500 ATTEND ‘EMPOWERMENT THROUGH EMPLOYMENT’ JOB FAIR
By Eileen Elliott

On a sunny April 27th, 500 NEW YORK CITY HOUSING AUTHORITY (NYCHA) residents came to the gymnasium at the Fashion Institute of Technology in the Chelsea neighborhood of Manhattan looking for work with companies like J.P. Morgan Chase and Old Navy, agencies like the FDNY and the Department for the Aging, and institutions like Columbia University, at the Department of Resident Employment Services (RES)’s second “Empowerment Through Employment” Job Fair.

Residents like 22-year-old Jeffrey Tam from Brooklyn’s Sheepshead-Nostrand Houses, who recently graduated from Carnegie Mellon University with a degree in mathematics and has never had a job. “Right now I’m just browsing around to see what I can find,” Mr. Tam said early that morning. Before our conversation was through he found his way to the Primerica Financial Services table.

And there was 26-year-old Cherisse Lilly from Manhattan’s Douglass Houses, who had recently worked as a teacher’s assistant and is currently attending the College of New Rochelle where she is studying early childhood education. Ms. Lilly found her way to the table staffed with representatives from the Block Institute, formerly the Brooklyn School for Special Children.

Fifty-six-year-old Patricia Heyward from Rangel Houses, also those in the community over the years have resulted in the Lower East Side from 1998–2005. She has been an outspoken advocate for affordable housing, as well as for the mentally and physically disabled. Her efforts in the community have resulted in the Mayor’s appointment, Chairman Hernandez remarked that “Margarita López will bring to NYCHA real-world and practical experience, and help us continue to meet our mission to preserve public housing for current and future generations of New Yorkers.”

Former City Council Member Margarita López Joins Board

New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) Chairman Tino Hernandez announced the appointment of former City Council Member Margarita López as the newest addition to the Housing Authority’s three-member board on April 28th. The NYCHA Board, appointed at the discretion of the Mayor, is composed of two board members and the Chairman. The board reviews and approves contracts, policies, rules and regulations, and holds a public calendar meeting to vote on resolutions affecting NYCHA’s business affairs. Ms. López joins Vice-Chairman Earl Andrews, Jr. and is assuming the position of former Board Member JoAnna Ainciello.

In announcing the Mayor’s appointment, Chairman Hernandez remarked that “Margarita López will bring to NYCHA real-world and practical experience, and help us continue to meet our mission to preserve public housing for current and future generations of New Yorkers.” Board Member López represented the 2nd Councilmanic District on the Lower East Side from 1998–2005. She has been an outspoken advocate for affordable housing, as well as for the mentally and physically disabled. CHAIRMAN'S MESSAGE

More on the ‘Plan to Preserve Public Housing’

Summer is almost officially here, and as we move into the warmer weather we also move toward the completion of the Agency Annual Plan process. We’ve already held all five Town Hall meetings on the Amendment to the Agency Annual Plan for FY2006 and the Draft Agency Annual Plan for FY 2007, and are preparing for the final Public Hearing, which will be held on June 8th at the Manhattan Center on 34th Street. (See page 9 for details.)

I commend all of you who made a point of examining these documents and coming out to the Town Halls to let us know what you think. As I said when I announced the seven-point “Plan to Preserve Public Housing” in April, NYCHA needs your cooperation and support. I also encourage you to please attend the Public Hearing this month:

Based on feedback from the Town Hall meetings, I would like to clarify some issues about the proposed rent increase.

First, the majority of NYCHA residents will not be affected by the proposed rent increase, assuming that it is approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The increase will affect only the 27% of residents who already pay ceiling rent. These residents would be divided into three different income bands and the rents would be raised 10%, 20%, and 40% over the course of two years, with the people in the lowest of the three bands receiving the lowest increase, etc. So, those at the low-end of the scale would have a 5% increase the first year and a 5% increase the second; those in the middle band would have a 10% increase the first year and a 10% increase the second; and those at the high end of the band would have a 20% increase in their rent the first year, and a 20% increase the second.

