

What You Need To Know About Raise-the-Age (RTA)

Summary	On April 10, 2017 Governor Andrew Cuomo signed Raise-the-Age (RTA) legislation into law, which increases the age of criminal responsibility to 18 years of age. As a result, effective October 1, 2018, newly arrested 16-year-olds will no longer be prosecuted as adults or held in adult facilities; the same will be true for newly arrested 17-year-olds beginning October 1, 2019. Unlike any other jurisdiction in the state, New York City has the additional requirement to transition all currently adult-charged 16- and 17-year-olds from its adult detention facility on Rikers Island. By October 1st of this year, these young people must be housed in a non-Rikers facility to be jointly administered by ACS and the Department of Correction (DOC). To prepare for this historic transition, New York City is providing all young people between the ages of 16 and 17 years of age currently in DOC custody and their families/friends/caretakers with key information regarding the changes created under the Raise-the-Age legislation This guide seeks to provide information about next steps for young people currently housed at the Robert N. Davoren Center (RNDC) and Rose M. Singer Center (RMSC) on Rikers Island.
