What is sexual health?

It’s a lot of things. It’s knowing how to prevent pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases. It’s knowing where to get health services and understanding your right to confidential care. It’s also about learning what it takes to have a healthy relationship.

We’re TeenSpeak. We’re New York City teens who know how hard it can be to get the help and information you need. We hope this booklet provides answers to your questions about sexual health.

Relationships

Treat your partner the way you want them to treat you.

My man really understands me and encourages me to go after my dreams.

Good communication is important. When you talk with your partner, you understand each other better and make the relationship stronger.
What You Should Know

Whether you’re straight or gay, a healthy relationship means you:
• can express yourself honestly, without fear
• make decisions together
• have sex only when you both feel it’s right
• feel respected and valued
• feel supported to follow your goals and dreams

Signs you’re in an unhealthy relationship include a partner who:
• calls, texts or IMs you constantly
• checks your email without your OK
• embarrasses or insults you in front of other people
• doesn’t let you spend time with anyone else
• criticizes the way you look
• threatens to hurt you if you break up

Which Side Describes Your Relationship?

Eye that my babe looks into lovingly

Arm that my boo strokes

Calls or texts sweet messages

Clothes I get complimented on

Eye that got punched when I spoke up for myself

Arm that was bruised when I made a mistake

Calls or texts all the time to see where I’m at

Clothes I’m told to wear
Your Relationship?

- Tells me how smart I am
- Arm my baby holds onto when we walk in the park
- Leg my baby touches when we watch TV
- Leg that was bruised when I smiled at someone else
- Tells me I’m not worth anything
- Arm that’s criticized for being ‘too skinny’

What is emergency contraception?
• Emergency contraception (often called Plan B) is a pill you take to help prevent pregnancy after unprotected sex or if a condom breaks.
• The sooner you take it, the better it works.
• It prevents pregnancy 9 out of 10 times if you take it within 72 hours after sex.
• Get it now so you can take it when you need it. You can get it over the counter at a pharmacy, no matter how old you are. You can also still get it from your doctor or clinic.

My boyfriend and I go to the clinic together. I’m glad he’s there, but it’s good to know I can go alone without anyone knowing.

I know I can go to the clinic on my own, but I wanted to talk to my mom about it. She was great and encouraged me to get health services.

I always thought my parents needed to give the OK to get birth control. I was wrong. I can go to the clinic by myself and get it there.
What You Should Know

You have a legal right to get any of these health services without the permission or knowledge of your parents, guardians, boyfriend or girlfriend or anyone else:

• birth control
• emergency contraception (often called Plan B)
• pregnancy tests
• HIV tests
• testing and treatment for STDs
• abortion

These services are confidential, meaning that no one at the clinic can tell anyone when or why you were there – unless you say so.

Sexual and Reproductive Health Services

My visit to the clinic was nothing like I thought it would be – the doctors were mad cool and all of my information was kept private.

I was scared about going to a clinic. What would they ask? I didn’t have to be afraid at all. No one judged me. The staff listened and helped me get the services I needed.

Through the Teens in NYC app, I found out about so many teen-friendly clinics around the city.
What You Should Know

There are many clinics in the city that provide teens with confidential, free or low-cost services, including:

• condoms
• birth control
• emergency contraception (also called Plan B)
• STD testing and treatment
• HIV testing
• pregnancy testing
• abortion

Confidential services mean that no one will know that you attended the clinic or what services you received unless you tell them.

When you go to the clinic, you may be asked for:

• photo ID, like a school ID card
• insurance card, if you have one

The staff can answer any questions you have about sex, your body, condoms, birth control or STDs.

When meeting with the doctor, be honest. It’s important that the doctor knows everything so he or she can give you the best care.

Sexually Transmitted Diseases (STDs)

The best way to protect yourself from STDs is to use condoms.

Sex without a condom can be risky. Even if you don’t see bumps on your penis or vagina, go get checked.

I was really scared I might have an STD. I talked with my girl and, together, we went to the clinic and talked to the doctor. She helped us relax, and we got the help we needed.
What You Should Know

• You can get an STD, also called a sexually transmitted infection (STI), from any kind of unprotected sex (sex without a condom):
  • vaginal sex (when the penis enters a partner’s vagina)
  • anal sex (when the penis enters a partner’s anus or butt)
  • oral sex (when you put your mouth on a partner’s vagina, penis or anus or butt)

• Chlamydia and gonorrhea are the most common STDs. They’re easy to treat. But if left untreated, they can cause serious damage to your body.

• HIV is another serious infection you can get. If you’re having sex and don’t know your HIV status, ask the doctor for a test.

• Many people with an STD have no symptoms. If you’re having sex, get checked – even if you don’t feel sick or are in a steady relationship.

If you are having sex, using a condom is the best way to help prevent STDs, including HIV. Use one every time you have sex.