Regardless of the income, none of the residents affected by this proposed rent increase would pay more than 30% of their incomes in rent. The proposed increase was designed to protect the 73% of residents who would be least able to absorb a rent increase.

I also like to clarify when, if the rent increase proposal is approved, it would go into effect. If approved, the rent increases would be phased in for the first group of residents with the fourth quarter 2006 annual review period — which takes place during the months of October, November and December. The earliest effective date would be February 2007.

Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg is coming to NYCHA’s aid with a $100 million transitional aid allocation while we work to advance the seven-point “Plan to Preserve Public Housing.” Under the Mayor’s leadership, NYCHA has been a constant presence in Washington, fighting for the preservation of public housing and Section 8. NYCHA is committed to increasingly aggressive efforts in Washington, as well as in Albany, to advocate for critical funding and flexibility to support housing for low- and moderate-income New Yorkers so that we can combine funding streams for maximum financial flexibility.

NYCHA really is at a defining moment. Our future depends on your support and cooperation. Please work with us to make sure that public housing remains a viable alternative for thousands of low- and moderate-income New Yorkers for the next 70 years.

Domestic Violence

or she is a VDV, and who wishes to request an Emergency Transfer, may do so by going to the development Management Office. Residents who are too fearful to do this, or who prefer to, may also initiate an Emergency Transfer by going to Safe Horizon. To find the nearest Safe Horizon center, residents should call the Domestic Violence Hotline at 1-800-621-HOPE.

Residents who choose to go through the Management Office will receive a copy of the “Emergency Transfer Program Information Sheet” and the “Emergency Transfer Program Required Documents List” from the staff. The staff will assist the resident in filling out the “Transfer Emergency: Tenant Request for Transfer” form.

The resident may select any borough to transfer to, including their own borough of residence, except residents of Staten Island. If a resident selects their borough (s)he currently resides in, the Tenant Selection and Assignment Plan (TSAP) will automatically select a development in a location that is not adjacent to the resident’s current address. Staten Island residents must choose another borough in which to live.

Processing Time

The processing time for an Emergency Transfer depends on prompt submission of the required documentation, as well as the tenancy records, the results of criminal background checks, and the availability of apartments.

For the specific document requirements, please refer to NYCHA’s Web site at: nyc.gov/nycha.

A Word About Safe Horizon...

Safe Horizon Domestic Violence Intervention, Education and Prevention (DVIEP) Program case managers work together with the New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) and the New York City Police Department to advocate and support victims of domestic violence who reside in NYCHA developments. Safe Horizon support services are designed to help clients recover their sense of safety, provide emotional support, and regain control over their lives. Safe Horizon services include: crisis intervention counseling, home visits and safety planning; assistance with NYCHA emergency housing transfers, advocacy within the criminal justice system, and information about women’s legal and options.

If you reside in a NYCHA development and need assistance, please contact the Safe Horizon DVIEP program at the main office number: (212) 577-7800.

DEBORAH'S DIARY

By Deborah Williams

Hershey Winner—When you see the name Milton Hershey the first thing you probably think of is chocolate. That would be typical because Mr. Hershey has made millions in the chocolate business — but there’s more to Milton S. Hershey. What many folks may not know is that Mr. Hershey and his wife Catherine founded the Milton S. Hershey School in 1909. The school is located in — as you probably guessed — Hershey, Pennsylvania, and provides a home, quality education, food and clothing to students in need, free of cost. The Milton Hershey School also has a National Honor Society for its elite juniors and seniors. To qualify, the students must have received a cumulative scholastic average of 3.5 on a 4.0 scale for two marking periods. Candidates are evaluated on their character, leadership and service, and must be recommended by a panel of five Milton Hershey teachers.

