse
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 5:10:55 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Helen Willeboordse
8 Stuyvesant Oval
New York, NY 10009-2425

From: Care2 on behalf of Robin Mitchell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 5:13:11 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Robin Mitchell
308 6th St
East Northport, NY 11731-2817

From: Care2 on behalf of Daniel Rous
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 5:13:14 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Daniel Rous
304 W 121st St Apt 8
New York, NY 10027-6183

From: Care2 on behalf of Edward Carey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 5:13:14 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Edward Carey
15033 20th Rd
Whitestone, NY 11357-3601

From: Care2 on behalf of Jean Naples
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 5:13:56 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Jean Naples
9 Benson St
West Haverstraw, NY 10993-1302

From: Care2 on behalf of Steven Yang
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 5:23:10 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Steven Yang
215 W 105th St Apt 1c
New York, NY 10025-3958

From: Care2 on behalf of Sandra Greer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:18:09 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Just discussing it will help. Even if there is no actual law passed, reminding people of the crap they are consuming has to be helpful.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sandra Greer
381 7th St
Brooklyn, NY 11215-3312

From: Care2 on behalf of Francine Rosemberg
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 5:52:41 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Francine Rosemberg
170 W End Ave Apt 11h
New York, NY 10023-5409

From: Care2 on behalf of Keiko Mitsunaga
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 6:28:03 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Keiko Mitsunaga
3965 51st St
Woodside, NY 11377-3155

From: Care2 on behalf of george carva
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 6:57:02 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. george carva
1010 Woodycrest Ave
Bronx, NY 10452-5204

From: Care2 on behalf of Ilene Ehrlich
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 6:58:02 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ilene Ehrlich
24273 61st Ave
Flushing, NY 11362-1958

From: Care2 on behalf of craig_cascio
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 6:58:02 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. craig cascio
67 Oak St
Amityville, NY 11701-3049

From: Care2 on behalf of Jasmine Duque
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 7:00:25 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jasmine Duque
108 62 4th ave
Corona, NY 11368

From: Care2 on behalf of genevieve paterson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 7:01:16 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. genevieve paterson
619 W 140th St Apt 4d
New York, NY 10031-7165

From: Care2 on behalf of stella fotinos
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 7:01:17 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. stella fotinos
2328swenson pl
BELLMORE, NY 11710

From: Care2 on behalf of stephen_mcdonald
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 7:32:59 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. stephen mcdonald
20 Arbell Dr
Brentwood, NY 11717-6634

From: Care2 on behalf of Jeanne Esch
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 7:33:32 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jeanne Esch
578 lakeview ace
LAKEVIEW, NY 11570

From: Care2 on behalf of Mildred Pepel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:18:09 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Mildred Pepel
11iona street
STATEN ISLAND, NY 10305

From: Care2 on behalf of Omair Zia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 7:36:04 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Omair Zia
First avenue
E ROCKAWAY, NY 11518

From: Care2 on behalf of gloria bautista
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 7:36:43 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. gloria bautista
112 Lake Shore Rd
Putnam Valley, NY 10579-1312

From: Care2 on behalf of Roseann DiBiasi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 7:55:23 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Roseann DiBiasi
130 Underhill Ave
W Harrison, NY 10604-2453

From: Care2 on behalf of john capriglione
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 7:59:33 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Capriglione
PO Box 313
Smallwood, NY 12778-0313

From: Care2 on behalf of G.E. Toonkel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 8:03:12 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

This I agree with. Yet, shame on Bloomberg for his continued destruction of PUBLIC EDUCATION. The extensive research by true educators not business men and woman who are looking for another way at making a profit is an "OUTRAGE" and needs to stop at once.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. G.E. Toonkel
4542 41st St Apt 3j
Sunnyside, NY 11104-3420

From: Care2 on behalf of Ambrose Bono
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 8:03:12 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

The Board of Health and the Health Adm. protect profits not children.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ambrose Bono
79-20m149th St.
Flushing, NY 11367

From: Care2 on behalf of Lauren Wodzanowski
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 8:31:44 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Lauren Wodzanowski
1662 E 38th St
Brooklyn, NY 11234-4202

From: Care2 on behalf of Wendy Sax
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 8:32:04 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Wendy Sax
243 W 70th St
New York, NY 10023-4318

From: Care2 on behalf of jairo padilla
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 8:34:37 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. jairo padilla
9425 57th Ave
Elmhurst, NY 11373-5129

From: Care2 on behalf of William Ferns
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 8:35:02 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. William Ferns
Washington Heights
New York, NY 10040

From: Care2 on behalf of John Keiser
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:21:30 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Keiser
410 E 6th St Apt 17b
New York, NY 10009-6417

From: Care2 on behalf of Cindy Tan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 8:36:16 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Cindy Tan
2468 84th St
Brooklyn, NY 11214-3569

From: Care2 on behalf of Noah Lampert
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:06:16 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Noah Lampert
280 E 2nd St Apt 11a
New York, NY 10009-9101

From: Care2 on behalf of Linda Grasso
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:09:10 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Linda Grasso
207 Monroe Dr
Mastic Beach, NY 11951-3907

From: Care2 on behalf of Frank Davis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:41:10 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Frank Davis
1005rome Ave. #B52
Bronx, NY 10452

From: Care2 on behalf of Marie Zuneska
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:42:38 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Marie Zuneska
50 Olive St
Central Islip, NY 11722-3922

From: Care2 on behalf of Diana Ross
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Wednesday, July 18, 2012 9:42:41 PM

Jul 18, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Diana Ross
24 White Pine Ln
Northport, NY 11768-3470

From: Care2 on behalf of Rosemary Tramantano
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 7:19:47 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Rosemary Tramantano
echo ave
Sound Beach, NY 11789

From: Care2 on behalf of Ellen Bartlett
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 7:52:55 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Ellen Bartlett
117 E 77th St Apt 9c
New York, NY 10075-1822

From: Care2 on behalf of tracie demotte
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 8:19:17 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. tracie demotte
1979 Randolph Rd
Ashville, NY 14710-9782

From: Care2 on behalf of tessa chandler
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 8:51:50 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. tessa chandler
185 W End Ave Apt 25j
New York, NY 10023-5550

From: Care2 on behalf of Fernando Valentin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:21:35 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Fernando Valentin
30 Peter Cooper Dr
Poughkeepsie, NY 12601-1515

From: Care2 on behalf of Sheila Mclaughlin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 9:23:34 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sheila Mclaughlin
204 E 7th St
New York, NY 10009-5911

From: Care2 on behalf of Jeffrey Freilich
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 9:23:44 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jeffrey Freilich
2840 County Route 1
Port Jervis, NY 12771-3423

From: Care2 on behalf of Urban Ellis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 9:56:22 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Urban Ellis
210 W 230th St Apt 8h
Bronx, NY 10463-5232

From: Care2 on behalf of carlos pesantes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 11:32:08 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. carlos pesantes
6811 Alderton St
Rego Park, NY 11374-5320

From: Care2 on behalf of norie mojado
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 11:33:22 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. norie mojado
10 pinesbridge rd
Maryknoll, NY 10545

From: Care2 on behalf of barbara weiler
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 11:33:37 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. barbara weiler
449 riverside Drive,
new york, NY 10027

