ACS - Division of Preventive Services (DPS)

ACS - Division of Preventive Services (DPS)- Office of Preventive Technical Assistance (OPTA) is pleased to provide you with this special issue for Summer Camps in the Tri-State area and Pennsylvania.

In this special E-Newsletter issue you will find an array of free to low cost Special Needs Summer Camps, as well as a variety of traditional Summer Camps. Several of these camps offer financial assistance, waivers and/or fees on a sliding scale. This issue also has information on out-of-school time programs for youths. There is also a featured article entitled, "Cut the Cost of Summer Camp".

Remember to watch for the upcoming issue of the DPS/OPTA E-Magazine, "The Link," where you will find articles that focus on promoting best practice, written by practitioners and experts in the field of Child Welfare. The E-Magazine will continue to provide links to resources for children and families. OPTA wants to feature preventive programs; so we encourage you to submit program descriptions that highlight your unique services and best practice approaches for future publications. Send your submissions to: dearOPTA@acs.nyc.gov.

Please note: The information or programs and services featured in our newsletter are listed for informational purposes only. This is not intended to be a comprehensive listing and contains information submitted by the service providers.

Cut the Cost of Summer Camp

By Jennifer O'Donnell, About.Com

If your child wants to attend camp this summer, but you're worried about the cost, fear not. There are ways to reduce the cost of a summer camp program.

1. Register Early

Many camps offer a discount to families who are willing to commit early and register by a certain date. Committing to a camp program in January or February might be hard to do, you may not even know your family's vacation schedule yet. But the effort could pay off by reducing the cost of the program by 10 to 20 percent per child.

2. Ask About Camperships

If your family is in financial distress due to a job loss, a death in the family, or some other situation, be sure to ask if the camp offers tuition assistance for families in need. Many camps do, but don't always make their policies known, so be sure to ask.

3. Consider Volunteering

If you're able to work at the camp part-time, or volunteer for a day or two, the camp might be willing to reduce your child's registration fee, or waive it altogether. You might consider sharing a hobby with the campers, or teach them about your job, or other interests. Ask what the camp's needs are, and see if you can help meet them.

4. Ask about Sibling Discounts

Many camps offer discounts to families sending more than one child to camp. Discounts range widely, but can make a big difference in the bottom line. Be sure you also ask if the camp offers discounts to returning campers, as a reward for their loyalty.

5. Know the Camp's Policies

Sending a child to camp can be expensive, but it can't get any worse than paying for the experience only to cancel without refund. Be sure you understand the camp's policies regarding refunds due to cancellation. Will the camp refund for an emergency, such as a death in the family?

6. Refer a Friend

If your child attended a camp and loved it, you may qualify for a discount if he refers a friend to the program. Refer more than one friend, and your child could attend for free.

7. Shop Around

There are so many camps available and prices range widely. Be sure you take the time to research programs in your area to see which camps fit your child's interests and your family budget. Girl Scout and Boy Scout camps are often reasonably priced, and can offer many of the same opportunities available at camps with twice the price. Ask friends for recommendations. If you can, attend a camp fair in order to compare programs and educate yourself about the costs.

Day Camp (ages 4-14)

Campers participate in instructional swimming, arts and crafts, health and fitness, sports and group games. All activities are age-appropriate. Campers also have the opportunity to participate in weekly themes, trips, playgrounds and cultural events. To facilitate academic success our recreational reading component is designed to help kids sharpen their reading skills throughout the summer months. As a part of Day Camp, campers learn how to develop long-lasting friendships and build solid social skills by learning about utilizing our four core values.

Teen Camp (ages 12-14)

A special summer experience awaits pre-teens and teens enrolled in the camp. There are many scheduled activities, but Teen Camp emphasizes decision-making, so that youth are encouraged to choose their activities. Swimming, sports, reading, trips and games are all offered as well as leadership development activities that include community service activities that teach youth to make a positive impact in their neighborhood. Teen Camp helps pre-teens and teens develop social skills and leadership ability while having loads of fun. For more information, call 718-947-0604 or 718-266-4431.

Be WaterSafe

Know where it's safe to swim, and make sure there's a lifeguard and that someone else is around.

If you don't know how to swim, it's never too early—or too late—to learn.

Find great places to swim at nyc.gov/parks

1) Lifeguards Keep Us Safe

Lifeguards are there for your protection, so only swim where lifeguards are present, follow directions, and always swim with a buddy, friend, or parent.

2) Learn to Swim

It's never too early—or too late—to learn to swim! Learn about free and low-cost swim lessons by visiting our Learn to Swim page.

3) Never Leave Children Unattended

Teach children the importance of water safety and stay within arm's reach while swimming. Never leave children unattended near water, even when lifeguards are present.

4) Obey All Posted Signs and Flags

Read all signs and follow the directions of lifeguards. Swimming is only permitted in designated areas and never allowed when a red flag is posted at the beach.

5) Watch for Dangerous Waves and Rip Currents

If you are caught in a rip current, do not panic.

Stay calm and swim parallel to the shore. Once away from the current, return to the beach.

6) Stay Alert and Aware of Your Surroundings Be careful not to swim tired, cold, or far from safety, and never use alcohol while swimming, boating, or supervising children near water.

7) Wear a Life Jacket when Boating Even expert swimmers should wear a life jacket while boating. Never use air-filled or foam beach toys instead of a life jacket.

8) Don't Take Unnecessary Risks Never go wading unless swimming is permitted and be cautious of deep water. The first time you enter the water, ease in or walk in — do not jump or dive.

9) Be Safe in the Sun When at the beach, pool, or park this summer, wear sun screen, drink plenty of fluids, and wear light and loose-fitting clothing to stay cool.

The Discovery Squad

Central Park West at 79th Street

New York, NY 10024-5192

The American Museum of Natural History is proud to introduce The Discovery Squad, a unique tour program designed for families affected by autism spectrum disorders. The program was developed in collaboration with the Seaver Autism Center at the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai.

On selected Saturday mornings, children on the autism spectrum ages 5–14, accompanied by an adult, can attend a 40-minute tour lead by specially trained Museum tour guides, then spend some time exploring the Discovery Room before the Museum opens to the public. Families are invited to stay after the tour and enjoy the Museum when it opens to the public at 10 am.

Children ages 5–9 will discover the dioramas in the Bernard Family Hall of North American Mammals, which offers a snapshot of the plants and animals native to North America. They will then plunge into the ocean to explore the dioramas in the Milstein Hall of Ocean Life.

Children ages 10–14 will join our guides on a paleontological adventure through the Koch Dinosaur Wing. Open to: 5–14 year-olds with autism spectrum disorders (Each child must be accompanied by an adult.)

Cost: for adults and children call for fees.

Open daily from 10 am - 5:45 pm except on Thanksgiving and Christmas

Time: 9-10 am