Adzua Agyapon, a resident of Straus Houses in Manhattan, was able to meet those standards and was inducted in the Milton Hershey School’s National Honor Society on January 8, 2006. Adzua, who is a junior at Milton Hershey, was one of 10 students to receive this special honor. It’s no wonder! Adzua has been a member of the Student Government Association, participated in the Model UN, and volunteered with Habitat for Humanity. She is on the staff of the school magazine, “The Spartan Spirit,” works as a lifeguard at Milton Hershey, and is a member of the Rock Climbing Club. And if that’s not enough, she is also listed on the Distinguished Honor Roll and in “Who’s Who Among American High School Students.” She has received an Effort & Conduct Award and the Kodak Young Artist Award. Wow! What an impressive list of accomplishments, and at such a young age. You should be very proud of yourself! You are a scholar among scholars. I congratulate you on your achievements and expect to hear much more about you in the future.

Direct Care Counselors—The legendary Alhambra Ballroom in Harlem served as the venue for the Direct Care Counselor Training Program Graduation Ceremony on March 30, 2006. Graduates and instructors shared their experiences in the program while demonstrating their newly acquired sign language skills. Janice Nixon-Wright, a resident of Harlem River Houses, told the audience, “I had a lot of obstacles to overcome. I thought I wouldn’t be able to attend my graduation ceremony today. My mother was hospitalized with kidney problems. With three children sometimes I don’t have a sitter. It’s been tough on me but I succeeded. The training provided me with useful skills and although I haven’t completed my internship yet — I just have three days left — I am confident that I will be employed.”

The Direct Care Counselor program began as a joint effort between the Borough of Manhattan Community College (BMCC) and the New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) in 2004. Since then, 118 NYCHA residents have graduated and 69 are still employed. The classroom training is held at BMCC’s 125th Street location in the Harlem State Office Building. The 12-week program, which runs from 9AM to 5PM, Monday through Friday, includes a 96-hour internship. Those who complete the program receive a certificate in Medication Administration, CPR First Aid, and Strategies for Crisis Intervention & Prevention. They also learn sign language. Graduates are prepared to work as Direct Care Counselors servicing mentally and physically challenged adults in residential or day care treatment facilities, and are often hired at their internship location. This year’s class, which began in January, will unfortunately be the last collaborative effort between NYCHA and BMCC. If you are interested in this program, please call BMCC directly and speak with 965-1766.

A special note: This year’s class experienced the tragic loss of one of their classmates. Just two weeks before graduation Evelyn Florence of Manhattanville Houses passed away after a long battle with asthma. The graduates dedicated the ceremony to Ms. Florence.

Hats off to the 2006 Graduates: Laura Alejandra, Carmen DeValle, Deborah Lawton, and Natasha Eaton of Ansley Houses; Charmaine Campbell, Pelham Parkway Houses; I-Mecca Carmichael, Seth Low Houses; Linda Day, Glenwood Houses; Shaval Mulrain, Patterson Houses; Janice Nixon-Wright, Harlem River Houses; Jacqueline Pope, Mitchell Houses; Audrey Styles, Queensbridge Houses; Geano Thompson, Morris Houses; Danielle Williams, Manhattanville Houses; Leslie Williams, University Ave. Consolidated; Yashwanth Williams, Home Gardens; Tiffany Veliciano, Washington Houses; and Samantha Codrington, who is not a NYCHA resident. Congratulations!

HAVE A HAPPY AND SAFE FOURTH OF JULY!

Hello again.

Next month we will come together to celebrate our nation’s independence. The NYPD Housing Bureau encourages all residents to fully enjoy the festivities and celebrations associated with our national birthday.

However, it is also important to recognize the danger posed to our communities through the unsafe handling of illegal fireworks.

Unfortunately, every year at this time a number of individuals who play with fireworks are injured, many seriously so. Injuries include severe burns, permanent disfigurement, and even the loss of eyes, fingers and hands. Often, those injured are young people.

If you are aware of any information regarding the sale, delivery, or storage of illegal explosives or fireworks, I urge you to call 311.