From: Care2 on behalf of Laurie Rudin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 12:07:16 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Laurie Rudin
Vanderbilt Way
Valley Stream, NY 11581

From: Care2 on behalf of Miguel Varela
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 12:07:31 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Miguel Varela
8690 102nd St
Richmond Hill, NY 11418-1547

From: Care2 on behalf of debra plishka
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 12:07:53 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. debra plishka
105 Casterbridge Ln
Baldwinsville, NY 13027-1065

From: Care2 on behalf of Carol Gallagher
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 12:07:57 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carol Gallagher
15511 Jewel Ave Apt 4c
Flushing, NY 11367-1854

From: Care2 on behalf of Jonathan Rayson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:21:38 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jonathan Rayson
4489 Broadway Apt 4d
New York, NY 10040-2495

From: Care2 on behalf of Kayla Ritt
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 12:35:57 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

I am concerned about this but in schools and school cafeterias only!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kayla Ritt
2 Stuyvesant Oval
New York, NY 10009-2111

From: Care2 on behalf of Dinah Holtzman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 12:38:31 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Dinah Holtzman
14 Weldon St
Rochester, NY 14611-4026

From: Care2 on behalf of Caroline Waterman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 1:12:24 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Caroline Waterman
1202 Union St Apt 3
Schenectady, NY 12308-2927

From: Care2 on behalf of Paul Impola
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 1:40:53 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Impola
99 S Pearl St
Albany, NY 12207-1438

From: Care2 on behalf of Victoria Smith
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 2:48:28 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Victoria Smith
PO Box 96
Brookfield, NY 13314-0096

From: Care2 on behalf of Nick Kowalczyk
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 2:50:00 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

This is a rational step and those who disagree need to put down the big gulp and look around at the size of their fellow citizens.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Nick Kowalczyk
87 India St Apt 1
Brooklyn, NY 11222-5910

From: Care2 on behalf of A.K. Witt
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 2:50:35 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. A.K. Witt
402 E 78th St
New York, NY 10075-1676

From: Care2 on behalf of Trish Gannon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 4:30:46 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Trish Gannon
6509 Rush Lima Rd
Honeoye Falls, NY 14472-9012

From: Care2 on behalf of Susan Matuszak
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 5:57:37 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Susan Matuszak
12333 Ridge Rd
Medina, NY 14103-9626

From: Care2 on behalf of Mt Lunasea
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 5:57:46 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Mt Lunasea
460 Troy Rd
Ithaca, NY 14850-9022

From: Care2 on behalf of sophie singer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. sophie singer
7 newport lane
Wainscott, NY 11975

From: Care2 on behalf of MICHAEL MITCHELL
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:21:40 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. MICHAEL MITCHELL
401 E 116th St
New York, NY 10029-1624

From: Care2 on behalf of paulette franklin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 6:02:14 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. paulette franklin
2421 Gunther Ave
Bronx, NY 10469-6245

From: Care2 on behalf of Ruth Powell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 6:02:19 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Ruth Powell
2900 Roberts Rd
Eaton, NY 13334-2202

From: Care2 on behalf of Garver Osorio
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 6:02:23 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Garver Osorio
857 Crotona Park N
Bronx, NY 10460-4740

From: Care2 on behalf of Enrique Santaella
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 6:02:28 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Enrique Santaella
New York
NY, NY 10128

From: Care2 on behalf of Neil Freson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 6:02:32 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Neil Freson
26 Bitternell Ln
Henrietta, NY 14467-9731

From: Care2 on behalf of Thomas Monkell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 6:03:48 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Thomas Monkell
762 Madison Ave
Albany, NY 12208-3704

From: Care2 on behalf of -Rev. H.P., Richard J. Treitner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 6:44:09 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. -Rev. H.P., Richard J. Treitner
PO Box 222
/ 9 Academy St.
Pine Hill, NY 12465-0222

From: Care2 on behalf of Nicholas Thompson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 6:45:07 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Nicholas Thompson
8 Chester Ct
Troy, NY 12182-9766

From: Care2 on behalf of Linda Vega
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 6:49:54 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Linda Vega
228 W 24th St
New York, NY 10011-1716

From: Care2 on behalf of Allie Pace
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 7:16:44 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Allie Pace
445 Gramatan Ave Apt Ad2
Mount Vernon, NY 10552-2925

From: Care2 on behalf of Ramona Lawrence
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:22:06 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Ramona Lawrence
77 Columbia St
Knickerbocker, NY 10002-2678

From: Care2 on behalf of Bernice Fishstein
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 7:20:09 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Bernice Fishstein
7234 Avenue M
Brooklyn, NY 11234-5808

From: Care2 on behalf of william toner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 7:56:10 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. william toner
9 highland ave
mcgraw, NY 13101

From: Care2 on behalf of Kiirsten Ostrofsky
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 8:35:43 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Kiirsten Ostrofsky
33 Cornflower Ln
E Northport, NY 11731-4717

From: Care2 on behalf of Christopher Arabadjis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 8:35:48 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Christopher Arabadjis
225 Bennett Ave
2t
New York, NY 10040-2437

From: Care2 on behalf of Ilsa Duncan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 8:37:48 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Ilsa Duncan
2101 Beekman Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11225-4846

From: Care2 on behalf of Dan Krauss
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 9:16:55 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Dan Krauss
122 Circular St
Saratoga Springs, NY 12866-3237

From: Care2 on behalf of Sarah Garrity
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 11:12:39 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Sarah Garrity
405 E 16th St Apt 1b
Brooklyn, NY 11226-5646

From: Care2 on behalf of Daniel Hulseapple
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 11:12:43 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Daniel Hulseapple
647 County Highway 78
Middletown, NY 10940-7550

From: Care2 on behalf of Cathe Giffuni
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Thursday, July 19, 2012 11:54:46 PM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Cathe Giffuni
240 E 27th St
New York, NY 10016-9277

From: Care2 on behalf of Luis-Alfredo Cartagena
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 12:42:59 AM

Jul 19, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Luis-Alfredo Cartagena
199 Chambers St
New York, NY 10007-1044

From: Care2 on behalf of Karla Weinberg
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:22:12 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Karla Weinberg
235 Adams St
Brooklyn, NY 11201-2858

From: Care2 on behalf of jon.gordon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 1:11:22 AM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. jon.gordon
351 Marine Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11209-8055

From: Care2 on behalf of andria lumpkin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 1:19:13 AM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. andria lumpkin
2260 Lake Ave
Rochester, NY 14612-5758

From: Care2 on behalf of mary.poggi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 8:29:40 AM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. mary.poggi
PO Box 10365
Rochester, NY 14610-0365

From: Care2 on behalf of shari swanson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 10:12:48 AM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. shari swanson
156 Whitehill Ave
Jamestown, NY 14701-7928

From: Care2 on behalf of savita ramdev
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 12:08:15 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. savita ramdev
5116 Shiraz Ln
Fayetteville, NY 13066-2572

From: Care2 on behalf of Stephanie Etherton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 12:11:28 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Stephanie Etherton
504 E 63rd St
New York, NY 10065-7919

From: Care2 on behalf of Angela Bartolone
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 12:31:36 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Angela Bartolone
1380 Riverside Dr Apt 2f
New York, NY 10033-1027

