Statement of Basis and Purpose

The proposed rules would amend existing rules to allow limited liability companies to own and operate taxicab medallions. In addition, the proposed rules would provide that members and managing members of such limited liability companies would be subject to the same requirements as are partners, shareholders, officers and directors of corporate and partnership owners and operators of taxicab medallions, for all purposes of the Taxicab Owners Rules, including with respect to fitness to own taxicab medallions.

The existing rules provide that taxicab medallions may be owned by individuals, partnerships and corporations. The governing statute, section 19-502(i) of the New York City Administrative Code, authorizes a broader scope of entities that may own taxicab medallions: “any person, firm, partnership, corporation or association.” The limited liability company structure may offer certain advantages for some owners when compared with the personal, partnership or corporate forms of ownership – in particular, industry representatives have indicated that the limited liability company structure can have tax advantages over other forms of taxicab medallion ownership. At the same time, based on review of the law governing limited liability companies, the Taxi and Limousine Commission believes that taxicab medallion owners’ use of the limited liability company structure will not impair the Commission’s ability to regulate and monitor the taxicab industry.