As always, we rely on our strong partnership with the residents of the New York City Housing Authority to help us fight crime, address quality of life concerns and enhance public safety. Your assistance in this matter can help save a child from being seriously injured this holiday.

Have a HAPPY and SAFE Fourth of July!

THE HOUSING AUTHORITY JOURNAL
JUNE 2006

The NYCHA Not Wanted List

In this issue we continue our editorial policy of publishing the names of individuals who have been permanently excluded from the public housing developments. This list is part of NYCHA’s effort to keep residents informed of the Housing Authority’s ongoing effort to improve the quality of life for all New Yorkers in public housing and to allow for the peaceful and safe use of our facilities. Here follows a list of the people excluded after hearings were held on June 15, 22 and 29th, and July 6, 2005. Please note: These exclusions are based on NYCHA’s Administrative Hearing Process and should not be confused with the Trespass Notice Program under Mayor Bloomberg’s Operation Safe Housing Initiative.

REMEMBER, IF YOU SEE ANY OF THESE INDIVIDUALS ON HOUSING AUTHORITY PROPERTY, PLEASE CALL YOUR MANAGEMENT OFFICE OR NYCHA’S SPECIAL INVESTIGATIONS UNIT AT (212) 306-8595.

Summer’s Almost Here! Make Sure Your Window Guards Are Properly Installed!

The New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA), like all landlords in New York City, is required by law to install window guards in every window of every NYCHA apartment where residents aged 10-years-old or younger reside. Why? The reason is simple — window guards save lives! Window guards are especially important now that the warmer weather is here.

Residents who live in the Bronx, and those parts of Manhattan that are not yet online with the Centralized Call Center (CCC), should contact their Management Offices for window guards. Residents who want or need window guards and live in Staten Island, Queens, or the parts of Manhattan that now utilize the CCC for maintenance and repairs, should contact the CCC at: (718) 707-7771. In either case, requests for window guard installation receive an emergency priority and installation is required within 24 hours.

You don’t have to have a child aged 10 or under to have window guards installed, either. In fact, it’s a good idea to have them installed if children even visit your apartment.

Proper Installation

New York City’s Department of Health and Mental Hygiene provides the following guidelines for the proper installation of window guards:

- Window guards must be installed permanently in the lower half of the outside track of a double-hung window, 4 1/2 inches or less above the window sill, with four one-way screws and two "L" brackets. Stops must be screwed into each side of the upper window track with one way screws. When the lower window is stopped from being raised more than 4 1/2 inches above the top bar of the guard, your child cannot fall out.

The two illustrations here show examples of window guards that are properly installed, lower left, and improperly installed, upper right.

Air Conditioners

And if you have an air conditioner, or are thinking of getting one, please make sure that it is installed properly. If you have any doubts, check with your Management Office.

NYCHA has very specific guidelines regarding air conditioner installation. During Annual Apartment Inspections, not only will NYCHA staff determine if all window guards are properly installed, they will also make sure that any air-conditioner you have is properly and permanently secured to the window.

Please keep in mind that when residents refuse to comply with NYCHA’s attempts to install window guards, the Housing Authority will initiate administrative action to terminate tenancy.

Have a great summer!
Residents Learn Trade Skills and Life Skills

By Allan Leicht

NEW YORK CITY HOUSING AUTHORITY (NYCHA) residents Pedro Rodriguez, 20, of Melrose Houses in the Bronx, Anthony Williams, 26, of Polo Grounds Houses in Manhattan, and Courtland Coleman, 25, of Bushwick Houses in Brooklyn are three of a class of 15 who are completing a free job-training program through NYCHA’s Department of Resident Employment Services (RES). They are the first class of the “MWT” or Minority Workers Training program in construction and environmental remediation, and they filled Rutgers Houses Training Center in lower Manhattan with the scent of fresh-cut lumber and the aura of determination. They were building birdhouses, jewelry boxes and shelves, but more, they were building futures.

