- I. Revision to Question #31 – Questions and Answers from Addendum #3. DOHMH is amending our response to Question #31. The response below replaces in all respects DOHMH's prior response to this question submitted by a prospective vendor. All other vendor questions and DOHMH responses remain unchanged.
31. Question: Heterotrophic Plate Count (HPC): Water type (Potable or Non-Potable) and are any specific state accreditations for drinking water or wastewater testing required? Also, would these samples be taken from the cooling towers and tested alongside the Legionella samples?
Answer: The lab needs to be Elite, ELAP/NELAP certified. Water type is non-potable and potable. The majority of samples will be taken from cooling towers. Generally, routine sample submissions will include HPC and Legionellae samples taken from a cooling tower.
