

Being a victim of DOMESTIC VIOLENCE, SEXUAL VIOLENCE, or STALKING
should not cost you your job.

New York City offers protections for victims, so that New Yorkers who have suffered from these crimes do not face EMPLOYMENT DISCRIMINATION.

The NYC COMMISSION ON HUMAN RIGHTS can help victims and survivors remain employed by ensuring that employers provide reasonable accommodations. These accommodations may include unpaid leave, work schedule changes, and security measures to keep employees safe at work.

An employer may not fire you, refuse to hire you, or otherwise discriminate against you because of your experience as a victim.

CONTACT US:

NYC Commission on Human Rights

www.nyc.gov/cchr or call 311

 NYCCommissionOnHumanRights   @NYCCHR