“It’s classroom training combined with hands-on work,” said Office of Applied Innovations (OAI), Inc. Program Coordinator David Myers. The Chicago-based training organization is NYCHA’s partner in this venture. “But,” said Mr. Myers, who is in his 20’s himself, “it’s training in life skills. The students learn to navigate the applications process and acquire the tools to successfully build a career once they have become a member of a union.”

Dennis Brown, master carpenter and union instructor, spoke of carpentry as a means of building character. “They’re building shadow boxes and they’ll learn sheet rocking and wood framing,” said Mr. Brown, “but it’s not just to get a job done, it’s to acquire an attitude, the ability not to just get the job and do the job, but to hold the job — and that takes attitude. I want them to fall in love with what they’re doing, use their hands to develop the right attitude.”

Home base for the MWT program is the Monterey Community Center in the Bronx, and many of the participants are Bronx residents. However, NYCHA residents citywide are eligible for the program and women are strongly encouraged to apply. In fact, there are two women in this initial class, preparing for careers that are historically considered to be “non-traditional” for women.

Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 25, have a high school diploma or GED, and be able to perform physical labor to qualify for the intensive 12-week course. The curriculum encompasses industry-specific building trades, and participants who complete the course become licensed in asbestos and lead abatement and hazardous waste handlers.

Mr. Myers, a native of Jamaica, Queens, who has been with OAI for six years, said that in past years as many as 85% of OAI graduates have secured positions in the building trades. “We maintain relationships after they complete the course and alumni come back to interact with current students,” he said. “It’s very powerful to see someone like you who has had success.”

Anthony Williams of Polo Grounds Houses expressed confidence in his future because of the wide scope of the training. “I am aiming to use everything and not pick just one thing. I think my first choice might be the elevator union because I see how much need there is for that. But just in NYCHA there’s a demand for painters, plasterers, all the skills,” said Mr. Williams.

Lee Blyden, with David Myers and Dennis Brown, completes the trio of role models for the students of MWT. As one of NYCHA’s senior skilled tradesmen, Mr. Blyden serves as liaison between the Authority and the OAI program. Mr. Blyden had been a NYCHA staff electrician prior to joining RES, and he is a firm believer in the partnership of education, labor and community as represented by OAI, the trade unions and NYCHA. “Yes, they learn how to nail and how to cut,” said the 20-year NYCHA veteran, “but they also learn how to live successfully in the world of work.”

children and teens on the Chess team are the borough champs and just recently the Center won second place in the NYCHA Spelling Bee Competition.

“I pride myself in making sure the kids excel in whatever they choose to do,” Mrs. Gonzalez said. Getting this kind of commitment out of children can be difficult at times but when adults care, children usually do too.

“Everything I do in life is part of my job. When I travel I bring back coloring books and other stuff for the kids so that they can share that experience with me. I don’t separate my life from my job; it’s just part of me. These kids can go anywhere and do whatever they want but they come in everyday. When they don’t come I make sure they know that I acknowledge that they weren’t here so they know I care,” she said. And they do. Mrs. Gonzalez said the children and teens don’t even want to go home at closing time. They hang around the Center until they see Mrs. G. (as they affectionately call her) lock up. “When I walk home at night they say, ‘Mrs. G, we got your back.’ It’s a great place to be. I love it here.”

Williamsburg at a Glance

Mrs. Gonzalez has not always lived in Williamsburg. She’s lived in Puerto Rico and Ohio but she always found herself back in her home town. “I wanted to raise my son in the neighborhood where I was raised because I had nothing but positive experiences here,” she said. But she does admit the neighborhood has changed a lot since that day on the seesaw in 1961, and she has been lucky enough to witness these changes firsthand, especially in the ethnic makeup of this area.

In the 1950’s and 1960’s, Williamsburg became predominantly Puerto Rican, due to the large number of factory jobs, with a population that was mostly Hasidic to the southwest, Italians to the west and Polish to the north near Greenpoint. The Hispanic community continued to grow. The 1980’s saw the arrival of Dominicans and other Latin Americans to the area despite the slow decline in manufacturing jobs. In fact, in the 1980’s Ecuadorians, Mexicans, new Polish immigrants, and Chinese also joined the mix.