From: Care2 on behalf of Nicole Howell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 1:06:31 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nicole Howell
south ave.
Elmira, NY 14904

From: Care2 on behalf of Mary R. McKeown
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 2:43:46 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Mary R McKeown
PO Box 182
Highland Mills, NY 10930-0182

From: Care2 on behalf of patti loughrey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 3:41:22 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. patti loughrey
3306 County Route 57
Oswego, NY 13126-6436

From: Care2 on behalf of Margaret Holty
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:22:13 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Margaret Holty
39 Greentree de n
Hyde Park, NY 12538

From: Care2 on behalf of Tara Bazilian-Chang
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 3:41:43 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Tara Bazilian-Chang
279 Wellingwood Dr
East Amherst, NY 14051-1750

From: Care2 on behalf of Shirley Becker
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 4:32:59 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Shirley Becker
315 8th Ave
New York, NY 10001-4809

From: Care2 on behalf of Stephanie Foxx
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 4:33:59 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Stephanie Foxx
new york
new york, NY 10003

From: Care2 on behalf of Marlene Jampol
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 4:35:19 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Marlene Jampol
10243 63rd Rd
Forest Hills, NY 11375-1048

From: Care2 on behalf of miriam shapiro
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 5:27:54 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. miriam shapiro
13 Selden St
Rochester, NY 14605-2921

From: Care2 on behalf of Kathleen Roberts
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 5:27:56 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kathleen Roberts
PO Box 155
Hampton, NY 12837-0155

From: Care2 on behalf of Debora Bissonnette
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 6:31:13 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Debora Bissonnette
3812 Main St
Burdett, NY 14818-9698

From: Care2 on behalf of JC Amorini
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 6:37:45 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. JC Amorini
10447 47th Ave
Corona, NY 11368-2820

From: Care2 on behalf of Eleanor Forman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 7:30:18 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Anyone who is DETERMINED to drink huge amounts of what's bad for them can always order 2 or 4 glasses.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Eleanor Forman
299 10th Ave Apt 2a
New York, NY 10001-7032

From: Care2 on behalf of william walsh
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 7:35:03 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. william walsh
32 Brown Ave
Rosendale, NY 12472-9722

From: Care2 on behalf of mary_schroeder
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:22:13 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. mary schroeder
2271 Knapp St
Brooklyn, NY 11229-5768

From: Care2 on behalf of Carolyn Tkach
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 7:35:11 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Carolyn Tkach
522 5th St
Brooklyn, NY 11215-3579

From: Care2 on behalf of Valerie Goodness
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 8:17:43 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Valerie Goodness
317 Sundridge Dr # U
Amherst, NY 14228-1810

From: Care2 on behalf of BARBARA THOMAS
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 8:17:54 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. BARBARA THOMAS
237 Sullivan Pl
Brooklyn, NY 11225-2955

From: Care2 on behalf of Debra Krosinskys
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 8:19:59 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Debra Krosinskys
3122 Elmwood Ave
Rochester, NY 14618-2052

From: Care2 on behalf of Edyth Dunne
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 8:45:09 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Edyth Dunne
18 Amityville Rd
Melville, NY 11747-1117

From: Care2 on behalf of Barbara Estes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 9:45:56 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Estes
10325 68th Ave
Forest Hills, NY 11375-3267

From: Care2 on behalf of Drieux Koeppel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 9:46:05 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Drieux Koeppel
605 Echo Rd
Vestal, NY 13850-5205

From: Care2 on behalf of Matthrew Casselman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 10:16:28 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Matthrew Casselman
702 st why 131
Massena, NY 13662

From: Care2 on behalf of Kathy DeFranco
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 11:16:27 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kathy DeFranco
165 Robert Gdns N Apt 2
Queensbury, NY 12804-5283

From: Care2 on behalf of Sam Koprak
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 11:45:47 PM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Sam Koprak
330 Westminster Rd
Brooklyn, NY 11218-4344

From: Care2 on behalf of Ralph Cruz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:22:14 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ralph Cruz
105 Bennett Ave Apt 23a
New York, NY 10033-2357

From: Care2 on behalf of merete.verrechia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 12:47:02 AM

Jul 20, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

... drink pure water from the source and you will feel great and healthy !!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. merete verrechia
80 Metropolitan Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11249-3919

From: Care2 on behalf of ALICIA LARUCCIA
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 1:47:05 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. ALICIA LARUCCIA
625 E 187th St
Bronx, NY 10458-6729

From: Care2 on behalf of Michelle Roesch
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 1:47:36 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Michelle Roesch
6021 Crittenden Rd
Akron, NY 14001-9231

From: Care2 on behalf of Sean Brown
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 2:46:23 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Sean Brown
6 Clartendon Road
Hempstead, NY 11550

From: Care2 on behalf of sarah silverlight
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 3:46:15 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. sarah silverlight
504 Broadway
Troy, NY 12180-3346

From: Care2 on behalf of Georgeanne Matranga
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 3:46:20 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Georgeanne Matranga
140 Village Green Dr
Port Jefferson Station, NY 11776-4519

From: Care2 on behalf of Karryn Rogers
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 4:16:16 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Karryn Rogers
725 E 84th St
Brooklyn, NY 11236-3501

From: Care2 on behalf of Phyllis Gray
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 5:16:12 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Distribution of Better Health advice should be distributed free.
Dangers exposed. A more aware public will be a healthier public.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Phyllis Gray
43 W 61st St
New York, NY 10023-7607

From: Care2 on behalf of Isabel Rivera
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 5:16:18 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Isabel Rivera
2254 2nd Ave Apt 4
New York, NY 10029-2268

From: Care2 on behalf of Charles Berenguer Jr
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 6:16:24 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Charles Berenguer Jr
1236 Wheeler Ave
Bronx, NY 10472-2484

From: Care2 on behalf of Richard Coleman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:22:20 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Richard Coleman
6 Duzine Rd
New Paltz, NY 12561-1304

From: Care2 on behalf of paul absaom
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 6:16:29 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. paul absaom
1028 Dix Ave
Hudson Falls, NY 12839-1056

From: Care2 on behalf of Fred and Joan Quaderer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 8:18:22 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Fred and Joan Quaderer
PO Box 564
Rhinebeck, NY 12572-0564

From: Care2 on behalf of Dennis F. Doran Jr
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 8:18:23 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Dennis F Doran Jr
520 Grand St
Oneida, NY 13421-1106

From: Care2 on behalf of Kathleen Hahn
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 8:49:15 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kathleen Hahn
1466 Lincoln Blvd
Bay Shore, NY 11706-3905

From: Care2 on behalf of Vincent Stein
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 9:17:34 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Vincent Stein
4oakwood dr west
Albany, NY 12205

From: Care2 on behalf of Jenette D'Alessandro
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 9:17:42 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jenette D'Alessandro
15153 21st Ave
Whitestone, NY 11357-3703

From: Care2 on behalf of Mark Creighton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 9:18:40 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mark Creighton
434 Palmer Rd
E Greenbush, NY 12061-3508

From: Care2 on behalf of Nancy Norton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 9:47:43 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nancy Norton
26 Quarry Rd
Ithaca, NY 14850-8726

