

HRA Employment Services Division Hosts Job Fair for Clients

On Friday, June 17, FIA’s Business Link held a job fair for Cash Assistance clients ready to start a new career. The fair, held at NYU’s Kimmel Center, gave clients the chance to interview and share their resumes with over 100 employers in industries such as healthcare, IT, sales, security, and food services.

Over 600 clients were able to attend the fair. They began their day with a presentation on interviewing and presentation skills from FIA’s Employment Services division. They then made their way to the fair where they had the opportunity to network, present resumes, interview and fill out applications for a wide variety of positions.

A job fair attendee inquires about an opportunity

An attendee looks in to opportunities with the FDNY

Business Link, a subset of the HRA’s Employment Services division, aims to offer New Yorkers in need a range of options to help them find the opportunities they are best suited for, which will lead to long-term success. Besides entry-level positions in industries with the potential for growth and advancement, Employment Services works with partners to provide job training and education opportunities so clients can improve their earning potential.

Visit Business Link’s website here.

Jobs with the NYPD were also available

Some of the HRA Business Link team