Job Description

The New York City Department of Investigation (DOI) is one of the oldest law enforcement agencies in the country with a mission of combating municipal corruption. It serves the people of New York City by acting as an independent and nonpartisan watchdog for New York City government, City agencies, and City employees, vendors with City contracts, individuals and entities that receive City funds.

DOI's Office of Inspector General for the New York Police Department (OIG-NYPD) is authorized to "investigate, review, study, audit and make recommendations relating to the operations, policies, programs and practices," of the NYPD, with the goals of enhancing effectiveness of the police department, increasing public safety, protecting civil liberties and civil rights, and increasing the public's confidence in the police force.

OIG-NYPD is seeking a Policy Analyst to review selected operations, policies, programs, and practices of the NYPD. The Policy Analyst, using a data-driven approach and at times working with the Office's investigative unit, will identify areas of concern and where improvements are needed in how NYPD carries out its law enforcement responsibilities. The Policy Analyst, along with other policy analysts in the unit, will further develop recommendations for reforms in policing, based on best practices and other research. The Policy Analyst will also monitor and produce reports documenting the extent to which NYPD implements, or does not implement, the Office's recommendations.

The Policy Analyst must have strong research, analytics, and communication skills and be adept at conveying complex policy issues to other OIG-NYPD staff members and to a lay audience.

The Policy Analyst will sit within OIG-NYPD's Policy Analysis unit and will work on multi-disciplinary teams including auditors, investigators, data assistants, and attorneys. The successful Policy Analyst candidate will be conscientious, detail-oriented, self-motivated, and flexible enough to perform effectively both independently and as part of a multi-disciplinary team.