From: Care2 on behalf of Audrey Klesta
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 9:48:45 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Audrey Klesta
66 Crestline Rd
Rochester, NY 14618-3708

From: Care2 on behalf of ana.santiago
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 9:49:05 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. ana.santiago
1760 Union St
Brooklyn, NY 11213-5059

From: Care2 on behalf of Margo Pastirchak
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:22:30 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Margo Pastirchak
6 Pagnotta Dr
Port Jefferson Station, NY 11776-4453

From: Care2 on behalf of Amanda Scuder
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 10:17:28 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Amanda Scuder
175 W 92nd St Apt 6d
New York, NY 10025-7523

From: Care2 on behalf of richard lapointe
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 10:19:39 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. richard lapointe
191 Sanford St
Rochester, NY 14620-2255

From: Care2 on behalf of J.C. Hunter
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 10:47:57 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. J C Hunter
114 23 144 St
Jamaica, NY 11436

From: Care2 on behalf of Elayne McKenna
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 10:49:06 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Elayne McKenna
130 Dugdale St
Staten Island, NY 10306-5553

From: Care2 on behalf of Laura Hegeman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 10:49:06 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Laura Hegeman
19 Woodstream Dr
Delmar, NY 12054-4111

From: Care2 on behalf of Laurel Huggins
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 11:17:55 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Laurel Huggins
1020 Grand Concourse
Bronx, NY 10451-2605

From: Care2 on behalf of Amelia Roberts
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 11:19:21 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Amelia Roberts
1180 Northrup Rd
Penfield, NY 14526-9734

From: Care2 on behalf of karen.opalka
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 12:17:03 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. karen opalka
6 Heather Ridge Rd
Averill Park, NY 12018-9668

From: Care2 on behalf of Kristin Knupfer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 1:18:17 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kristin Knupfer
8724 Lake Shore Rd
Angola, NY 14006-9531

From: Care2 on behalf of Michael Gary
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 1:19:28 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Gary
80 Van Cortlandt Park S Apt F32
Bronx, NY 10463-3161

From: Care2 on behalf of Taylor Mitchell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:22:34 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Taylor Mitchell
2424 28th St Apt 1b
Astoria, NY 11102-1935

From: Care2 on behalf of Robyn O'Neill
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 2:49:33 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Robyn O'Neill
145 E 16th St
New York, NY 10003-3405

From: Care2 on behalf of Harya Irvine
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 3:49:01 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Harya Irvine
118 Latourette St
Staten Island, NY 10309-3426

From: Care2 on behalf of Cathryn Classen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 3:49:46 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Cathryn Classen
9761 Clipnock Rd
East Bethany, NY 14054-9761

From: Care2 on behalf of Ken W
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 4:20:46 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ken W
3415 72nd St
Jackson Heights, NY 11372-1061

From: Care2 on behalf of Barry Spielvogel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 4:48:38 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Barry Spielvogel
435 E 79th St Apt 11o
New York, NY 10075-1078

From: Care2 on behalf of Alicia Guidarelli
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 4:48:39 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Alicia Guidarelli
77 Wild Birch Farms
Cortlandt Manor, NY 10567-1449

From: Care2 on behalf of Ronald Gall
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 4:49:02 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ronald Gall
145 Penora St
Depew, NY 14043-4531

From: Care2 on behalf of SUSAN leber
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 4:49:47 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. SUSAN leber
166 Scholes St
Brooklyn, NY 11206-2149

From: Care2 on behalf of Mark Powers
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 4:49:52 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Mark Powers
379 Barnard Ave
Cedarhurst, NY 11516-1701

From: Care2 on behalf of Natasha and Noah Brenner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 5:19:46 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Natasha and Noah Brenner
229 Chrystie St Apt 715
Knickerbocker, NY 10002-1172

From: Care2 on behalf of debra leffe
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:22:58 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. debra leffe
1 bayclub drive drive apt 10B
Bayside, NY 11360

From: Care2 on behalf of Elaine McAuliffe
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 5:20:12 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Elaine McAuliffe
132 Elmont Rd
Elmont, NY 11003-1604

From: Care2 on behalf of Margaret Jensen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 5:21:00 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Margaret Jensen
617 Washington Ave
Dunkirk, NY 14048-2524

From: Care2 on behalf of george picchioni
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 5:48:19 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. george picchioni
1923 Colden Ave
Bronx, NY 10462-3126

From: Care2 on behalf of robin williams
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 5:48:38 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. robin williams
71 Tee Hill Rd
Queensbury, NY 12804-8626

From: Care2 on behalf of Doris Butterfield
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 5:49:11 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Doris Butterfield
111 East Ave
Walden, NY 12586-1549

From: Care2 on behalf of Nicholas Zizelis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 5:49:48 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Nicholas Zizelis
20117 42nd Ave
Bayside, NY 11361-1830

From: Care2 on behalf of Janice Bernard
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 5:49:53 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Janice Bernard
100 Revolutionary Rd
Scarborough, NY 10510-2015

From: Care2 on behalf of Joey Leftow
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 6:19:13 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Joey Leftow
99 Hillside Ave Apt 21a
New York, NY 10040-2724

From: Care2 on behalf of Paul Omin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 6:48:37 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Omin
140 Deer Run
Chappaqua, NY 10514-3722

From: Care2 on behalf of edith frank
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 7:18:49 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. edith frank
3935 Blackstone Ave
Bronx, NY 10471-3715

From: Care2 on behalf of mimmion.ouedraogo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:42 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. mimmion ouedraogo
725 Fox St
Bronx, NY 10455-2046

From: Care2 on behalf of Louise Luna
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:03 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

It is fantastic that a politician has to take such a dramatic step to bring light to what is a full fledged problem with our societies approach to something as personal as what we eat and drink. Mayor Bloomberg is right in his position but everyone is up in arms screaming freedom of choice. The obesity problem in this country affects us all and it is just a matter of time before the insurance companies get involved and start raising insurance rates across the board to compensate for the health issues obesity will bring. Children especially do not need that enormous amount of sugar in their system, rotting their teeth, paving the way to diabetes, the stigma of obesity itself and the lack of self esteem that goes along with it. It's not just sodas that are 'super sized', every fast food item is and the illnesses will be 'super-sized' as well.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Louise Luna
1610 Glasco Tpke Apt C1
Woodstock, NY 12498-2235

From: Care2 on behalf of roberto.roman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 7:48:40 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. roberto roman
99-06 58th ave.
New York, NY 11368

From: Care2 on behalf of Kenneth Bird
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 7:48:40 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Kenneth Bird
131 Aragon Ave
Rochester, NY 14622-1616

From: Care2 on behalf of Alicia Rubi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 8:18:37 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Alicia Rubi
POBox #
NYC, NY 10463

From: Care2 on behalf of Joan Ciccarone
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 8:48:16 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Joan Ciccarone
415 riddle rd
Cossayuna, NY 12823

From: Care2 on behalf of Ray Lee-McPherson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 9:49:41 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ray Lee-McPherson
17503 137th Ave
Jamaica, NY 11434-4529

From: Care2 on behalf of Ann Stickel
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 10:19:25 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ann Stickel
7 Redwood Ave
Whitesboro, NY 13492-2314

