

Department of
Design and Construction

KEEPING YOU
INFORMED

Office of Community Outreach and Notification

visit us at nyc.gov/ddc

Bill de Blasio
Mayor

Jamie Torres-Springer
Commissioner

The New York City Department of Design and Construction is the City's chief construction manager, providing professional project management and world-class design services to 20 City agencies and numerous non-profit organizations that receive City funding. The agency builds infrastructure such as water mains, sewers and public plazas, and public buildings such as libraries and firehouses. DDC's responsibilities continue to expand to meet the challenges presented by growth and climate change.

Communicating with the Neighborhood

As DDC constructs and improves public buildings and infrastructure, the OFFICE OF COMMUNITY OUTREACH AND NOTIFICATION communicates with residents, businesses, and institutions.

Assigned to individual construction projects around the city, dedicated COMMUNITY CONSTRUCTION LIAISONS speak directly with the public and distribute project notices. We recognize construction projects are inconvenient but we will work with everyone to help address local concerns.

Accommodating special requests

Informing communities of timeline and service interruptions

Working with community partners to help beautify during construction

Educating students and working around school arrivals and dismissals

Coordinating and maintaining essential city services, such as trash collection and bus routes

Working with merchants to keep them open for business