Introduction

- NYC Department of City Planning study of Atlantic Avenue from Vanderbilt to Eastern Parkway
- Improving safety and livability as part of Mayor De Blasio's Vision Zero initiative.
- An in-depth look on making Atlantic Avenue a pedestrian-oriented street.

Recent Developments

- NYCDOT East New York Transportation Study to the east.
- Field visit by DCP staff revealed poorly functioning intersections
- Census data reveals that 80% of residents walk and/or take public transportation to work.

Discussion & Charrette

- What are the top concerns along Atlantic Avenue?
- How can we make it a safer and more welcoming environment?
- Where are improvements needed?
- Who should be contacted for potential community partnerships?

Future Items

- Identify stakeholders and community groups for outreach
- Research existing land uses and zoning, as well as transportation commuter data
- Align scope with NYCDOT and share knowledge, lessons learned and useful local information