From: Care2 on behalf of carol warren
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 10:48:59 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. carol warren
264 Dewitt Mills Rd
Hurley, NY 12443-6214

From: Care2 on behalf of Kathleen Bobb
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 10:49:12 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Kathleen Bobb
207 Hunt Rd
Westerlo, NY 12193-2530

From: Care2 on behalf of Lisa Verchereau
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 10:49:20 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lisa Verchereau
59 Grant St
Cohoes, NY 12047-2746

From: Care2 on behalf of Mary Kay Philp
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 10:49:31 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Mary Kay Philp
661 Adeline Dr
Webster, NY 14580-2345

From: Care2 on behalf of Vanessa Garcia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:10 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Vanessa Garcia
620 E 11th St
New York, NY 10009-4125

From: Care2 on behalf of Ralph Alvarez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Saturday, July 21, 2012 11:19:27 PM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Ralph Alvarez
6 Scenic Pond Dr
Warwick, NY 10990-2650

From: Care2 on behalf of Cathy Revis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 12:18:52 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Cathy Revis
66 Brandy Ln
New Hamburg, NY 12590-6445

From: Care2 on behalf of sherry.persaud
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 12:19:20 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. sherry.persaud
9540 112th St
South Richmond Hill, NY 11419-1106

From: Care2 on behalf of Jill Simon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 12:19:36 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jill Simon
12 E 14th St Apt 3e
New York, NY 10003-3139

From: Care2 on behalf of Barbara Rintrona
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 12:48:58 AM

Jul 21, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Rintrona
7 2nd Ave
Central Islip, NY 11722-3011

From: Care2 on behalf of Jon Spinac
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 1:19:13 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jon Spinac
29 E 22nd St
New York, NY 10010-5303

From: Care2 on behalf of Jim Hale
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 2:19:14 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jim Hale
7734 E Carter Rd
Westmoreland, NY 13490-1500

From: Care2 on behalf of Karen Trepes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 7:50:10 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Karen Trepes
PO Box 752
Hammondsport, NY 14840-0752

From: Care2 on behalf of RUSSELL LINK
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 8:19:20 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. RUSSELL LINK
56 Arlington Pl
Buffalo, NY 14201-1338

From: Care2 on behalf of michael taylor
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 8:19:34 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. michael taylor
3359 st. rt. 196
ft. ann, NY 12827

From: Care2 on behalf of Edward Mutchnick
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:11 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Edward Mutchnick
41 W Belle Terre Ave
Lindenhurst, NY 11757-6432

From: Care2 on behalf of Sally Giles
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 8:49:29 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Sally Giles
7370 199th St
Flushing, NY 11366-1823

From: Care2 on behalf of Wilmoth W Hinds
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 8:49:45 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Wilmoth W Hinds
65 E 19th St
Brooklyn, NY 11226-4401

From: Care2 on behalf of Cleve Lamison
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 9:20:28 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Cleve Lamison
New York
NY, NY 10014

From: Care2 on behalf of C. K. Zawadzki
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 9:50:41 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. C K Zawadzki
227 Juniper Dr
Schenectady, NY 12306-1703

From: Care2 on behalf of yvonne Pratt
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 10:19:45 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. yvonne Pratt
2 Frank St
East Patchogue, NY 11772-5908

From: Care2 on behalf of Soohyen Park
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 10:20:05 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Soohyen Park
207 Green St Apt 11
Brooklyn, NY 11222-1423

From: Care2 on behalf of Marco Pereira
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 10:49:40 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Marco Pereira
3077 38th St Apt 2b
Astoria, NY 11103-4176

From: Care2 on behalf of Susan Zeiger
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 10:50:00 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan Zeiger
63 Beacon Hill Rd
Ardsley, NY 10502-1632

From: Care2 on behalf of Karen Cignoli
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 10:50:34 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Karen Cignoli
1 Sun Valley Dr
Coram, NY 11727-1906

From: Care2 on behalf of Luis Krause
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 10:50:38 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Luis Krause
2 Jennifer Ln
Rye Brook, NY 10573-1916

From: Care2 on behalf of Dina D'Alessandro
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:12 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Dina D'Alessandro
443 E 6th St Apt 3
New York, NY 10009-6318

From: Care2 on behalf of jackie callahan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 11:20:16 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jackie Callahan
792 Route 29
Saratoga Springs, NY 12866-6800

From: Care2 on behalf of Janet Conwell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 12:50:39 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Janet Conwell
206 Lincoln Ave
Endicott, NY 13760-5136

From: Care2 on behalf of deborah beck
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 1:49:49 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. deborah beck
400 Decatur Ave
Peekskill, NY 10566-2110

From: Care2 on behalf of Jeannette De Jesus
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 2:20:22 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jeannette De Jesus
1 Surrey Ln
Harriman, NY 10926-3234

From: Care2 on behalf of salvatore.cento
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 2:20:30 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. salvatore cento
2043 E 41st St
Brooklyn, NY 11234-2904

From: Care2 on behalf of morton davis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 3:20:46 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. morton davis
PO Box 409
Rockville Centre, NY 11571-0409

From: Care2 on behalf of Karin Liiv
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 3:21:01 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Karin Liiv
92 Hooker Pl
Staten Island, NY 10302-1652

From: Care2 on behalf of Steven Lefkow
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 3:50:34 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Steven Lefkow
20 Cartwright Rd
Stony Point, NY 10980-1726

From: Care2 on behalf of Dara Birnbaum
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 3:50:34 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Dara Birnbaum
140 Thompson St Apt 3a
New York, NY 10012-3117

From: Care2 on behalf of Virginia Ludden
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 3:51:12 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Virginia Ludden
1 Bellevue Ave
Ilion, NY 13357-1609

From: Care2 on behalf of Jim Hochstetler
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:13 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Jim Hochstetler
Not available
MANHATTAN, NY 10024

From: Care2 on behalf of athena wong
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 3:51:56 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. athena wong
13 Marcus Garvey Blvd
Brooklyn, NY 11206-5307

From: Care2 on behalf of Diane Fitzgerald
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 4:21:24 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Diane Fitzgerald
32 Condon Rd
Stillwater, NY 12170-1914

From: Care2 on behalf of Brian Head
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 4:22:09 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Brian Head
264 Lenox Ave
Albany, NY 12208-1408

From: Care2 on behalf of John Williams
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 4:52:55 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. John Williams
8423 Woodbox Rd
Manlius, NY 13104-9416

From: Care2 on behalf of Patrice Jennings
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 4:53:32 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Patrice Jennings
244 Bald Hill Rd
Spencer, NY 14883-9608

From: Care2 on behalf of Shelia Adam
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 5:21:15 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Shelia Adam
43 Lester St
Buffalo, NY 14210-1619

From: Care2 on behalf of Clara Bass
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 5:21:45 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Clara Bass
42 Scenic Cir
Croton Hdsn, NY 10520-1658

From: Care2 on behalf of abby spitzer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 5:50:36 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. abby spitzer
119 Penfield Ave
Croton ON Hudson, NY 10520-2738

From: Care2 on behalf of Kathleen Quain
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 5:51:05 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Kathleen Quain
303 Park Ave S
1126
New York, NY 10010-3601

From: Care2 on behalf of Jeffrey Mercer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 5:51:18 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jeffrey Mercer
76SecondAvenue
Albany, NY 12202

