

Depression

Depression Is More Than Feeling Sad

- Everyone feels sad, irritable or down sometimes. Depression is different. It is long-lasting, hurts people's ability to feel joy and makes coping with daily life exhausting.
- Depression is not a choice or a sign of weakness or laziness. No one should feel ashamed about having it.

1 in 12 adult New Yorkers suffers from depression.*

*Source: Belkin G, Linos N, Perlman SE, Norman C, Bassett MT. A roadmap for better mental health in New York City. Lancet 2016; 387:207-208.

There Are Common Signs of Depression

People with depression may not look or act like they are sick or in pain, but their symptoms are just as real as any other health problem.

You may have depression if over the last two weeks you have consistently:

- | | |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Felt sad or hopeless | <input type="checkbox"/> Had trouble concentrating or making decisions |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Lost interest in activities you used to enjoy | <input type="checkbox"/> Had physical problems that won't go away |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Slept or ate too much or not enough | <input type="checkbox"/> Had thoughts about death or suicide |

Health Bulletin

Visit nyc.gov/health to see all Health Bulletins.
Call 311 to order free copies.

Depression Is Treatable

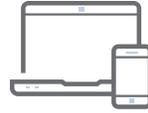

- There are many ways to treat depression.
- Many people find relief by participating in talk therapy, taking medication, being physically active and learning new coping skills.

How to Get Help for Yourself

Talk with your doctor about how you're feeling and treatment options.

How to Support Others

If someone you know talks about feeling depressed, be supportive and non-judgmental. Encourage them to talk with their doctor or to call NYC Well.

For help finding services or making an appointment, text WELL to 65173, call NYC Well at 1-888-NYCWELL or visit nyc.gov/nycwell. NYC Well is confidential and free.

If you're already getting treatment for depression, know that it takes time to get better. Continue to talk with people you trust and tell your doctor if you're struggling.

Besides talking to a doctor, many people find that taking these actions can help relieve their symptoms:

Being physically active

Being outside in a park or other green space

Spending time with people who support you

Following your treatment plan

Eating a healthier diet

Making time for things you enjoy

Skipping or reducing alcohol and drug use

Resources

Connect

 @nychealthy

 nychealth

 @nychealthy

Find Help or a Mental Health Provider

Visit nyc.gov/nycwell

Receive the Latest Health Bulletins

Visit nyc.gov/health/pubs

Visit nyc.gov/health for additional languages of this Health Bulletin and other translated health materials. You have the right to services in your language. These services are free at all New York City Health Department offices and clinics.