DDC's projects share the environment not only with the diverse communities of New York City, but also with the diverse species that rely on us to keep their habitat healthy. Our sustainable public buildings and infrastructure help keep our waterways and air clean, encouraging the habitats around them to thrive.