From: Care2 on behalf of Jonas Siregar
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:14 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Jonas Siregar
230 W 147th St Apt 1r
New York, NY 10039-3652

From: Care2 on behalf of Donald Mahar
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 5:51:22 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

I back Mayor Blumberg.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Donald Mahar
44 Preakness Way
Saratoga Springs, NY 12866-4751

From: Care2 on behalf of Judy Hirschman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 5:51:51 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Judy Hirschman
1 Fisher Dr
Fleetwood, NY 10552-3665

From: Care2 on behalf of Anna Petrizzo
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 5:51:57 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Anna Petrizzo
7342 Springfield Blvd
Oakland Gardens, NY 11364-3022

From: Care2 on behalf of George Brieger
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 6:21:39 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

I am a New Yorker from the Midwood section of Brooklyn.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. George Brieger
181 Webster Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11230-1105

From: Care2 on behalf of Patrik Williams
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 6:50:52 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Patrik Williams
66 Saint Nicholas Pl Apt A62
New York, NY 10032-8045

From: Care2 on behalf of Eric Drucker
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 7:21:55 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Eric Drucker
40 Heritage Dr Apt F
New City, NY 10956-5351

From: Care2 on behalf of Linda Millemaci
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 7:51:28 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Linda Millemaci
590 Allenhurst Rd
Amherst, NY 14226-2886

From: Care2 on behalf of Lea Caplan
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 7:51:37 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lea Caplan
8 Avalon Rd
Great Neck, NY 11021-3902

From: Care2 on behalf of Lourdes Guzman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 7:51:57 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lourdes Guzman
13313 121st St
South Ozone Park, NY 11420-3241

From: Care2 on behalf of renata dobryn
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 8:50:53 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. renata dobryn
6 Spruce Ln
Montauk, NY 11954

From: Care2 on behalf of Jill Berkowitz-Berliner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:18 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Jill Berkowitz-Berliner
80 Grove St
Mount Kisco, NY 10549-2908

From: Care2 on behalf of Diane M. Foley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 8:51:03 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Diane M. Foley
2400 Wheat Rd
Clifton Springs, NY 14432-9300

From: Care2 on behalf of Scott Clark
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 8:51:28 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Scott Clark
114 Cutler Rd
Greene, NY 13778-1029

From: Care2 on behalf of gary dube
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 8:51:39 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. gary dube
112 Garner Ave
Buffalo, NY 14213-1132

From: Care2 on behalf of Edward Nizalowski
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 9:21:21 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Edward Nizalowski
441 Brown Rd
Berkshire, NY 13736-2334

From: Care2 on behalf of mark trifeletti
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 9:21:41 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. mark trifeletti
1809 N James St
Rome, NY 13440-2419

From: Care2 on behalf of nina long
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 9:21:45 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. nina long
6840 Groton St
Forest Hills, NY 11375-5156

From: Care2 on behalf of Christina Hristodoulou
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 9:22:29 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Christina Hristodoulou
39 Fisher Rd
Commack, NY 11725-5302

From: Care2 on behalf of Arthur Foster
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 9:22:29 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Arthur Foster
229 Mount Hope Dr
Albany, NY 12202-1017

From: Care2 on behalf of Ann Kaslow
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 9:51:17 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ann Kaslow
1025 E 16th St
Brooklyn, NY 11230-4403

From: Care2 on behalf of Deanna Alpert
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 9:52:01 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Deanna Alpert
5050 Pequash Ave
Cutchogue, NY 11935-2262

From: Care2 on behalf of Sara Lavenhar
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:23 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Sara Lavenhar
4820 Lerner Hall 2920 Broadway
New York, NY 10027

From: Care2 on behalf of Mary Rivera
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 9:52:05 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Mary Rivera
3325 90th St
Jackson Hts, NY 11372-1604

From: Care2 on behalf of Leon Hammer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 10:51:07 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Leon Hammer
PO Box 572
Indian Lake, NY 12842-0572

From: Care2 on behalf of Margaret Polino
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 11:20:59 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Margaret Polino
22024 75th Ave
Oakland Gardens, NY 11364-3043

From: Care2 on behalf of Robert Campus
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Sunday, July 22, 2012 11:22:14 PM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Robert Campus
302 W 12th St Apt 2f
New York, NY 10014-6026

From: Care2 on behalf of jj_deedee
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 12:22:00 AM

Jul 22, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. jj deedee
123 main st
New Rochelle, NY 10801

From: Care2 on behalf of Trevor Hansen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 1:21:35 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Trevor Hansen
225 Hart Hall 15 Union Road
Oswego, NY 13126

From: Care2 on behalf of Peter Harrison
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 2:21:24 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Peter Harrison
529 W 42nd St Apt 2c
New York, NY 10036-6226

From: Care2 on behalf of Lily Jou
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 3:51:38 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lily Jou
123 Main Street
NYC, NY 10031

From: Care2 on behalf of Emiliano Velazquez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 7:52:05 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Emiliano Velazquez
34 Monroe St
C5f
New York, NY 10002-7790

From: Care2 on behalf of Jacqueline Peu-Duvallon
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 8:21:55 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jacqueline Peu-Duvallon
40 E 89th St Apt 5d
New York, NY 10128-1216

From: Care2 on behalf of Natalie DeNatale
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:27 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Natalie DeNatale
19 Giant Ln
Levittown, NY 11756-1604

From: Care2 on behalf of Susan Breen
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 9:22:45 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan Breen
211 Hudson Street PO Box
Glasco, NY 12432

From: Care2 on behalf of Jessica Wood
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 9:23:37 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jessica Wood
25 S Park St
Cambridge, NY 12816-1248

From: Care2 on behalf of Patricia Leach
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 9:23:42 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Patricia Leach
60 Easy St
Parish, NY 13131-3159

From: Care2 on behalf of Lawrence Travers
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 9:23:46 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Lawrence Travers
6185 Leslieanne Path
Cicero, NY 13039-9392

From: Care2 on behalf of denise mcalpin mcalpin
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 10:52:32 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. denise mcalpin mcalpin
185 Wortman Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11207-8554

From: Care2 on behalf of Danielle Woerner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 10:53:22 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Danielle Woerner
PO Box 311
Woodstock, NY 12498-0311

From: Care2 on behalf of Edward Braley III
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 11:23:32 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Edward Braley III
48 Ontario St
Cohoes, NY 12047-3414

From: Care2 on behalf of Jeremy Walz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 11:54:01 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jeremy Walz
6 Mercer St
Albany, NY 12203-3608

From: Care2 on behalf of Rodney Patterson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 12:22:36 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Rodney Patterson
Camaan
Ny, NY 12029-2600

From: Care2 on behalf of Richard P. Lipka
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 12:22:42 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Richard P. Lipka
176 Banko Dr
Depew, NY 14043-1241

From: Care2 on behalf of Melissa Stewart
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:37 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Melissa Stewart
30 EEA
MANHATTAN, NY 10028

From: Care2 on behalf of Rochelle Wilinski
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 12:25:03 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rochelle Wilinski
1239 E 69th St
Brooklyn, NY 11234-5768

