SUBJECT: Professional Standards and Certification for Agency Contracting Officers

BACKGROUND

Pursuant to § 311 of the Charter, the Procurement Policy Board issues this annual report setting forth the professional standards for agency contracting officers adopted by the Mayor, including any applicable certification process.

By way of Executive Order 38 of 1992, the New York City Procurement Training Institute (PTI) was established to provide, among other things, training and education programs for City personnel in professional skills necessary for the procurement of goods, services and construction by City agencies. Local Law 20 and Executive Order 121 of 2008 charged the Mayor's Office of Contract Services (MOCS) with promulgating professional development standards for the City's senior procurement staff. The PTI Certification program was created with goal of ensuring that the agencies are regularly trained on the best practices in procurement methods and policies.

CERTIFICATION OVERVIEW

All senior procurement personnel of Mayoral Agencies, including Agency Chief Contracting Officers (ACCOs), Deputy Agency Chief Contracting Officers (DACCOs), and relevant MOCS staff, are required to complete an initial PTI certification within the first 2 years of their appointment and thereafter, to recertify every 5 years.¹ Although certification is not required for other agency procurement staff, pursuant to the approval of the ACCO and the availability of funding, such staff persons may pursue city certification.

For initial PTI certification, 20 qualifying points are required and can be satisfied by procurement experience, and attending and/or teaching relevant coursework. There are 2 required courses in the PTI curriculum for certification: Ethics/Legal Compliance and Automated Procurement Tracking (APT) Training. For recertification, which is required every 5 years, 15 qualifying points are necessary and can be accomplished by teaching and/or attending relevant coursework. Other areas of professional experience that can generate qualifying points are: achievement and maintenance of certification status from other accrediting organizations; participation in professional conferences, membership organizations, and (for those whose attendance record is deemed excellent) monthly ACCO meetings; and publication of procurement-related material. These other areas of professional experience can be applied for initial PTI certification as well. For additional information on the certification program, see the Professional Standards Framework for Certification and Training of NYC's Procurement Staff contained in the index.

MANDATORY TRAINING: PROCUREMENT ETHICS & APT TRAINING

It is essential that public procurement professionals are highly trained and held to a high degree of excellence. To that end, public employees have the responsibility to uphold the City's underlying procurement policy related to ethics. PPB Rule § 1-03(a) requires that all public employees responsible for the expenditure of taxpayer dollars take the appropriate measures to ensure that their conduct does not violate the public trust placed in them. The mandatory PTI Ethics/Legal Compliance course reinforces the City's procurement policy by educating participants on the core ethical concepts arising in the procurement context such as accountability for compliance, conflicts of interest avoidance, confidentiality and openness in government. The course also explores the historical evolution of the Mayor's procurement authority. Through use of interactive and creative problem solving techniques, the PTI Ethics/Legal Compliance course teaches participants how to identify and address ethical issues that might arise in today's procurement world.

In addition to the ethics course, PTI participants are required to obtain APT training to satisfy the program certification requirements. The APT system allows agencies to more accurately develop, track and report on agency procurement activity. The system also allows agency procurement staff to electronically share documents and approve contract actions, thus increasing procurement accountability, transparency and timeliness. Understanding how to use this system is imperative to all procurement staff to track procurements throughout the process. The APT training serves to provide a basic overview of the APT system and best practices on completing daily procurement tasks.

PTI SURVEY

In October 2014, a survey was conducted for the purpose of better understanding the professional training needs of the City's procurement staff. The survey results revealed that 69% of the 25 participants do not participate in any other form of professional development training aside from the PTI Certification program, and that 76% would be more inclined to attend PTI courses if they were accredited Continuing Legal Education (CLE) courses. Majority of participants prefer other class formats currently not being offered through the certification program, such as: Hands on experience (83%), Interactive/Scenario based learning (63%), Web based or online seminars (63%) and System demonstrations (54%). Survey participants also expressed an interest for additional courses on Information Technology Purchasing (67%), Cost and Price Analysis (59%), Contract Administration (58%), and CSP Preparation & Proposal Evaluation Skills (54%). MOCS is exploring how to best implement as many of these suggestions into the PTI Certification program.

PROGRAM EXPANSION

Since the survey, the PTI Certification program has expanded to provide additional skill enhancement training through the development, operation and maintenance of procurement best practices. In the fall 2014, several courses were included to the PTI curriculum intended to build on principles for effective procurement. These courses comprised of the following: Subcontractor Tracking, Working with HHS Accelerator, and NYC Nonprofit Assistance-Building Capacity for Program Evaluation. This spring of 2015, courses included to the curriculum focused on various procurement methods and contracting techniques. These courses included: Intergovernmental Procurements; Introduction to Procurement; Small Purchase Procurements; NYC Nonprofit Assistance – Approaching Foundation & Responding to RFP's; NYC Nonprofit Assistance-Intro to Fundraising Planning; and Contract Negotiation Techniques.

In November 2014, the LL34 Compliance/Doing Business Accountability (DBA) training was incorporated again into the PTI curriculum, in order to provide procurement staff with an overview of Local Law 34 of 2007 (LL34) requirements, which expanded the New York City Campaign Finance Act by mandating disclosure and limiting contributions from organizations and individuals that have business dealings with the City. In collaboration with the Department of Citywide Administrative Services (DCAS), MOCS offers this training session to agency contracting and legal staff for the purpose of providing insight on the background and requirements of LL34, and detailed instructions on how to complete a Doing Business Data form. Due to the high demand of the training, MOCS has increased the course offerings to over 30 classes for the spring 2015 PTI semester.

INDICATORS

During Fiscal 2014, 590 individuals attended one or more of the 31 PTI classes offered, though some participants attended multiple courses throughout the year. Although many courses were geared toward assisting City procurement staff with their professional responsibilities, attendees included various other agency staff members of both Mayoral and Non-Mayoral agencies. In Fiscal 2014, 18 individuals received initial PTI certifications and another 14 were recertified. Since the program's inception in 2006, over 150 procurement professionals (119 consisting of agency procurement staff) have received PTI certification with an additional 50 accounting for recertified staff.

Certification is not required for other agency procurement staff. However, pursuant to the approval of the ACCO and the availability of funding, such staff persons may pursue City Certification, as described above.

As an alternative to certification, however, any agency procurement staff member who is assigned any procurement signatory authority above the micro-purchase level shall be required to take at least 1 course every two years, as a condition of such signatory authority. This requirement will also be applied prospectively to all Mayoral ACCOs and DACCOs from agencies whose procurement volumes fall below the respective $1 million and $5 million thresholds.

Other appropriate agency procurement staff, as determined by the ACCO, should also be strongly encouraged to take at least one procurement course every two years, as part of their continued professional development.