Diversity is not a new notion in this neighborhood, however, during the last 20 years, the newest wave of “immigrants” are artists attracted to the large spaces offered by old factories turned into residential apartments. As a result art galleries, restaurants and shops have opened to cater to these new residents.

There is concern among some residents, especially those who have lived in the neighborhood for generations, that their complex, diverse and affordable neighborhood is vanishing; but others like Mrs. Gonzalez feel that this is positive change.

“There’s a mixture of people in the neighborhood. It’s not so much Latinos and Blacks any more but all kinds of ethnic groups so it’s become very diverse,” she said.

Like with any neighborhood in transition, old faces move out and new faces move in but throughout there are always the constant familiar faces of others who serve as the fabric that connects one era to the next. “A lot of the familiar stores and store owners have moved away. If you’re used to seeing Juan in the corner store for years and all of a sudden Juan is not there…I feel that’s a loss. [But] there are a lot of job opportunities and new housing developments. At one time it [the neighborhood] was run down but now it’s changing,” Mrs. Gonzalez commented.

Williamsburg Houses is a 20 residential building development completed in 1938. It’s one of the first housing developments in the United States and has been designated a New York City Landmark.

MARGARITA LÓPEZ JOINS NYCHA BOARD

construction and restoration of hundreds of units of affordable housing as well as a wide range of support services for area residents.

Ms. López has partnered with NYCHA on several initiatives at developments on the Lower East Side. These include a push to urge residents to take advantage of the Earned Income Tax Credit program, with the help of the Lower East Side People’s Federal Tax Union, which she co-founded.

“I am humbled and proud to be appointed to this important position,” Board Member López said at the time of her appointment. “I have spent almost 30 years as a community advocate, Community Board Member, and member of the City Council fighting for low- and moderate-income New Yorkers who need affordable housing. I am very grateful for this new opportunity to serve the cause I have made my life’s work.”

The Department of Community Operations Performing Arts Unit did it again! On April 13, 2006, they put on a terrific performance of “Hip Hop Story: The Musical” that had the audience applauding, laughing and sometimes singing. “Hip Hop Story: The Musical” was a story of romance and betrayal but more importantly, it depicted the relationship between hip hop and teens, and explained the significance of hip hop music in the teen world.

The performers, 53 New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) youth from various Community Centers throughout the city and a few parents, rehearsed for two-and-a-half months to bring the production to the stage. The play, similar to the Broadway show “West Side Story,” featured characters such as “Bernardo,” played by Michael Crayton of Taft Houses in Manhattan, “Anton,” played by Patrick Robinson of University Avenue in the Bronx, and “Marie,” played by Rebecca Camacho of Douglass Houses in Manhattan, and like “West Side Story,” it wouldn’t be complete without a “Romeo and Juliet” saga and the climactic confrontation of the rival groups.

Today everyone remembers “Romeo and Juliet” and “West Side Story” for their theme and message. And that’s exactly what the producers and cast of “Hip Hop Story: The Musical” hope to convey through their acting, dance, musical notes, and rap lyrics to their audience — hip hop is a culture that rap developed from and it is a not a negative culture as some view it. Hip hop is positive because through it rap is used as an outlet for teens to express themselves and share their inner feelings with the world.

“I am here today because of the cast. These teens could have been doing something else today, but they chose to be here because hip hop is important to them,” said Community Coordinator Kier Nelson.

In the audience were former Board Member JoAnna Aniello, Deputy General Manager Hugh Spence, Citywide Programs Director Ernesto Lozano, and Brooklyn South Council of Presidents (COP) Chair Rosia Wyche. Performances of “Hip Hop Story: The Musical” were held on April 12 and April 13, 2006, at the Fashion Institute of Technology (FIT) in Manhattan.