From: Care2 on behalf of Giselle May
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 12:52:23 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Giselle May
25 Boerum St
Brooklyn, NY 11206-2347

From: Care2 on behalf of Renee Marzigliano
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 12:53:09 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Renee Marzigliano
155 E 88th St
New York, NY 10128-2200

From: Care2 on behalf of Daniel Cadzow
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 12:53:13 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Daniel Cadzow
82 W Humboldt Pkwy
Buffalo, NY 14214-2605

From: Care2 on behalf of Jacqueline Seifert
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 12:53:14 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jacqueline Seifert
257 Furnace Dock Rd.
Cortlandt Manor, NY 10567

From: Care2 on behalf of Patti Stott
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 2:23:16 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Patti Stott
N Rd
Bpor5, NY 13030

From: Care2 on behalf of Jose Lopez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 4:23:32 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jose Lopez
219 Montrose Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11206-2723

From: Care2 on behalf of Cindy DeLong
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 4:24:51 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Cindy DeLong
636 Dublin Rd
Clyde, NY 14433-9411

From: Care2 on behalf of Kim Ambrose
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 5:23:02 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Kim Ambrose
Maspeth
New York, NY 11378

From: Care2 on behalf of James Mosley
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 5:24:15 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. James Mosley
625 E 14th St
New York, NY 10009-3220

From: Care2 on behalf of Daniel Clinton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:47 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Daniel Clinton
54 Graney Ct
Pearl River, NY 10965-1026

From: Care2 on behalf of karen.reyes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:41 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. karen reyes
2820 Marion Ave
Bronx, NY 10458-3017

From: Care2 on behalf of Chris Hernandez
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 6:28:27 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Chris Hernandez
9819 64th Ave Apt 5a
Rego Park, NY 11374-2526

From: Care2 on behalf of Jeri Coleman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 6:57:57 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jeri Coleman
16 Maxon St Apt B
Brockport, NY 14420-2268

From: Care2 on behalf of DENNIS VECCHIARELLO
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 9:27:19 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. DENNIS VECCHIARELLO
435 Michigan St
Ronkonkoma, NY 11779-5205

From: Care2 on behalf of Raymond Hughes
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 10:27:23 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

The other problem is the supersize becomes addictive.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Raymond Hughes
8621 Reservoir Hill Rd
Hammondsport, NY 14840-9662

From: Care2 on behalf of April Guardi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 11:27:59 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. April Guardi
PO Box 102
Great Bend, NY 13643-0102

From: Care2 on behalf of Lynn Meyer
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 11:57:46 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. Lynn Meyer
1785 215th St
Bayside, NY 11360-1727

From: Care2 on behalf of Alvy Lucas
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Monday, July 23, 2012 11:57:50 PM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Alvy Lucas
117 Main St Apt D
Bloomfield, NY 14469-9201

From: Care2 on behalf of Ulle Koiv
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 12:58:16 AM

Jul 23, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ulle Koiv
144 W 17th St
New York, NY 10011-5430

From: Care2 on behalf of Barbara Lefevre
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 2:58:22 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Lefevre
1755 Avenue A
Schenectady, NY 12308-1907

From: Care2 on behalf of e.hegeman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 7:28:08 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Dr. e hegeman
100riverside
Manhattan, NY 10024

From: Care2 on behalf of ian warren
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:54 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. ian warren
287 W 147th St
New York, NY 10039-3414

From: Care2 on behalf of Joyce West
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 7:58:29 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Joyce West
878 W End Ave
New York, NY 10025-4966

From: Care2 on behalf of Jerry Reynolds
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 8:28:48 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jerry Reynolds
PO Box 200
Bible School Park, NY 13737-0200

From: Care2 on behalf of Gary Kuehnlenz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 8:58:38 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Gary Kuehnlenz
Moffatt
Cold Spring, NY 10516

From: Care2 on behalf of Nicole May
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 9:29:00 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nicole May
Lambert
Fredonia, NY 14063

From: Care2 on behalf of Alissa Orber
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 9:59:07 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Alissa Orber
1 Saint Felix St # 1
Brooklyn, NY 11217-1205

From: Care2 on behalf of marcia.petitt
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 10:29:37 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. marcia petitt
6311 Queens Blvd Apt B16
Woodside, NY 11377-5705

From: Care2 on behalf of donna dantuono
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 10:59:00 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. donna dantuono
93 W Neck Rd
Huntington, NY 11743-2435

From: Care2 on behalf of Sarah Hamilton
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 10:59:43 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Sarah Hamilton
9087 Tioughanack Rd
Canastota, NY 13032-4224

From: Care2 on behalf of Russell Alexander
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 11:29:44 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Russell Alexander
69 Washington Ave
Brentwood, NY 11717-3219

From: Care2 on behalf of Janie Masi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 11:29:47 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

Healthy citizens improve the economy, cost less to insure, feed, clothe, etc. If that does not fit into the national agenda of some politicians, it is time to change the politicians.

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Janie Masi
44 E 32nd St
New York, NY 10016-5508

From: Care2 on behalf of cecilia carey
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:58 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. cecilia carey
82 Wall St
New York, NY 10005-3601

From: Care2 on behalf of albert arias
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 11:32:22 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. albert arias
195 Oak Ave
Southold, NY 11971-3539

From: Care2 on behalf of Enrique Santaella
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 11:52:51 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Enrique Santaella
170 E 87th St Apt W9e
New York, NY 10128-2216

From: Care2 on behalf of Louise Volpe
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 11:53:47 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Louise Volpe
23 Russ Rd
Mahopac, NY 10541-1816

From: Care2 on behalf of Terry Corigliano
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 11:55:48 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Terry Corigliano
8221 Rome Westernville Rd
Rome, NY 13440-1465

From: Care2 on behalf of Jacqueline Okolie
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 11:57:13 AM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jacqueline Okolie
25 Union Sq W # C3-Phc-B
New York, NY 10003-3317

From: Care2 on behalf of Nancy Schwartz
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 12:53:52 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Nancy Schwartz
334 Richard Ct
Pomona, NY 10970-2310

From: Care2 on behalf of Terumi Tokita
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 12:54:34 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Terumi Tokita
6825 Clyde St
Forest Hills, NY 11375-5037

From: Care2 on behalf of Paul Grasso
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 1:59:35 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Grasso
178 Shelby Ave
Holbrook, NY 11741-3223

From: Care2 on behalf of Terri Schneider
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 2:54:06 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Terri Schneider
151 Ridge Rd
Valley Cottage, NY 10989-2473

From: Care2 on behalf of kate.kobayashi
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 2:54:10 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. kate.kobayashi
237 Elizabeth St
New York, NY 10012-3542

From: Care2 on behalf of Margot Steinberg
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:23:59 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Margot Steinberg
9 Orchard St
Dobbs Ferry, NY 10522-2310

From: Care2 on behalf of Marcia Caronia
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 2:57:20 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Marcia Caronia
7 Croft Ln
Smithtown, NY 11787-4109

From: Care2 on behalf of catherine mirbella
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 3:26:24 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. catherine mirbella
394 Alter Ave
Staten Island, NY 10305-2302

From: Care2 on behalf of carolyn.smith
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 3:58:53 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. carolyn smith
875 Columbus Ave
New York, NY 10025-4563

