

Do You Live by a Dry Cleaner?

Have the air in your apartment tested for free.

If you live on the first or second floor of an apartment building that is above or next to a dry cleaner, you may be exposed to dry cleaning chemicals. These chemicals, including perchloroethylene (PERC), can affect your health.

The New York City Health Department offers free home air testing for residents living by a dry cleaner. If testing determines that the level of PERC in the air is higher than the Health Code limit, the Health Department will take action to enforce the law.

To schedule a free indoor air test in your apartment, call 311.

 Español | 繁體中文 | 简体中文 | Русский | 한국어

 nyc.gov/health

 “PERC”