1. What is MoveSpring?

MoveSpring is a digital platform that tracks steps across users. MoveSpring can be accessed by through an app on your mobile device or through an Internet browser on your computer or smart phone.

To participate in the STEPtember Billion Step Challenge, you will need to create an account on MoveSpring and connect a step tracker to your MoveSpring account, such as a smart phone or wearable device (FitBit, Apple Watch, Garmin, etc).

2. Which devices and smartwatches connect to MoveSpring?

Android Phones (4.2 and above through Google Fit), Apple Watch, iPhone 5s and up through Apple Health App, Fitbit, Garmin, Google Fit (Android, Pebble, Xiaomi), Misfit, and Withings (now Nokia).

3. How do I set up an account?

Registration instructions can be found here.

IMPORTANT: Enable your push notifications so you can receive alerts when we post updates in the app or when someone messages you!

4. How do I enable “Push Notifications”?

- Go to your “Profile” on the bottom right-hand corner of your screen
- Select the Settings gear icon and scroll down to the “Push Notifications” section
- Select “Push Notifications”
- Switch your notifications ON to receive alerts (when you see BLUE they are ON)
- You can turn off your push notifications at any time!

5. How do I sync my tracking device with MoveSpring?

Android:

- Make sure you have Google Fit* downloaded on your phone
- Open the MoveSpring app and navigate to your “Profile” on the bottom right of the screen, then the Settings gear icon on the top right in the app
- Select “Device” and then scroll to find Google Fit from the list of devices
- Give MoveSpring permission to access your steps, distance and active minutes by clicking “Allow”. You are now connected!

If you have multiple Google accounts on your phone, please be sure to select the same account you are using in Google Fit.*

iPhone:

- Open the MoveSpring app and navigate to your "Profile" on the bottom right of the screen, then the Settings gear icon on the top right in the app
- Select "Device" and then scroll to find Apple Health App from the list of devices
- Give MoveSpring Permission to access your steps, distance and active minutes by clicking "Allow"
- You will then need to navigate to your "Apple Health App"
- Select "Sources" and then "MoveSpring"
- Turn "Active Energy", "Steps" and "Walking and Running" to ON (They will turn green)
- You are now connected!

If you don't see your steps, go to your phone's "Settings" → "Privacy" → "Motion and Fitness", or "Settings" → "Privacy" → "Health" → "MoveSpring". If any of these Settings are turned OFF (not green) your data will not sync.*

Wearable tracking device (FitBit, Garmin, etc):

- Open the MoveSpring app and navigate to your "Profile" on the bottom right of the screen, then the Settings gear icon on the top right in the app
- Select "Device" and then scroll to find your device type (e.g., Garmin, Fitbit, et al.)
- Enter your username and password for the account your device is connected to
- Give MoveSpring Permission to access your steps, distance and active minutes by clicking "Allow"

IMPORTANT: The MoveSpring app does not sync your steps unless the app is open on your phone! This is to prevent your battery from being drained. While the app is able to pull up to 5 days' worth of steps at once, we encourage you to open the app at least once daily to ensure all your steps are shown in real-time.

6. Why am I missing some or all of my steps for a day?

There could be a few reasons for this! MoveSpring pulls step data from your device's cloud, not the device directly. Please check make sure your steps are updated in the app you are using to sync your steps (i.e. Apple Health, Fitbit, Google Fit). Your device's app must be synced before your steps will update in MoveSpring.*

With an Apple Watch or iPhone, you may need to tap the circular arrow button in the upper left-hand corner ("Refresh") to force the sync to happen.

The app currently does not run in the background on your phone, to prevent it from running down your battery. But if you miss a day and the app is not pulling data from your device, please reach out directly to MoveSpring (see "Who do I contact if I need help?").*

7. I have a pedometer, can I still participate?

Unfortunately, manual entry is not allowed in the STEPtember Billion Step Challenge, so participants will need a smart phone or wearable tracking device to participate. We hope you can join us next year!

8. My device doesn't integrate with MoveSpring. What can I do?

If your device isn't listed on the pairable device list, we encourage you to use your smart phone as a step tracker. iPhone users can track their steps through the Apple Health app. Android users must download Google Fit to track their steps.

9. Will the length of my stride affect the challenge?

No! This challenge is based on the number of steps you take, so your stride length does not matter. Someone with a longer stride may record the same number of steps as someone with a shorter stride, even though they have traveled a greater distance.

10. How do I join a team?

You should have been prompted to select one of your agency's teams after you created your MoveSpring account. If you do not see the "STEPtember Billion Step Walking Challenge" on your dashboard, please reach out to WorkWell NYC at workwell@olr.nyc.gov and someone will assist you.