From: Care2 on behalf of Russell Reda
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 3:59:00 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

People will buy two instead of one, like they did before the Big Gulp. Bloomberg is pissed because he can't hold on to one, or take a bite out of a Big Mac! He has to order from the kids menu!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Russell Reda
3273b Barkley Ave
Bronx, NY 10465-1641

From: Care2 on behalf of Stacey Prussman
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 3:59:56 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Stacey Prussman
11420 Queens Blvd Apt A5
Flushing, NY 11375-7069

From: Care2 on behalf of Czerny Auyang
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 4:55:49 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Czerny Auyang
1507 8th Ave
Brooklyn, NY 11215-5601

From: Care2 on behalf of Constance Mandeville
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 4:55:58 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Constance Mandeville
492 Point Au Fer Rd
Champlain, NY 12919-6315

From: Care2 on behalf of Lori Gilio
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 5:56:23 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lori Gilio
348 149th St
Whitestone, NY 11357-1129

From: Care2 on behalf of Miriam Amari
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 7:25:43 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Miriam Amari
213 Upper Byrdcliffe Rd
Woodstock, NY 12498-1055

From: Care2 on behalf of Gianna Borkhuis
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 7:26:02 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Gianna Borkhuis
131 Tyringham Rd
Rochester, NY 14617-2522

From: Care2 on behalf of christine.trotta
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:24:00 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. christine trotta
20 Lafko Dr
Arlington, NY 12603-1414

From: Care2 on behalf of Paul Blitzblau
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 8:25:59 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Blitzblau
234 W Hickory St
Canastota, NY 13032-1408

From: Care2 on behalf of Peter Jones
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 8:56:00 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Peter Jones
2860 Decatur Ave Apt 51b
Bronx, NY 10458-3055

From: Care2 on behalf of Susan bejger
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 8:56:05 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Susan bejger
523 Emerson Dr
Amherst, NY 14226-1233

From: Care2 on behalf of Victor Malyar
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 8:56:35 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Victor Malyar
3115 Brighton 4th St Apt 5m
Brooklyn, NY 11235-7259

From: Care2 on behalf of Eve Botelho
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 10:26:44 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Eve Botelho
85 Eastland Ave
Rochester, NY 14618-1026

From: Care2 on behalf of elizabeth dana
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 10:27:03 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. elizabeth dana
2690 Oran Delphi Rd
Manlius, NY 13104-9554

From: Care2 on behalf of SHARON DUMAS
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 11:26:11 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. SHARON DUMAS
113 Herbert St
North Syracuse, NY 13212-2303

From: Care2 on behalf of J. Wetherell
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 11:26:22 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. J. Wetherell
5 Yeoman Rd
Rocky Point, NY 11778-8634

From: Care2 on behalf of Donna Auffant
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 24, 2012 11:56:06 PM

Jul 24, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Donna Auffant
193 Malden Ave
Palenville, NY 12463-2553

From: Care2 on behalf of Sheri Jacobs
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:24:04 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

M. Sheri Jacobs
90 Cambridge Dr
Red Hook, NY 12571-1617

From: Care2 on behalf of rv.taub
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:24:13 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. rv taub
15 oval
Nyc, NY 10009

From: Care2 on behalf of sharon weiner
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:24:18 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mrs. sharon weiner
72 Standish Dr
Scarsdale, NY 10583-6727

From: Care2 on behalf of Erwin Embro
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:24:27 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Mr. Erwin Embro
1155 Old Nichols Rd
Islandia, NY 11749-4720

From: Care2 on behalf of Ewa Jakubowska-Cook
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:24:31 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ewa Jakubowska-Cook
2072 26th St Apt 1c
Astoria, NY 11105-2976

From: Care2 on behalf of Jasmine Chanza
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I Support Soda Size Limits!
Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49:19 PM

Jul 17, 2012

Resolution Comments

Dear Comments,

I am writing in support of Mayor Michael Bloomberg's sensible proposal to limit the size of soda and similar sugar-sweetened beverages sold in restaurants, movie theaters and food carts to 16 ounces. I applaud the mayor for taking this strong step to tackle obesity rates in New York City, and I urge you to approve the proposal.

Norms for sugary drink sizes are alarmingly high, as 32 and 64 ounce sodas are commonplace across the city. Even the proposed limit of 16 ounces is still double a standard 8-ounce serving. Mayor Bloomberg's plan is backed by extensive scientific research that shows growing portion sizes for sugary drinks are among the driving forces of the ongoing obesity epidemic. The Institute of Medicine recently recommended that government leaders adopt policies and implement practices to reduce over-consumption of sugary drinks, which are a top source of calories in Americans' diets.

Right now, about one-third of children and two-thirds of adults are overweight or obese. Obesity is an epidemic, and it contributes to growing rates of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, hypertension and even some cancers. If we do not reverse childhood obesity in particular, this generation of kids could be the first in America's history to live sicker and die younger than their parents' generation.

Bold action from leaders like you is needed to reverse the obesity epidemic, and we can't wait!

New York is one of the greatest cities in the world, and you have the opportunity to make it even greater, by continuing to lead the nation in using policy to improve nutrition and prevent obesity. Please approve Mayor Bloomberg's proposal and serve up a healthy change for our great city.

Sincerely,

Ms. Jasmine Chanza
29 Saint Joseph St
New Rochelle, NY 10805-1405

From: Daniel Wilkinson
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: I support 16 ounce soda limit - Article 81.
Date: Friday, July 20, 2012 5:39:09 PM

Dear Health Board Members,

More than two-thirds of adults and more than one-third of children are overweight or obese in this country. Sugary drinks are the biggest contributor to the excess calories added to the average American diet since the 1970s. They are the primary source of added sugars in children's diets. With every additional sugary beverage a child drinks daily, his/her odds of becoming obese increase by 60%.

I don't live in New York City, but I would benefit from New York City adopting Mayor Bloomberg's proposal to limit the size of sugary drinks sold in New York City food service establishments to 16 ounces. Article 81 will decrease sugary beverage consumption in New York but it will also make New York City a role model for cities across the country looking to combat sugary beverage overload.

I support Mayor Bloomberg's proposal. Please approve it. I am looking to New York City to lead the way to a healthier tomorrow.

Sincerely,

Daniel Wilkinson
3122 Clark Ave
Long Beach, CA 90808-1716

From: Matt Plasmati
To: Resolution Comments
Subject: What's Next? The size of your hamburger?
Date: Monday, July 02, 2012 5:59:28 PM

Dear Dr. Farley,

As a New York City resident, I am writing you today to ask that you please reject the proposed ban on the sale of fountain and bottled beverages over 16 ounces.

Restricting the sale of certain beverage sizes in New York City hurts our restaurants, theaters, sports venues, coffee shops, food trucks, street carts, and all those who are dependent on beverage sales for their livelihoods.

Furthermore, I believe it should be up to me, and not my government, to choose my serving sizes for me. The answer to curbing obesity is diet, exercise, and a healthy lifestyle, not restrictions on soft drinks, juice drinks, sports drinks, and teas.

On behalf of New Yorkers like me, please reject the proposed ban on the sale of beverages over 16 ounces in New York City.

Sincerely,

Matt Plasmati
16632 23rd Ave
Whitestone, NY 11357